U. S. WARSHIPS TO CUBA

Army in New Revolt on Island

Today

The Work Year Starts. Buying in Chicago. Rugged Individualism. Hitler Still Busy.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

LABOR DAY gone, the real year of work begins, and this, happily, is a year of hope. The country is no longer drifting, definite plans are made, developed and pushed. The nation has passed from the stage of mourning to the stage of action.

For the United States there is ahead prosperity as great as has ever been known, and infinitely greater. For the individual there are prizes to be won greater than have been won before.

It all depends on how you work.

DO NOT miss Chicago's wonderful Century of Progress Exposition, if it is possible for you to go. The success of the exposition, extraordinary in these times of depression, justifies the courage and confidence of Chicago's citizens. Last Sunday 300,000 paid admission to the exposition.

More than $20,000,000 has been spent among the concessionaires and for admissions since the fair opened. The attendance to date is nearly 14,000,000. And, cheerful for Chicago, the Chamber of Commerce estimates that more than a hundred and fifty millions have been spent by visitors in hotels, restaurants, theaters, shops, etc.

Chicago's thanks are due to the men that had courage to plan this exposition, and energy to carry it through.

ALREADY IN Chicago prices of building materials have been advanced for the first time in several years, and the "buy in September" movement, pushed by Mr. Hearst's newspapers, including his two newspapers in Chicago, has produced excellent results.

According to the New York Times, Chicago's "leading retailers report sales increased 25 to more than 50 per cent. Strengthening of prices has influenced many buyers to anticipate further requirements."

If you buy in September, you will help the work of recovery, and save money for yourself.

THE REV. C. E. WAGNER'S statement that the era of "rugged individualism" is not compatible with the policies of NRA is not clear to the average man.

He sees rugged individualism in Franklin D. Roosevelt and Gen. Johnson, whom the President chose for the head of NRA. He believes that if another Cromwell, Mirabeau, Andrew Jackson or Napoleon should appear on the scene, individualism would again play its part.

THE "RUGGED individualism" of Chancellor Hitler causes agitation throughout Europe. England worries about a possible Nazi attack that would be aimed at the Tyrol.

The Allies, determined at Versailles to keep the conquered nations forever flat on their backs, are eagerly permitting Austria to increase the size of her army to fight Hitler if necessary.

STALIN IN Russia has invited his former enemy, Marshal Pilsudski, head of Poland's government, to visit Moscow as Russia's guest and witness red army celebrations on November 7. And Stalin sends Pilsudski a present.

Until Hitler's rugged individualism rose to the surface in Germany, Russia and Poland had been openly hostile.

Hitler, reviewing 150,000 men, well-trained, making a long speech about his "three million fighters, also well-trained," says he has no desire for war, and "a new war could not give Germany greater honor than the last war."

That depends on the definition of "honor." There is no question that the Germans fought with extraordinary courage against world-wide odds.

One thing is certain, another war could hardly be for Germany a more horrible calamity that the last war. Intelligent Germans, anxious to see their nation go ahead and recover, will regret it, if they allow Hitler to drag them into a war for his own glory.

BILL PADDING CHARGED TO BAR QUIZ

Secretary of Inquiry Denies Accusation Made by Riordan

Leo A. Riordan, chief county investigator, today charged before the County Commissioners that bills submitted by the Bar Association Committee investigating professional conduct of members of the bar, had been padded and duplicated to the extent of more than $2,500.

He recommended that criminal and civil action be started immediately against Donald C. Anderson, secretary of the committee, to whom the money had been paid by the county.

AUDIT ORDERED

The County Commissioners not only ordered a complete audit to be made by Main & Co., special county auditors, of all moneys paid Anderson, but directed that an additional audit be made of sums paid to the Bar Association for its election fraud investigation.

Copies of Riordan's report was ordered sent to District Attorney Andrew T. Park upon motion of Chairman Charles C. McGovern, as well as the president judge of Common Pleas Court and the Bar Association chairman.

In his lengthy report to the commission Riordan took the entire committee to task, charging that the investigation had been biased and that certain attorneys

WASHINGTON RUSHES 4 VESSELS TO GUARD AMERICANS

BULLETIN.

HAVANA, Sept. 5.—(INS.)—Carlos Manuel de Cespedes resigned as Provisional President of Cuba this afternoon following a bloodless military coup d'etat.

Associated Press.

The United States ordered a cruiser and three destroyers to Cuba today to protect American property against possible disturbances in connection with the new revolutionary movement which has embroiled the island.

The resignation of the government headed by President Carlos Manuel de Cespedes, in power less than a month, was expected momentarily.

Power was seized through a bloodless coup d'etat by radical elements. A commission of five was selected to take over the government from the administration which succeeded deposed President Gerardo Machado August 12.

The movement spread from Havana to Santiago, where the army rebelled, ousting the governor and the mayor.

Mutiny Puts Radicals in Control

HAVANA, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—Cuba's revolutionary government, less than one month old, prepared to resign today in favor of a commission of five men selected by leaders of soldiers, sailors and national police who seized power through a bloodless coup d'etat last night.

Provisional President Carlos Manuel de Cespedes, who succeeded the deposed Gerardo Machado August 12, was hurriedly summoned back to Havana from Santa Clara, where he had gone to look over the damage caused by last week's hurricane.

On his return to the capital the President was expected to call a cabinet meeting at which his government would resign.

RADICALS IN POWER

There was much talk of possible intervention by the United States under the Platt amendment, which is part of the Cuban constitution. It legalizes such intervention.

The coup d'etat placed power in the hands of the extreme Radical Socialists, representing student groups, the ABC Revolutionary Society, which was largely instrumental in the overthrow of Machado, and certain university professors.

Although the shift in power was accomplished without fighting,

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—Four warships were ordered to Cuba today because of the coup d'etat there.

A cruiser and three destroyers were dispatched to protect American lives and property from danger in threatened strife precipitated by the revolt of the army against the new provisional government.

This was the second time in a matter of weeks that war vessels have been sent to the republic to the south, the first time being during the disturbances in connection with the overthrow of the Machado government.

PROMPT ACTION

Today's step was taken promply after Secretary Hull had been apprised of the swiftly developing situation in two long telephone calls from Ambassador Sumner Welles at Havana.

The secretary, gravely facing reporters, told them the cruiser Richmond had been ordered from the Canal Zone to Havana, that the Destroyers MacFarland and Bainbridge had been ordered to the Cuban capital from Key West an dNorfolk, and that the Destroyer Sturdevant had been ordered from the naval base at Guantanamo to Santiago.

Already the sharp prows were cutting the waters, it was said, while President Roosevelt made his way to Washington on the

VERMONT TESTS REPEAL TIDE

International News Service.

MONTPELIER, Vt., Sept. 5.—Traditions of three-quarters of a century were arrayed against a surge of nation-wide wet sentiment today as Vermont held a special election on the question of ratification of the Twenty-first Amendment to repeal prohibition.

For 50 years, long before prohibition became the law of the land, the Green Mountain state had anti-liquor laws on its statute books—even now it has a law prohibiting the sales of beverages stronger than 3.2 per cent even in the event of national repeal, until further legislation is enacted.

Although both "wet" and "dry" factions were confident of victory, impartial observers predicted a close fight, with the dry rural sections opposed by the wet cities and larger communities.

Both factions conducted quiet campaigns calculated to get out the vote. Prohibitions centered their drive from pulpits at meetings at which Bishop Edwin H. Hughes, of Washington, was the principal speaker. The anti-prohibitionists were aided by Postmaster General James Farley and Representative J. W. Wadsworth, Jr., of New York.

Gale, Terrific Tides Battering Coast of Texas

HOUSTON, Tex., Sept. 5.—(AP.)—Ripping into the lower Rio Grande valley, a tropical hurricane isolated Brownsville at the southernmost point of Texas early today and lashed the Gulf coast for hundreds of miles.

Corpus Christi battled desperately against the surging waves of a high tide which swept through the lower streets of that city as the weather forecaster there predicted "the worst was yet to come." The tide, instead of breaking into surf at the beach, was breaking several blocks back from the usual shore line.

Vivid accounts of the terrific winds came from a telephone operator at Harlingen, who sought frantically to give the outside world details until all her lines went out. She said:

"All the lines to Brownsville went out at once. It's storming terribly here now and I don't know what has happened to them down at Brownsville."

COAL PARLEYS RENEWED

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—Refreshed by a two-day holiday, Appalachian bituminous coal operators and leaders of the United Mine Workers of America today renewed efforts to write labor contracts for the commercial mines in that area.

Almost every train and plane from the West this morning brought operators to the capital. Almost all of the several hundred producers who have been attending the prolonged conferences here went home for the holidays.

Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator, prepared attempts to iron out the differences which have arisen over the operators' proposal to include an open-shop clause in labor contracts and the miners' demand for a provision for deduction of union dues from miners' pay.

Neither side has given any indication of being ready to recede. Both watched the White House for possible action by President Roosevelt, who has shown keen interest in the negotiations.

Johnson wants the union contracts signed before he renews work on the code, believing the crux of the entire code problem would be solved in bringing the mine workers and Appalachian operators together.

Today, Tomorrow Final Days to Be Assessed

Voters of Allegheny County have their last chance to be assessed today and tomorrow at room 119, Court House.

Special preparations to handle a large crowd are being made by the Board for the Assessment and Revision of Taxes. Extra clerks have been added and special county officers assigned.

Office hours of the board are from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m., but according to D. O. Jones, member of the board, these may be extended if the need for it appears. Voters, not previously assessed, who neglect to present themselves at the assessors' office today or tomorrow, will find it impossible to register at their polling place Thursday, or on September 12 or 16, the other registration dates.

Leo A. Riordan, chief county investigator, reports he will complete his investigation by Friday of those who appear for assessment. The names of those reported favorably by the investigators will then be placed on the books of the assessors and the County Treasurer.

More "phantoms" are being discovered every day, according to Riordan. Names from the Helping Hand Society's register have been found in every ward in Pittsburgh but the Fourteenth and the Nineteenth, Riordan stated, and many of them assessed from vacant lots and buildings.

Riordan indicated that his office will watch closely the crowds which are expected to apply for last-minute assessments.

The Registration Commission has announced it will prosecute any person attempting to register with an illegally purchased tax receipt.

LABOR TRUCE SOUGHT AS BLUE EAGLE CAMPAIGN ENDS

OPEN SHOP ROW TO GO BEFORE ROOSEVELT

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—A new truce between industry and labor became the goal of the NRA today in its effort to settle several problems of critical nature.

President Roosevelt, back from a brief vacation, was expected to take the lead in the movement after the situation is explained to him by Administration Hugh S. Johnson.

Satisfied that the Blue Eagle campaign, which came to an official close with the passing of Labor Day, had brought more than 90 per cent of the nation's employers into the fold, NRA officials were keenly anxious to end the labor dispute.

CONFLICTING DEMANDS

The conflicting demands of nonunion manufacturers and organized labor over the open and closed shop issue—with labor demanding the right of complete organization, and industry claiming the law bars the closed shop—were expected to be placed before the President and Attorney General Cummings.

The case of Henry Ford, who has not accepted the automobile code; a buying campaign, protection of consumers, action against Blue Eagle "chiselers" and the bituminous coal situation were among the pressing problems.

The issue between nonunion industry and organized labor was clarified by Johnson's speech in Chicago and by statements of industrial and labor leaders.

While labor must be given the right to organize, Johnson in effect ruled the closed shop would interfere with the freedom of employers under the law, unless they themselves chose this method.

'NEW CHARTER'

But organized labor declared workers have been granted a new charter of economic freedom in that they cannot be discharged because they join a union, and the right of organization must be jealously preserved.

The buying campaign of the NRA begins September 20—with every official urging the public to start buying immediately. Unless the public supports manufacturers who are forced to bear higher costs, the entire movement will fail, Johnson warned his Chicago audience.

When Mr. Roosevelt appealed to the country six weeks ago to make the Blue Eagle campaign a success by Labor Day, the effort was based upon voluntary action.

Now, with some codes proclaimed, hearing dates to be set for recalcitrant industries, and the Blue Eagle placed in millions of windows, the NRA must decide what it will do with violators.

While Johnson has hoped to avoid disciplinary action, it is known some of his aides are planning to select test cases of violations and start court action.

MILK WAR GOES TO ROOSEVELT

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—Farmers and dairymen opposed to the new federal milk agreement for the Philadelphia milkshed plan to lay their troubles before President Roosevelt.

Agents of the regional committee for action said last night that Secretary of Agriculture Wallace "leans the wrong way," and Dr. Clyde L. King, federal milk administrator, and two of his chief assistants favor the distributors, who are accused of getting too much profit.

In order to speed action in Washington, organizers for the committee announced they will attempt to extend the proposed region-wide strike into a national affair, going to New England and the Middle West in the hope of recruiting sympathetic farmers.

The United Farmers' Protective Association meanwhile delivered a five-point ultimatum to Secretary Wallace. In it, Lewis C. Bentzley, president of this group, said the strike will be called if the demands are refused.

By WILLIAM HILLMAN

LONDON, Sept. 5.—Norman H. Davis, Washington's roving ambassador, arrives in London today from New York to meet Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon Wednesday for an important discussion of disarmament prospects and the pressing Austro-German discord.

The Austrian battle against German Nazi propaganda is looming today as Europe's most urgent major diplomatic problem, for the whole fate of the moribund Disarmament Conference is tied up with the Austrian situation and Britain and France are greatly concerned over its latest developments.

Allied haste in approving the 8,000-man increase in the Austrian army, it was learned, was dictated by an unverified report that Nazis were being trained in Bavaria for a "putsch."

Voting Machine School Pupils to Get $5 Daily

Election Board Goes To Classes Same As Youngsters

While the city's children return today to their class rooms after the summer vacation, another type of school also begins its sessions.

This school, however, is for adults and its course of study is devoted to the voting machine.

The course opens at 7:30 p. m. in the County Office Building and, as the college professor has it, is a prerequisite to serving on election boards.

The voting machine "school" is nothing to be taken lightly—you even get a certificate proving to "whom it may concern" that you have passed your course. In fact you have to have your "diploma" to serve on the election board.

Tonight election board members from the First, Second, Third, Fourth, Twenty-second and Twenty-third wards will be instructed. After boards have been taught, the Bureau of Elections will train 436 machine inspectors, to be named by the County Commissioners to serve in city wards which will use the machines.

One feature of the voting machine "school," uncommon to other institutions of learning, is that its pupils, election board members, are paid $5 to attend.

Anyone not a member of an election board but who cares to attend classes will be permitted to do so, according to Maj. William T. Rees, election bureau chief. These, however, won't be paid for attending.

U. S. Lets Ford Case Up to Public Opinion

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—Public opinion today apparently was the first chosen jury of President Roosevelt's recovery administration for deciding the case of Henry Ford's conspicuous absence from NRA membership.

As the rest of the big automobile industry began its first official work day under the Blue Eagle, NRA leaders evidenced every intention—for the present, at least—of "letting nature take its course" with Ford—the industrial campaign's first major holdout.

What the future might bring if the Detroit manufacturer continues indefinitely to operate without the Blue Eagle was uncertain. But the administartion was represented as determined that no important employer should reject the recovery program. The final decision was President Roosevelt's with his powers to license manufacturers and the President was returning to his office today.

DETROIT, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—A vast silence today shrouded whatever plans the Ford Motor Company may have for compliance or competition with the national automobile code which became officially a part of the national recovery program today.

There was a growing belief, with no apparent evidence to contradict it, that Henry Ford expects to "go it alone" without benefit of the NRA Blue Eagle.

Ford, dominant figure, although no longer president of the only major company not a signatory to the automotive pact, continued his vacation in the North Woods near Big Bay, Mich., miles distant from a telephone or a telegraph wire.

Edsel Ford, president of the company and son of its founder, was ending his vacation in Seal Harbor, Me., where he has consistently refused to discuss matters of policy.

He is expected back tomorrow. The elder Ford, according to reports from the vicinity of his Huron mountain retreat, may not return before Friday or Saturday.

BANKER ASSAILS GUARANTEE OF DEPOSITS

Old Errors Repeated On Larger Scale, He Asserts

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—Five thousand bankers were told today by Francis H. Sisson, president of the American Bankers' Association, that the deposit guaranty made by Congress this year would be of "questionable" value.

Speaking of the banking act of 1933, of which the deposit guaranty is a part, guaranteeing deposits up to $2,500, Sisson said:

"Guaranty of deposits plans have proved failures wherever tried in many previous tests, invariably causing weaker rather than stronger banking, and have been abandoned in every case by sadder and wiser states that embraced them for a time."

Sisson claimed that "the haste with which the measure was drawn and the controversial and high strung conditions under which it was enacted resulted in many defects that hamper its practical operation."

He also criticized the act for calling upon the banks to give up investment activities and for giving the Federal Reserve Board at Washington, which he termed "politically appointed" the power to control credit operations of member banks.

Sisson traced the banking legislation to what he termed blaming of the banker for all the nation's economic ills. He said:

"Society sought its scapegoat and landed with remarkable unanimity upon the banker as the demon responsible for all its troubles. The unfortunate part of this wave of slander and attack is that it reacts upon the banker's institution, upon the business of its community."

RECORD OF FEES BY CORONER MISSING

Auditors Fail to Find Sums Paid for Embalming

The latest development has to do with the failure of county auditors to find books showing receipts and disposition of embalming and transcript fees in the office of Coroner W. J. McGregor for the years 1922 to 1927.

RECEIPTS MISSING

Receipt books are missing for four years and the cash books for five years. These would have disclosed the number of $10 fees received from undertakers for embalming of bodies at the morgue prior to turning over the bodies to the undertakers. A fee of 50 cents also is charged for transcripts of each case, with exception of war veterans and those without means.

M. C. Conick, in charge of the county audit, admitted receipt records were missing, but would give no details. He said:

"My men are still at work checking on the coroner's office. We made one partial report to the county commissioners about two months ago which already has been made public.

"Our second report will not be ready for about a month. We haven't given out any information to anyone concerning our second report."

RECORDS NOT FOUND

Conick was asked:

"In your investigation did you find any records missing?"

He replied:

"There were certain records missing. We were unable to find the record book in which record is kept of moneys received for embalming service."

The amount involved has not been disclosed. The entire sum received in such fees by Coroner McGregor from the time he took office in January, 1922, is said to be around $37,000. Until this year the fees are said to have been handled by Chief Deputy Coroner James L. Davidson.

M'GREGOR EXPLAINS

Asked concerning the missing or destroyed records, McGregor said:

"In reference to the audit of thbe affairs of my office, which has been and is now being conducted by Main & Co. for the county, I note the suggestion that certain books are missing.

"I am aware that some of the books of this office were destroyed about 1929. At this time the Morgue Building was being moved from the old to the new site on Fourth avenue. In the moving, some of the books of my administration as well as some books of previous administrations, as I was informed, came into contact with water and were so badly mutilated as to be useless.

"These books had been audited by the Controller's Office and had been available to the general public for a number of years, and so far as I knew there was no good reason for keeping them in their mutilated condition and they were openly destroyed.

"All of my accounts have been regularly audited by the County Controller's Office since I first became Coroner. So far as I am aware, the affairs of my office have been properly conducted and I have gladly welcomed the audit and examination of the same, which the County has been and is now conducting."

WOODSIDE'S VERSION

County Controller R. G. Woodside, custodian of the records, said:

"I know nothing of the records in this case except that my chief deputy made a search for them in the cellar of the courthouse at the request of the auditors two months ago. The records were turned over to this office long before my term of office. So far as I know they were not found."

According to the first report of the auditors on the Coroner's office the fees collected were "turned over" to the chief deputy and deposited in the Potter Title and Trust Company to the credit of the Coroner.

BRITISH LABOR CHEERS NRA

BRIGHTON, Eng., Sept. 5.—(AP.)—The British Trades Union Congress cheered reports today of progress of the American recovery program as presented before it by G. Burke of the American Federation of Labor in a speech.

Burke paid a glowing tribute to the "experiment" and emphasized the Democratic principles of the American recovery legislation.

He said the whole governmental program now in operation was adopted largely in response to demands of organized labor.

His address echoed in part the inaugural speech yesterday of Alexander Walkden, president, who expressed warm admiration for President Roosevelt's recovery policy.

The Trades Union Congress adopted an emergency resolution calling for the conclusion of a commercial treaty between Great Britain and Soviet Russia.

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—Ben Lyon, his wife, Bebe Daniels, cinema stars, arrived yesterday on the Ile de France, with their 6-year-old daughter, Barbara Bebe. They have been in England four months, making pictures.

Asked how she liked working in England, Bebe replied:

"They were all marvelous to us. I liked Elstree so much that I am returning there in the spring to do some more work."

Both Ben and Bebe agreed that is was far better for husband and wife not to play opposite in pictures. Bebe said:

Kansas Governor Opposes Boycott

SALINA, Kan., Sept. 5.—(AP.)—Gov. Adfred M. Landon, Republican, said yesterday he did not indorse "the threats of Gen. Hugh Johnson and others with reference to boycotting those who do not adopt the NRA.?

Addressing the state American Legion convention, he said he did not believe "Johnson has helped his optimistic statements."

WATERS URGES STATE CONTROL TO CUT TAXES

Urges Supervision of Local Government Finances

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—Charles A. Waters, Pennsylvania State Treasurer, today urged wider state supervision of local government expenses as a means of obtaining "better government at less cost."

Speaking at the annual convention of state auditors, controllers and treasurers, he advocated these steps to bring "up with the times" government, which he said "always lags behind business:"

State control and audits of county budgets.

State control of local financing through borrowing, bond issues, large loans, establishment and operation of sinking funds.

Centralized purchasing through a state agency.

State administration of public schools and roads.

Elimination of "thousands of useless offices and salaries and fees now usesslу appertaining to others." And

A state-controlled budget for counties, he said, is "feasible and practical" and would give the taxpayer "the largest return in services and facilities for his money." He said:

"Tradition and local sentiment fall before the demand for lower taxes and financial self preservation.

"Centralized purchasing looms big in the general scheme if we are to consider that the average government, big or little, spends from 20 per cent to 30 per cent of its current operating budget for material."

Waters cited Pennsylvania's experience in the centralized control of hospital appropriations and centralized purchasing for state institutions, asserting the cost has been "materially reduced" from that of "the old plan of promiscuous purchasing." He said:

"The last local function which was taken over by Pennsylvania was that of road building and maintenance. In 1911 the first state road act was passed, and approximately 8,500 miles of road were taken over. We now have a total road mileage under state control in excess of 35,000, more than one-third of the total road mileage of the state. In addition the state has taken over bridges, and the net result is that the counties and townships have been relieved of the burden of more than 35 per cent of the road mileage of the commonwealth."

EXPERTS FIGHT SLEEP MALADY

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—Four noted scientists were due here from Washington today to join other federal, state and city public health authorities in their efforts to wipe out the "sleeping sickness" epidemic and to determine its sources and methods of transmission.

The newcomers in the so far unsuccessful war on the malady are Drs. M. V. Veldee, L. F. Badger, J. O. Dean and W. G. Workmen, who will make an extensive field study of the epidemic.

The continuance and growth of the epidemic has made it necessary to open a second encephalitis ward at the Isolation Hospital, where more than 90 cases are under treatment. The new ward will care for about 50 additional patients.

Papers Say Lindberghs Will Live in Denmark

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—Reports that Col. Charles A. Lindbergh intends to buy a house near Copenhagen in which to live during flying seasons when a projected trans-Atlantic air route via Greenland and Iceland is established, were published today in several Danish newspapers.

By W. W. CHAPLIN

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—New reason was disclosed today despite denials to give additional credence to the growing belief among the air-minded that Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh will fly back to America across the Atlantic.

It was learned that Col. Lindbergh himself thinks he is equipped to overcome the greatest single obstacle to accomplishment of such a flight along the route they are expected to follow, the 2,000-mile hop from the Azores to Bermuda.

That Col. Lindbergh thinks he has a flying range of 2,000 miles with his present equipment was learned from Earl Osborn, of New York, who has superintended installation work on the Lindbergh planes.

He said:

"I put new fuel tanks in the Lindbergh plane after the Far Eastern flight. The new tanks hold 500 gallons. I estimate that gives a flying range of something over 1,500 miles. But Col. Lindbergh thinks he has 2,000 miles.

"I have discussed the matter with him and told him I disagreed, but he is confident he is right."

Recent information indicates the Lindbergh report would virtually eliminate further consideration of a possible air trade route from America to Europe by way of Labrador, Greenland and Iceland.

BLONDE TO DENY 'OTHER WOMAN' ROLE AT TUB TRIAL

STATE ASSAILS DEFENSE OF LAMSON

Hopes to Show More Than 'Platonic' Friendship

By ERNESTINE BALL
International News Service.

SAN JOSE, Cal., Sept. 5.—The Lamson murder trial is scheduled again today to prove that anything can happen, the prosecution contends, to pale and listless love!

David Lamson, former Stanford publishing executive, is accused by the state of going suddenly primitive, and killing his wife, Allene, whose anemic love, they claim, did not meet the requirements of his ardor.

Today in this courtroom, Sara Kelley will throw off the mantle of the "other woman," woven for her by the prosecution, and attempt to prove to the jury that her friendship with Lamson was just a pale and listless business affair.

FACES GRILLING

Usually a study in brittle blonde coolness, glib, with eyes that flash lightning when Lamson is mentioned, the defense hopes that the end of this day will leave a very different picture of Sara Kelley with the jury. Prosecuting Attorney Lindsay said:

"Mrs. Kelley has been cast for the role of the misunderstood victim of gossip, and she will try to act that part to get sympathy, but I don't think she can carry it off. By the time we finish the association of Sara and Lamson won't seem innocuous."

This murder trial never once is moved from the rarified air of college setting. Even the "other woman," the dashing divorcee, Mrs. Sara Kelley, is a former Stanford co-ed.

Today will find a large contingent of Stanford friends of Allene Lamson in the courtroom. These friends are awaiting with great interest the apperance of Dr. Margaret Lamson, sister of David Lamson, on the witness stand. She was physician as well as sister-in-law to the dead Allene.

ALLENE'S WHISTLE

The whistle that the lovely Allene wore around her neck—the whistle that they say was always under her pillow at night—the courtroom is waiting for an explanation of that. Someone in the family explained:

"She was subject to fainting spells and could whistle for help when she felt an attack coming on."

Those who wondered at the contents of the tray that Lamson says he fixed for his wife around 4 o'clock in the morning when she called to him she could not sleep may find the answer to the cup of coffee in Dr. Lamson's testimony. Coffee was one of the stimulants used, so they say, when Allene felt weak, faint.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—An unidentified man, described by Alfred C. Read, Jr., as a "star witness," was one of three persons accompanying him last night when he left here for Los Angeles and the court battle in which his affections are valued at $100,000.

Read said he was taking the three to Los Angeles to testify against his former wife, Marian, when her $100,000 alienation of affections suit against Claire Windsor, film actress, is resumed today.

The former Oakland broker intimated the "star witness," reported to be a musician, was the person he said on his arrival in Oakland Saturday that he would take to Los Angeles to testify even if he had "to bind and gag him."

Clarice Champion, Read's former secretary, and Frank Tower, an Oakland friend, were the other two prospective witnesses.

Gorki Ending to Alger Tale Puzzles Orphan

OMAHA, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—Bewildered by the Gorki ending to his Alger story, Peter Christopolus, 14, today strove, in jerky sentences, to explain what had happened to wreck his scheduled adoption by Jean Strengs, wealthy Paterson (N. J.) silk dyer.

Peter, strony-faced, said:

"I did the best I could. I tried to be what they wanted me to be, but I guess I couldn't. I couldn't make out just what they wanted.

"Mr. Strengs said I was different, that was all. I guess I hadn't ever been used to a home. They said I wasn't affectionate enough. I didn't fit in."

So, Peter today was again numbered among the wards at Father Flannagan's boys' home, whence he was lifted two months ago for a trial period as the Streng's foster son after the family had noticed in his picture a resemblance to their own boy who drowned a year before.

Peter doesn't know himself, for sure, why the adoption plan blew up. Strengs, he knows, has been quoted as saying that Peter appeared to be ungrateful, inconsiderate. Peter feels that Strengs expected the impossible.

Since his return last week to Omaha, the boy has remained in seclusion at the home. Today he appeared rather embittered for his age.

He said:

"I wasn't disobedient. How could I be? They never told me to do anything. I wasn't arrogant. I didn't have anything to be arrogant about."

Soviet Intrigue Bared In Parole Case Here

Hints of international intrigue and the names of far places colored a hearing before Judge James H. Gray today when Robert F. Hunter applied for release from the Western Penitentiary.

Hunter informed Judge Gray that he had ben sentenced to serve eight years for a fraud in Coatesville, Pa., in 1925, but had been released on parole in 1929.

White Russians in New York, plotting the overthrow of the Bolshevik regime, sent him to Paris as their agent, Hunter said. But Hunter obtained a passport under a false name, he said. He said he failed to report his change of address to the parole board.

When he returned he was arrested and sent to Atlanta for two years on a charge of perjury for swearing to false passport information.

A $1,000 reward was offered by the State Highway Patrol for the arrest and conviction of Brantlinger's slayer.

The three women, who live near Johnstown, said they were together at the time Brantlinger was shot by bandits outside a filling station near Bridgeville.

However, the young men are still being held by the highway patrolmen at Beaver Falls pending investigation into their auto and a .32 caliber revolver found in the car.

The three were taken into custody yesterday near Beaver Falls when they seemed confused under questioning by the highway patrolmen, who were stopping all cars.

New $6,000,000 Expo Building Urged at Point

A $6,000,000 building at the Point is being planned by interests working in co-operation with the old Western Pennsylvania Exposition Society.

P. N. Chamberlain, said to be formerly connected with the building of a town hall in Winnipeg, is in Pittsburgh attempting to organize a syndicate to build a structure which would include a large auditorium, dance hall, garage, restaurant and four floors of space for display of products of the Pittsburgh district.

The Exposition Society is to carry on in the management of the new building, it is reported, and efforts are being made to obtain an extension of a grant of the land from the city, which expires in 1936.

The city at present is obligated to pay the society $30,000 a year rental for the old building under a 20-year lease expiring in 1939.

How the money would be raised to build the new building has not been disclosed, except that space would be leased to industrial concerns to display products.

John L. Porter, president of the society, said he would not discuss the new project for publication prior to its introduction in City Council.

Assistant City Solicitor Thomas M. Benner has been consulted on the plan and was called back from a vacation to look into its legal details, it is reported.

The auditorium in the new building would seat 14,000, it is reported—enough to house some of the largest conventions. The building would occupy the site of the present structure along with additional ground and would be approximately 840 feet long.

The attack on young Kaltenborn is the third assault on an American reported within the last week. The other victims were Dr. Daniel Mulvihill, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Samuel D. Bossard, of Media, Pa., Princeton University honor student.

GUNMAN TAKEN BY CROQUET PLAYERS

International News Service.

MEADE, Kan., Sept. 5.—A man believed to be George (Machine Gun) Kelly, widely sought in connection with the kidnaping of Charles F. Urschel at Oklahoma City, was held in jail here today.

The suspect, who refuses to talk to officers, was one of three men who escaped with a woman companion after engaging in a gun battle with officers at Enid, Okla., late yesterday.

CAPTURED BY GROUP

He was captured by a group of men and women croquet players, after he attempted to steal a car from one of the women.

The other two men and their woman companion escaped during the confusion.

The fugitives had wrecked the car in which they were riding when they ran into a ditch at the city park.

The man believed to be Kelly then walked to the place where Mrs. P. E. Prather, wife of a school principal, was standing and thrusting a gun against her side ordered her to hand over the keys to her car.

WOMAN SCREAMS

She screamed, and her husband, who was playing croquet nearby, leaped upon the man. Dewey Barnes, another player, came to Prather's aid. As the two grappled with the man, Mrs. Anson Horning, wife of another school teacher, hit the intruder on the head several times with a croquet mallet.

By the time the officers reached the scene, the suspect was lying on the ground with four or five men sitting on top of him.

Machine Guns Guard Bailey After Escape

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—Stone walls and steel bars were reinforced today by keen eyes and ready machine guns to keep the word of Joseph B. Keenan, director of the nation's anti-gangster campaign, that Harvey Bailey, alleged plotter of desperate crimes, would never again escape jail with his life.

The steel doors of the Oklahoma County Jail clanged shut behind Bailey last night scarcely a dozen hours after his startling escape from the county jail at Dallas, Tex., by means of a pistol which Bailey said he found in the mattress of his bunk.

The result of his daring break, the only successful one ever made there, was to hasten his removal to Oklahoma City to face charges of plotting the kidnaping of Charles F. Urschel, oil millionaire, for $200,000, one of the largest ransoms ever paid. The trial is set for September 18. Bailey probably will be arraigned today or tomorrow.

Meanwhile, authorities at Dallas launched an investigation of how Bailey obtained the pistol with which he gained his freedom and saws with which he escaped his solitary cell enabling him to surprise a jailer and trusty, who were bringing his breakfast.

Recaptured at Ardmore, four hours after forcing his way from the Dallas Jail and kidnaping Turnkey Nick Tresp, Bailey, manacled hand and foot, was brought here by a five-car caravan of heavily armed officers.

Slain Gunman's Widow Marked for Gang Death

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—The Chicago Evening American today quoted an unnamed prisoner in the county jail as having informed federal operatives that Chicago gangsters had marked Mrs. Frank Nash, widow of the convict slain in the Kansas City Union Depot massacre, for death. The newspaper said:

"William (Three-Fingered Jack) White, gunman and labor racketeer, has raised $4,000 from the underworld to be used in an effort to free Mrs. Nash.

"The underworld wants Mrs. Nash free so she can be killed, because she committed the unforgivable sin, according to the code of gangdom, of giving information to authorities."

The newspaper quoted the informant as saying the plot to release Mrs. Nash was made in a Chicago resort supposedly operated by "Tough Tony" Capezio and in a roadhouse in suburban Melrose Park.

The newspaper quoted the federal informant as saying Mrs. Nash went to the authorities in a belief the gunmen had "double-crossed her husband and killed him intentionally rather than accidentally."

5,000 CANVASS CITY, COUNTY FOR NRA

PURPOSE OF DRIVE

Objectives and accomplishments of the "Spend in September" movement, as discerned by leaders from all walks of life, include:

It will bring back good times.

It will help employers to create new jobs.

It will keep men employed now on their jobs.

It will expand circulation.

It will give the buyer the advantages of vanishing depression prices.

Robert K. Cochrane, county commander of the American Legion, commenting today on the Sun-Telegraph campaign, said:

"I urge all the members of the American Legion in the county to back such a splendid movement.

"Any movement to stimulate buying I believe is good. We have to have a turnover of the dollar in order to get the stock off the shelf, and in turn new stock will be bought from the manufacturer and the wheels of prosperity will start moving. The people who have money have been backward and holding on to it. Now is the time when they should step forward and buy."

'ELEGANT IDEA'

Charles H. West, president of the Westmoreland Glass Company, commented:

"It's an elegant movement. We are trying to do our part, having bought twice as much as we did in August, and I think it is a good thing if everybody spends a dollar or two extra. I am sure that everybody is in sympathy with the President's recommendation."

Norman Allderdice, president of the Arch Machinery Company, Inc., president of the Pittsburgh Soap and Chemical Company and vice president of the Perfect Laundries of Pittsburgh, said:

"I'm in favor of such a movement and I think that everybody should spend within their means to help the NRA. The idea is to get away from hoarding."

William L. Goodstein, adjutant of the Jewish War Veterans, Post No. 59, stated:

"The Jewish War Veterans passed a resolution at their last meeting indorsing NRA and volunteering to help in the 'Buy in September' movement."

'CITIZENS' DUTY TO BUY'

Robert G. Woodside, County Controller and past national commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, said:

"It is the duty of those who have money to spend it now and help to bring back good times. I am heartily in favor of any movement to get the people to buy."

Christian J. Walter, president of the Associated Artists, said:

"Anybody interested in paintings should buy now in order to save, for art, like many other things, is going to cost more in a very short time. I would urge the people not only to buy in September, but to buy American."

"Being in the merchandise business, I think the 'Buy in September movement is the most wonderful movement ever put forth. It is one of the surest ways to bring back prosperity. Everybody should spend and co-operate with the President during the next few weeks as well as later on."

M. F. Tighe, international president of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers of North America, commended the 'Buy in September' program in addressing the Labor Day celebration yesterday in West View Park.

GOV. E. C. JOHNSON

COLORADO CHIEF LAUDS NRA HERE

Out of the West today came a message to Pittsburgh that the 'Spend in September' drive is going over with a bang. And the messenger was no less a person than Gov. E. C. Johnson, chief executive of Colorado.

Catching his breath in transferring from a Pennsylvania train to a Pennsylvania Air Line plane for Washington, the Governor said:

"People back home are backing up this buy now movement with a fine spirit. The consumers are giving all they have and the employers are going along great. But, of course, we have our chiselers, but not many.

"You know, everybody out our way is hoping the NRA brings Henry Ford into line. They think that is the real test."

Gov. Johnson is Washington bound to seek a $20,000,000 loan from the federal public works fund for a state highway system in his home state.

PLEDGES 'BUY' CAMPAIGN

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—A definite promise to start, around September 20, a national campaign to get the public to buy freely, was made yesterday by Gen. Hugh S. Johnson in a Labor Day address to the Illinois State Federation of Labor.

With this Johnson coupled a warning that not only operation of the wage-raising, hour-shortening code provisions of the NRA which he heads must increase the cost of things, but that "in finance and fiscal policy the slightest move toward inflation might send prices skyrocketing."

Working Hours Cut In New Bus Code

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—(INS.)—A new code of fair competition for the motor bus industry, expected to contain sharp reduction in maximum hours of employments for drivers, was being drafted today by the NRA.

In the code submitted by the motor bus operators last week a maximum work weeks of 56 hours was requested but labor representatives protested high speed and huge buses placed too much strain on drivers for such long hours to be in the interest of public safety.

SHOES

Originally 10.75 to 18.50

3.85

This is the largest, single purchase of shoes that I have ever made. I did it at this time—knowing that the group includes not only Fall and Winter styles, but also many Summer shoes—because they are Saks-Fifth Ave. Shoes. And I could offer them to you at a price which is probably one-fourth of what next season's price will have to be.

I know that many of you are taking late vacations. You'll need new Summer shoes. Still others of you have told me that you have recognized the wisdom of buying good shoes at the end of the season to avoid the higher costs at the beginning of the next. This is your chance. Saks lead in styling. They're either so individual or so classic that they're never dated. You can't own too many pairs at this price.

Many of you have worn Saks-Fifth Ave. Shoes in the past. Recently you have felt their price was beyond you. Many of you have always wanted to wear Saks-Fifth Ave. Shoes but compromised on shoes of a cheaper construction because of price alone. This is your opportunity! On this page you'll read the quotation from the Industrial By-Products and Research Corporation, attesting the high quality of these shoes. And I personally guarantee every shoe in this sale to be a genuine Saks-Fifth Ave. Shoe. Every one bears the famous label.

Quotation from The Industrial By-Products and Research Corp.

"Saks Shoes at three eighty-five a pair have been carefully examined and we are glad to certify to their high quality. Most of the shoes have been made by the finest craftsmen in the country. They represent the highest quality of workmanship in which painstaking effort has been exercised in order to properly mould the raw material. The leather is moulded so that it will more closely fit the contour of the heel and the foot as a whole and therefore permanently retain their shape. The labor alone involved in making a pair of these shoes far exceeds your retail price."

BILL PADDING CHARGED TO BAR PROBE

had been protected. He further charged that the "committee did not see fit to extend the investigation into its own membership."

ANDERSON ANSWERS

Denying that Riordan had questioned him at any time regarding the expenditures, Anderson ansyered the charges as follows:

"All funds paid to me by the County Commissioners have been used for the legitimate purposes and needs of the committee and for no other purpose. In addition to all the funds paid me, I have expended over $1,300 of my personal funds because for the continued delay in honoring the committee's bills. All witness fees have been kept in a special account subject to the demand of persons to whom they are due. I have not seen a copy of Mr. Riordan's report, but I'm prepared to make a full explanation of any items which he might question."

Attorney Gifford K. Wright, chairman of the bar committee, declined to make a statement before receiving a copy of the charges. He said no information had come to him that an investigation was being made. Wright said he planned to confer with the Commissioners this afternoon.

BAR COMMITTEE

The Bar Association Committee consists of Chairman Wright, Secretary Anderson, Judge Benjamin Lencher, Attorneys Richard C. Long, Robbin B. Welf, Charles B. Prichard, John H. Sorg and John J. Heard. The committee was appointed March 6, 1931, by President Judge James Macfarlane and since that time submitted bills amounting to $14,592.77 to the Commissioners for payment, Reordan's report said. The bills were paid by the county.

DUPLICATION OF ITEMS

Riordan said he investigated the bills which included the following items:

Three hundred dollars per month for Anderson's salary and bills of stenographers, investigators, charges for witness fees, stationery and office expenses.

There are additional bills amounting to $2,953.88 now before the commissioners for payment, Riordan says. Riordan recommends that these bills do not be paid.

Riordan's report in part said:

"An examination of the accounts paid discloses on their face a duplication of items amounting to the sum of $1,069.50, which Donald C. Anderson, secretary of the said committee admits having received and for which he offers no satisfactory explanation. These duplicate bills, as well as all other bills, were approved by Gifford K. Wright, chairman of the committee."

'FLAGRANT DECEPTION'

"This flagrant deception led me to delve into various items of paid bills with the disclosure that there had been collected from Allegheny County moneys amounting to $2,046.47, which was represented to be for stenographic services, investigation service, stationery supplies, auditors services and witness fees paid by this committee, but which were not incurred or paid but were appropriated by Donald C. Anderson for his own use.

"One thousand four hundred seventy-seven dollars and fifty cents of this amount represents moneys over and above the amount actually due divers persons, according to their own statements and $1,568.97 of this amount represents money actually due divers persons as set forth in the itemized statements, but has not been paid to the parties entitled to this money, thus making a total of $2,046.47."

Selecting several of the bills to be included in his report Riordan stated:

"Records show that Anderson received from the county $404.50 for stenographic service for Edna M. Carr and $7 for Miss Carr for affidavits. Miss Carr's statement is that her total bill was for $65 and she received only $25, leaving a balance of $40 due her. Also that $5.25 is due for affidavits. The current statement of Anderson shows $20 due Miss Carr. Mr. Anderson received from the county over the total bills for this woman, $341.25 which he has appropriated."

Riordan also said that Anderson received $1,411.25 for stenographic services for Harriet C. Thomas, whose bill, Riordan stated, was $1,303.25. This, Riordan said, indicated Anderson received $108 over and above the amount really due.

As another example Riordan stated that C. M. Dravo, an investigator for the committee, submitted a bill for $1,025 and received this amount in payment. Riordan said the county paid Anderson $1,625 for the service rendered by Dravo and that Anderson collected $600 over and above the amount of the bill.

COMMITTEE SCORED

A number of other items are included in Riordan's report, showing, Riordan states, that more money had been collected from the county for these bills than the bills really amounted to.

Riordan said:

"It thus appears that of the amount of $14,592.77 already paid by the county, Mr. Anderson benefitted to the extent of $9,465.97, of which $6,350 was represented as his salary. The amount that was actually paid over the amount of legitimate bills being $3,115.97, $1,069.50 of which was received by duplication of bills and $1,477.50 in amounts paid over and above actual expenses.

"This conduct is particularly reprehensible in that it is incident to a proceeding which was intended to elevate the ethics of lawyers and to maintain a high esteem for the profession."

Riordan further charged the committee had discriminated and had been biased in its investigating, singling out certain lawyers while others were not molested.

Racketeer Origin Found in Bible, Roper Says

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—The "gangster-racketeer" of today had his inception in Biblical antiquity, Secretary of Commerce Roper declared in a demand that "crime must go."

Roper, in an address, traced the original racketeer to 2,000 years before Christ, and identified him as Jacob, brother of Esau.

Citing the twenty-fifth chapter of Genesis, Roper declared Jacob, "with the spirit of the racketeer in his heart," obtained Esau's birthright in exchange for a mess of pottage when Esau came to him hungry.

SHOOTS WOMAN, KILLS SELF

WASHINGTON, Pa., Sept. 5.—Mrs. Elsie Bedillion Casto, 28, was in a critical condition in Washington Hospital today with four bullet wounds in her head, inflicted, police said, by William White, 40, who later shot and killed himself in the woman's apartment on West Chestnut street last night.

Sergt. George I. Pierce, of the State Police, and Chief William B. Dinsmore, of the county detectives, said they learned White had been attentive to Mrs. Casto, and that she had been trying to avoid him. Miss Helen Miller, 22, who lives in an adjoining apartment, told them, they said, that last night White went to the apartment and she heard him quarreling with Mrs. Casto. When she heard the shooting she ran down a fire escape and called police.

Police said White chased the woman into the bathroom where she barricaded herself. He broke down the door, shot her four times, then ran into another room and shot himself. He was dead when police arrived.

HURRICANE RIPS TEXAS COAST, CITY PERILED

said the winds were "terrific." He said:

"The wind is blowing about 80 miles an hour now. Shingles and boards are flying through the air and the wind is blowing so hard I can't tell much about what is happening outside the station."

Reports from other surrounding towns attested to severity of the storm. They told how two-story buildings were shaken to their foundations, frame buildings crumpled and trees were uprooted.

Brownsville boarded up yesterday as reports from the weather bureau indicated the hurricane would strike nearby. Businessmen took steps to protect their stocks, residents of summer shacks along the shore moved to safety in public buildings and everyone kept a weather eye for word of progress of the disturbance.

CROPS PERILED

Reports of winds reaching almost 100 miles an hour presaged considerable damage to the rich citrus country known as the winter garden of Texas.

Frequent advisory warnings from the weather bureau at Washington had given ample opportunity for ships to reach the comparative safety of harbors and none was known to have been at sea as the hurricane moved westward.

Hundreds of persons along the coastline also took advantage of the government advices. They packed what possessions they could assemble quickly and moved to such interior points as Houston and even San Antonio. A bus driver arriving at the latter city told how one woman donned a bathing suit as the trip from the coast was started because she feared she might have to swim before she reached her destination.

RELIEF PLANS MADE

The state and federal governments laid plans to care for refugees and to aid the stricken area. Sections of the Texas highway patrol assembled in San Antonio and Austin, ready for a quick dash south. The activities of the American Red Cross were centered here, ready on a moment's notice to enter the area.

For 24 hours before the hurricane struck, roads leading from Corpus Christi to Beeville and San Antonio were crowded by families fleeing ahead of the big blow, carrying dogs, cats, parrots, canaries and household goods.

Concern also was felt for several persons believed to have remained at Tarpon Inn, on Mustang Island near Port Aransas, 23 miles from Corpus Christi. A seven-foot tide was reported to have swept the island shortly before midnight last night.

STORM SWEEPS NORTH FLORIDA

International News Service.

TAMPA, Fla., Sept. 5.—Twisting capriciously the tropical hurricane which leaped from the Florida east coast in the dead of night Sunday, boring a 75-mile-wide path across the state, today was blowing itself out in the sparsely-settled portions of central north Florida.

Heading almost on a direct line across the Tampa Bay for the wide expanses of the Gulf of Mexico, the storm swerved in the night and surged upstate toward the Georgia line.

It was reported early today central between Lake City and Quincy, following a course parallel to the gulf.

Florida turned its attention today to restoring crippled communication lines, surveying the damage to its fruit crop, and clearing up the debris. The state weathered the hurricane comparatively unscathed.

In its destructive path, the violent gale apparently left only one dead, scattered property damage estimated at $2,000,000 and highways littered with fallen trees and debris. The citrus crop suffered the major damage, estimates running as high as 75 per cent in the area hit.

100 HOMELESS ON BAHAMA ISLE

NASSAU, Bahama Islands, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—Returning from an aerial survey of territory swept by Saturday's hurricane, Sir Bede Clifford, governor of the Bahamas, today reported severe damage at Harbour Island.

He reported one killed and three injured at Bogue settlement, a small village near Harbour Island, and less damage than expected at Spanish Wells, another small island. He said:

"I am relieved to find the damage at Spanish Wells much less than anticipated. At Harbour Island the situation is more serious. The worst feature is the injuries to individuals at Bogue settlement, where we were unable to land. The government will assist in rebuilding damaged areas."

At Harbour Island 100 were made homeless, many churches wrecked and all crops ruined, the governor said.

Typhoon Sweeping Korea Kills Many

TOKIO, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—Rengo (Japanese) news agency reported from Seoul, Korea, today that 14 persons were killed, 13 known to be missing and hundreds of houses were partially flooded when a typhoon swept Southern Korea.

The storm also caused property damage in Western Japan, but no casualties were reported.

Surging Waves Flooding Corpus Christi Streets

'Worst Yet to Come,' Fear Expressed by Forecaster

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex., Sept. 5.—(AP.)—Surging waves from a high tide swept through the lower streets of Corpus Christi's business district early today as J. P. McAuliffe, government weather forecaster, predicted "the worst is yet to come" from a tropical hurricane which lashed the city through the night.

McAuliffe declared:

"The water is four feet deep over the North Beach resort peninsula and is running waist deep over Chapparal street, a block back from the waterfront."

He predicted the water would be several feet deep in the entire business district by noon.

A section 250 feet long had been washed out of the causeway connecting Corpus Christi with the San Antonio-Houston highway, across an arm of Corpus Christi Bay. The only road open was by way of Alice.

GALE OFFSHORE

McAuliffe said reports he had received indicated the most severe part of the storm still was ganging offshore, somewhere south of Corpus Christi, between this city and Brownsville. He explained:

"The wind is steady now, in the East, but if it should shift into the southeast, I'm afraid the worst is yet to come for Corpus Christi, and the water will come higher here."

The gale maintained a steady blow at 48 miles an hour during most of the night, although gusts at times reached a velocity of 60 miles an hour or more.

From a low of 29.64 at midnight, the barometer had risen to 29.72 at 7 a. m. today. McAuliffe said:

"The last report I received from M. S. Schnurbusch, the Brownsville observer, at 7 p. m., last night, was that the wind was west-northwest, blowing at 50 miles an hour, indicating that the storm was north of Brownsville. The barometer reading was then 28.98 there. However, telephone and telegraph lines were broken immediately afterward and I have had nothing from there today.

"If the storm continues in the course indicated by that report, the people half way or two-thirds of the way from Corpus Christi to Brownsville are in greater distress than those in either city."

An early survey of the havoc revealed no loss of life here but McAuliffe said he had just received a report a Missouri Pacific passenger train bound from San Antonio to Corpus Christi was marooned on a bridge across an arm of the bay and the conductor had appealed for assistance, saying the water was rising and the train could not get through. Later the passengers were brought to Corpus Christi in automobiles.

The North Beach area here was under water for approximately six miles and McAuliffe said the tide, instead of breaking into surf on the beach, was breaking several blocks back from the usual shoreline.

Gene Stewart, who returned from a survey of the waterfront area, said:

"There are houses floating around out on North Beach and the surf is undermining the foundations of several hotels."

The high water apparently was caused both by the high tide on Corpus Christi bay, which lies on one side of North Beach, and from backwater in Nueces bay, on the other side of the peninsula.

The causeway extending across an arm of Corpus Christi bay to the San Antonio-Houston highway was under four feet of water.

WATER WAIST-DEEP

Police guards who kept vigil throughout the night of screaming hurricane winds waded waist deep in water, amid the debris of smashed skiffs, sailing boats and pier sheds cluttering the bay front and streets of the business district. By order of the Mayor no one was allowed in the low-lying business district without special police permission.

Those of the city's 35,000 inhabitants who remained after being warned of the storm's approach sought safety in stoutly constructed public buildings or in the residential area above a bluff which rises behind the business district.

Once during the night the yacht Japonica broke from its moorings in the bay and fears were felt for the safety of four men aboard, but a spotlight from the roof of the Nueces Hotel was turned on the craft and it was able to make fast again and ride out the worst of the blow.

No reports had been received early today from Port Aransas, on Mustang Island, 23 miles from Corpus Christi. The island was said in unconfirmed reports to have been swept by a seven-foot tide last night but the fate of several persons who remained there as well as that of coast guardsmen stationed at Port Aransas, remained undetermined. No direct reports had been received from the station since communication lines were swept away late yesterday.

INVENTS MASK, DIES IN TEST

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—Lawrence Horvath, 44, looked into the future and saw a world catastrophe.

He saw the nations at war again—millions of men, women and children dying in the fumes of gas bombs dropped from the sky. He said:

"I will save humanity. I will invent a gas mask that will save the world."

Yesterday the model mask was finished.

He clamped it over his mouth and nose and, to test it, connected the intake to the gas range by means of a tube. He turned on the gas.

This morning his wife and two children, returning from a vacation, found him on the kitchen floor—dead of asphyxiation.

DEER DEFIES 7 RESCUERS

WATKINS GLEN, N. Y., Sept. 5.—(AP.)—Representatives of the State Conservation Department decided at dawn today that the Watkins Glen State Park captive deer had overstayed its leave and began active measures to chase it from its prison ledge on a wall of the chasm.

But the deer had different ideas about leaving the spot which has been its home for 10 days and didn't enter into the spirit of the chase at all.

Seven men were lowered to the spot 50 feet below on the face of the cliff where his seven-point highness has been marooned, and for nearly two hours attempted to drive the buck over the bridge constructed seven days ago across the 25-foot gorge.

It was hard to say which was the most tired after the spirited chase. The deer nibbled thoughtfully at the foliage growing around its prison, while the vanquished hunters retired to get their breath and think up other plans.

Park officials figured today that close to 350,000 visitors had passed through the glen to see the deer, which was trapped a week ago Saturday with its doe. The doe was killed in a fall from the ledge.

BOARD FIGHTS PRICE-FIXING

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—Any sort of price-fixing provisions in permanent codes, especially in those for the retail trades, will be fought by the Consumers' Advisory Board of the NRA.

Methods of evolving substitute provisions were discussed today at a meeting of the board, of which Mrs. Charles C. Rumsey, daughter of the late E. W. Harriman, is chairman.

The board plans to offer substitute specific provisions, directed at every important sort of unfair price-cutting, for the vague general provisions now proposed in such codes as those for the general merchants and the druggists.

As a result of adoption of a general anti-price-fixing policy by the board, there will be further delay in the drafting of a "master" code for the nation's 5,000,000 retailers.

TATE CLAN KIN WOUNDED

International News Service.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Sept. 5.—Another episode, distinctly different from the rowdy, feudal and shoot-up chapters found in their past history, was written today in the log of the Tate mountain family.

Previous stories relative to the Tates of the hills between Haydentown and White House, within 10 miles of Uniontown, depicted them as principals in the long-standing Tate-Brownfield feud. Every so often there is a flare-up of the enmity in which gun-play is plentiful.

Several months ago, Isley Tate, the rugged, merciless leader of the Tate clan, was fatally shot from ambush.

The new episode concerns wounds suffered by Carson Tate, 27, nephew of Isley. Whether or not it should be labeled attempted suicide puzzled authorities today. Carson Tate is suffering from injuries to the head. Two accounts have reached police—one that he tried to take his own life with a gun because of domestic troubles; the other that he was hurt in a fall.

OWN GUN K. O.'S KANE BANDIT

KANE, Pa., Sept. 5.—A pistol that wouldn't fire today resulted in a severe beating and capture for one of four bandits who attempted to hold up the Longview Inn near here and rob William A. Cleer, 56, of his holiday receipts.

The bandit was slugged into unconsciousness by his own weapon and police were unable to obtain his name. His pals fled during the slugging spree staged by Cleer when he refused to submit calmly to the orders of the robbers.

Clear said two of the men entered his inn while the others waited in a machine. None wore masks and all were armed. State police were enlisted in a search for the three fugitives in a teletype message.

CUBA'S ARMY STAGES NEW REVOLT

there were numerous disorders. ABC headquarters in Prado avenue were in an uproar.

Automobiles loaded with young men, armed with pistols and rifles, dashed about the streets. Fears were expressed that there would be bloodshed before nightfall.

COMMISSION MEMBERS

The commission is composed of:

Guillermo Portela, 48, professor of penal law at the Havana University. He was educated in Germany.

Jose Marzarri, 40, a lawyer, long an opponent of Machado, the author of a plan for land division which President de Cespedes has been studying.

Ramon Grau San Martin, 45, professor of anatomy at the university, who served for a long time as the professors' revolutionary delegate in the United States.

Porforio Franco, 45, a banker.

Sergio Calbo, 39, magazine editor and leader of the youth movement. He headed the unsuccessful revolt at Gibara in 1931.

The radical section of the ABC went along with the new revolutionary movement. An official delegation representing the ABC was, however, excluded from the meeting at which the commission was selected. It was reported that United States Ambassador Sumner Welles had an observer at that gathering.

COALITION SPLIT

The junta bitterly criticized what was described as the Fascist trend of the ABC. The rift between the ABC radicals and the more conservative group of that organization meant an important breakup in the coalition which had been backing de Cespedes.

The commission of five had planned the formal transfer of power without further to-do. At the last moment this plan was changed.

While the President was being awaited at the palace the members of the commission remained in conference in a pantry in the Military Club until de Cespedes

The navy, which arrested Chief of Staff Gonzalez del Real and other officials at the time of the uprising, later released them when they declared they were in sympathy with the revolutionary program.

Sergt. Angel Gonzalez was named chief of staff.

WANTS TRIAL, MACHADO SAYS

MONTREAL, Sept. 5.—A desire to return to Cuba and stand trial on charges made against him by his opponents as soon as a stable government has been established was expressed here today by Former President Gerardo Machado.

His announcement was made as news reached his headquarters here of the capitulation of the government of Provisional President Carlos Manuel de Cespedes to a revolutionary junta. Macharo said:

"As soon as there is in power a government that can guarantee my safe conduct, I want to go back to stand trial and be exonerated of the scurrilous charges that have been made against me.

"There is nothing in my administration of which I am ashamed."

WILD ELEPHANT PERILS HUNTER

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—Details of how he faced a charging bull elephant with one shell in his gun were related in a letter from F. Trubee Davison, president of the American Museum of Natural History, made public today.

Davison, who described the encounter as "the most exciting and dangerous two minutes I have ever been through," was hunting with his wife and the Martin Johnsons at Nairobi, Kenya Colony.

On August 3, he wrote in a letter to his sons, the party encountered a herd of 12 or 15 elephants and Davison shot a calfless cow. He wrote:

"Immediately the herd stampeded and milled around in every direction, as they didn't seem to know where the danger was. But within two or three seconds a big bull picked us out and came for us like an express train."

It was at this point that Davison faced the charging beast.

WASHINGTON RUSHES FOUR WARSHIPS TO CUBA

Forces of Marines and Bluejackets capable of providing a respectable landing force are aboard the warcraft.

It was emphasized that intervention in Cuban affairs by this country is not desired, but that the forces being sent are expected to protect foreign life and property.

Secretary Hull said he believed the Richmond alone carried from 75 to 100 marines.

As to any danger of bloodshed, American officials could make no predictions.

Even Ambassador Welles on the ground at Havana was unable to precisely estimate the danger with conditions changing from moment to moment.

Early this morning Secretary Hull was called from his bed to learn of the new movement in Cuba.

After hasty consultations among high officials, it was decided to adopt the same policy pursued before and dispatch armed vessels.

Although there was no official word, dispatch of the warships was understood to have been ordered after communication with President Roosevelt.

That the situation was viewed with greater gravity, however, was indicated by the fact that a cruiser was ordered to Cuba, whereas in the previous instance only destroyers were sent at the outset.

ROOSEVELT STATEMENT

Secretary Hull said the warships were ordered to Cuban ports under conditions similar to those which caused the movement of three destroyers into Cuban waters on August 13. At that time President Roosevelt issued a statement in which he said:

'No possible question of intervention or of the slightest interference with the internal affairs of Cuba has arisen or is intended by this precautionary step to protect, if necessary, the lives of American citizens, pending the restoration of normal conditions of law and order by the Cuban authorities. I am giving strict instructions accordingly to the commanders of each vessel."

The United States destroyers Taylor and Claxton were ordered on August 31 to Havana with Lieut. Commander George T. Howard as senior commanding officer. He reported to Ambassador Welles on his arrival August 14, and was presented to Provisional President de Cespedes. The Claxton remained in Havana for only about 24 hours, and the Taylor was left there for a few days but did not land any troops.

A third American warship visited Manzanillo and reported to the United States consular agent there, but withdrew in a short time.

The ships being rushed into Cuban waters will be under the command of Rear Admiral Charles S. Freeman, commander of the special service squadron, whose flagship is the Cruiser Richmond.

The eDstroyer Sturtevant, commanded by Lieut. Com. E. R. Henning, is expected to reach Santiago within a few hours, since its base at Guantanamo is but a few hours away.

The Destroyer MacFarland, under the command of Lieut. Com. John L. Hill, probably will be the next on the scene, as only a few hours' running under forced draft would carry the ship from ey West to Havana.

The Destroyer Bainbridge, under Lieut. Com. V. H. Godfrey, probably will be one of the last to reach Cuban waters because of the distance from Norfolk.

MARINES ABOARD

The cruiser Richmond has a compliment at present of 426 Blue Jackets and 65 Marines. It carrier approximately 38 officers, including Rear Admiral Freeman and his staff.

The ship is equipped with 10 six-inch guns in addition to the usual anti-aircraft guns and torpedo tubes.

Navy experts estimtaed it might take the Richmond between a day and a day and a half to reach Havana waters. It is now near the Canal Zone.

The three destroyers have complements of some 85 men each, and are equipped with four four-inch guns as their principal armaments.

"PENTHOUSE"

BY ARTHUR SOMERS ROCHE

Myrna Loy as Gertie Waxted, Warner Baxter as Jackson Durant, in a scene from the Cosmopolitan Production-Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture PENTHOUSE, from the Cosmopolitan Magazine story by Arthur Somers Roche.

The girl Durant loved had left him because he gave up his dull society law practice to engage in a more exciting career in the criminal courts. Now this girl's fiance was facing a murder charge—just such a charge as Durant, better than any other lawyer in New York, knew how to defend. Should he take the case? Did he dare to probe for the real culprit in the face of the underworld's deadly opposition?

SUN-TELEGRAPH

NEXT THURSDAY

SUN-TELEGRAPH PAGE TO GIVE $15 DAILY

Paging Mr. Smith! Paging Miss Brown! Paging Mrs. Jones!

Can you hear the sharp, clear voice of the page-boy calling the names of the readers of the Sun-Telegraph? Tomorrow the Sun-Telegraph page will be calling names of readers in the Pittsburgh area and every name that he calls will be given a cash award.

As these names and addresses are called every day, they will appear in the Sun-Telegraph and if the hustling little page has anything for you, you will find the announcement in this newspaper.

To some one person every day whose name will be announced by the Sun-Telegraph page there will be awarded $5 in cash. Then there will be 10 additional names paged every day and to each of these persons there will be an award of $1.

There will be no favorites. Yours may be among the very first in the printed or paged list.

The only means you have of finding out whether or not your name has been paged is by reading the daily list as it will appear in the Sun-Telegraph. If it does not appear in the first list, don't be discouraged. It may appear any day, and when it does come out in print, you're going to get a real thrill.

Bear in mind the Sun-Telegraph "page" will give away one award of $5 every day and 10 awards of $1 each. This sum may not seem big to some readers, but it will be mighty welcome to thousands of others.

The Sun-Telegraph pageboy begins his distribution of money tomorrow. Watch for your name in tomorrow's list.

RICHBERG FOR UNIONISM

International News Service.

OTTUMWA, Ia., Sept. 5.—Employers and owners who criticize organized labor for its participation in the NRA program are the same "self-sufficient, short-sighted" individuals who brought on the business depression, Donald R. Richberg, chief counsul of the NRA, today told a large gathering of farmers here. He declared:

"Industrial workers should be organized, transportation workers should be organized, all the great competing and co-operating interests, whereby we serve each other and through which we are dependant upon each other, must be organized so that they can express their needs, can compel recognition and satisfaction of their needs; and so that no one element, no group of minority or majority interests in our civilization, can dominate and exploit another group and profit unfairly out of the labor of their fellowmen."

Woman Lost 44 Lbs.

The Original Hollywood Reducing Formula Available to Public.

My friends are amazed. No wonder those movie girls easily keep pretty figures. I weighed 184 pounds on March 27th and today, June 21st, I weigh 140. Lost 44 pounds. Feel marvelous. My figure looks 10 years younger and was so easy to lose." Signed, Margrette Staley, 214 Penn. Ave., Joplin, Mo.

So successful and famous did the HOLLYWOOD 18 reducing formula become, that by popular demand it has been made available to you—just like the movie stars use who must keep their lovely figures.

Many report weight reductions from 14 to 41 pounds and it's so easy and pleasant —you just take a little HOLLYWOOD 18 in a glass of water before breakfast. Just ask Mayflower, Sun, Economy, Peoples, or any good druggist for HOLLYWOOD 18.

HICKOK, EX-YALE GIRD STAR, DIES

HARRISBURG, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—A member of Yale's football team that broke up Harvard's famous "flying wedge" 41 years ago, W. Orville Hickok III, is dead.

President of the manufacturing company which bears his name, Hickok died last night at the age of 59 after an illness of two years. The end came at the summer home of his mother-in-law, near Williamsport.

A graduate of Sheffield Scientific School of Yale University, Hickok played guard for three years on the varsity football team which in 1892 never was scored upon but tallied 435 points against opponents. That team included three other Harrisburg men—Vance C. McCormick, the captain; Frank B. Butterworth and James A. McRae.

Surviving are his widow, a daughter, a son, two brothers and a sister. One brother, Charles N., is vice president of the National Steel Company, of Cleveland, O.

Globe-Trotting

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

There's something mournful about the town on Labor Day. It might be the drizzle, but perhaps its the unusual sight of seeing the downtown streets so deserted and the shops closed.

* * *

The only spot in town that showed signs of activity was the foyer of a large building where the elevator starter kept explaining to a parade of people that the insurance company's office upstairs was closed and to hear in return, "My policy payment is due today and the agent called me Saturday to remind me." It happened to me.

* * *

Wandering ghostlike through a sleepy town I happened in to William Penn Hotel lobby, where I learned that Don Bestor was in town to spend the day and the orchestra just closed its booking for the winter at the Hotel Biltmore, New York; that Ethel Shutta, completely captivated by a frock displayed in the window of a downtown dress shop frantically tried to get in touch with the owner to come down and open the store. After an hour and a half of determined telephoning she gave up.

* * *

On Grant street Jim Steele hailed me to tell about the hardware man who sold the last tailor's goose in the place and not knowing the plural, but wanting to order a dozen, wired: "Send one tailor's goose and 11 more."

* * *

Back to the office to read the mail and discovering myself too enervated by the Labor Day holiday spirit to do the research work necessary to answer todays questions, none of which I seem to know anything about offhand, decided to postpone further effort until tomorrow.

Reprint of advertisement in Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph August 29, 1932

Just a year ago the whole town was agog over Pittsburgh's new baby—the Horne Downstairs Store. To many people, the very notion of the Horne baby was a surprise.

The public came by the thousands to see the new baby, and they took it to their hearts instantly. It looked like Horne's, they said . . . and the better acquainted they became, the better they realized that it was Horne's.

In a few days the new baby will celebrate its First Birthday. It has made thousands of friends with its Good Styles and Dependable Qualities at LOWER PRICE LEVELS, and we have planned that its birthday shall be the occasion for making thousands of additional friends, through the distribution of splendid values at prices that will be most welcome at this time when rising costs are a subject of universal concern.

Watch the papers for further details.

Atlantic storms and Florida hurricanes are gentle zephyrs compared with the imaginary crash of the earth and a comet, to be pictured with weird sound effects and music this week, in the American Weekly's drama, "The Comet Strikes." Fourteen stations in and around Pittsburgh will broadcast the thriller Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

In last Saturday night's K-7 dramatization of "The Decoy," a story of wartime espionage, Richard (Sherlock Holmes) Gordon played the part of a treacherous spy designated as "H-22." Immediately after the broadcast K-7 recalled that "H-22," which appeared in the script as a typographical error, was the official designation of the famous Mata Hari.

Don't be surprised if Lum and Abner, flivver dealers of air heard over WCAE, drop in to pay your community a visit. They're on a free and easy tour of the tri-state area. Their last stop was Peninsula, Ohio, where they spent a day at fishing. The fish wouldn't bite, but Lum and Abner did, when the townspeople feted them with a chicken dinner.

Mystics Missing Vase Merely Put In Safe Place

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 5.—Anagrams and cryptograms proved a cinch for experts of the National Puzzlers' League, who are in convention, but they couldn't find their vase—important "props" in a mystery play presented at a hotel by the mystics.

Just when it seemed the vase and their reputation for omniscience were both lost, a hotel official happened along.

He said:

"I took it for safekeeping. That's the way we lose our silverware—leaving things around loose."

10,000 LOOK ON AS 2 FLIERS DIE

CLEVELAND, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—While a crowd of 10,000 looked on in horror, Pilot Ralph Wensinger, 28, nationally known for his daring flights into high altitudes for the United States Weather Bureau, and a student-assistant, plunged to their deaths in an airplane crash yesterday.

The tragedy occurred during a Labor Day air exhibition at Chippewa Lake Park, 30 miles south of here.

Only a few minutes before Wensinger and the student-assistant, Samuel Versaci, 19, were killed, a third occupant of the plane, Miss Viola Pincombe, 21 of Berea, O., escaped a possibly similar fate by making a successful parachute jump as part of the exhibition.

Following Miss Pincombe's leap, Wensinger sent the plane up to an altitude of about 4,000 feet and was "stunting" the ship when something went wrong. The plane went into a spin and dove rapidly.

Spaghetti Feed Ends Jail 'Hunger Strike'

GOSHEN, N. Y. — (INS.) — Joseph Quinn, desperate jail-breaker accused of two murders, went on a hunger strike in the jail here. The strike lasted from noon to the supper hour. Meatballs and spaghetti were his downfall. He ate and put the hunger strike over until they serve something he doesn't like.

'HEAVEN' FLIGHT BALKED BY RAIN

International News Service.

MOSCOW, Sept. 5.—A heavy downpour of rain today forced postponement of the first ascent of the new Soviet stratosphere balloon Stratostat.

Both G. Prokofiev, commander of the Stratostat, and his assistant, E. Berenbaum, were calm and absolutely confident of the success of the projected flight, which they expect will take them higher into the heavens than man ever has traveled before and break the 10-mile record of Prof. August Piccard, Swiss scientist.

They revealed in an interview many new and intricate instruments they have for making a safe landing.

They revealed their gondola has landing arrangements permitting a safe landing at a speed of eight meters per second, while the doors, hermetically sealed, can be opened from either the inside or outside in from three to five seconds.

The entire ballast of the craft could be dropped in 20 seconds.

1,620 FIRED DUE TO FILM CODE

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—Announcement was made here yesterday on behalf of 13 independent movie producers of Hollywood that they have given two weeks' notice to their 1,620 employes and told them to look for other jobs.

The notice was given, it was said, in anticipation of possible defeat in the independents' fight against article 33 of the proposed movie code which would prohibit showing of two feature pictures on one bill.

If "double feature" exhibiting is barred, the independents say, they could not compete with major producers.

The statement said 63 film exchanges and 2,100 theaters which handle independent pictures also are expected to give two weeks' notice to their employes today. Many already have done so, the statement said, and the 1,400 theaters which have been showing double features may close, at least temporarily, if article 33 is adopted.

SIGNBOARD CODE BEFORE NRA

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5. — A code containing "ethical" provisions which forbid outdoor advertising companies to erect signs that obstruct "beautiful vistas" has been submitted to the NRA by the Outdoor Advertising Association of America.

The code also forbids erection of signs that would "directly encroach or intrude upon the beauty or dignity" of any park, monument or historical structure.

Further clauses prohibit the painting or posting of advertising signs on rocks, trees, fences or barricades. The code also forbids the posting anywhere of any sign "critical of the law of the United States or any state or offensive to the moral standards of any given community."

The code provides for minimum salaries of $12 to $15 a week and maximum hours of 40 per week for inside workers and 44 for outside workers.

'Never Rob Again,' Meaning of NRA To Eagle Thief

YORK, Pa., Sept. 5.—(INS.)—The common charge of larceny was invoked for the protection of the Blue Eagle.

Robert Gladfelter and Arthur Nelson were arrested on an alderman's warrant, charged with stealing an NRA emblem from the office of the Blum Awning Company. They are awaiting a hearing.

Gladfelter humorously observed after his arrest that hereafter NRA will represent to him "Never Rob Again."

Georgians Protest Blind Negro Killing

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 5.—(AP.)—Services advertised as a "mass protest funeral" for a blind Negro killed by a policeman were held here while 40 officers stood guard and arrested a white man charged with distributing pamphlets urging that "white and colored people stop this killing of Negroes by policemen."

The Negro, Glover Davis, was shot several days ago. The policeman did not know Davis was blind.

LABOR HEAD FOR JOB INSURANCE

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—Miss Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor, was in New York today, having told a nation-wide radio audience last night in Boston that she was strongly in favor of unemployment insurance for United States industries, and that she would place the resources of her department behind any group within an industry which would sponsor such a move.

When she arrived in Boston late yesterday, Miss Perkins dispelled fears which had been felt concerning her whereabouts. She confessed that she "had taken a little holiday in the Adirondacks and the White Mountains."

Miss Perkins in her radio address suggested that the following points be added to a "forward looking program" to aid labor.

Social and industrial revision for old age; public works or government expenditure for stimulating employment and business in time of early slack in employment; free public employment exchanges on a national scale; development by industry of program integrated with the industrial program.

Expressing a high regard for Mrs. Sarah M. Phillips, Mrs. John M. Phillips declared that her only activity in the present campaign was in support of the candidacy of Gustav L. Schramm for Juvenile Court.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

In Mayfair —With—

Patricia Pitt

Every day in early September will bring at least one pre-nuptial entertainment, and the prospect is that most of them will boast of several.

Among our much-feted brides will be popular young Patrice Kelly, daughter of the James B. Kellys, of Parkman boulevard, who'll promise to love, honor and obey Richard O'Brien English, of Erie, a week from today in St. Paul's Cathedral.

Guest at Dinner

Last night Mrs. James Stevenson Lanahan entertained a small party in honor of Patrice at the Labor Day dinner-dance at the Pittsburgh Field Club.

Today Mrs. Pressley C. Dowler will entertain at a small bridge-luncheon at the Pittsburgh Country Club in honor of Patrice, and tomorrow Mrs. Charles C. Kohne and her daughter, Mrs. Charles G. Cole, the former Ruth Christine Kohne, will entertain at a bridge-luncheon in the Pittsburgh Country Club.

Helen and Betty Davison will entertain Saturday afternoon, and Sara Marie Kelly will give her sister's spinster dinner that evening in the Kelly home.

Tea For Bride

Federation Convention Canning Exhibitors Will Get Awards

MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

In the conservation exhibit at the State Federation convention October 9 to 14, there will be displayed some "five foot shelves," not of books, but of vegetables and fruits. These will be the entries in a contest to be judged by canning experts who will award prizes and ribobns for the best jar of any vegetable, the best jar of any fruit, the best jar of any jelly, and the most unusual product conserved for winter's use.

A cash prize of $10 which has been offered by a canning company will be divided into four prizes of $2.50 each.

Also in the display will be devices for bird havens and there's to be an illustrated lecture on wild flowers as the conservation department's contribution to the convention program. At the conservation luncheon on Thursday of convention week, district chairmen will give the highlights of their work and lantern slides of the Briar Bush Sanctuaries will be shown.

The table decorations will be the winning bouquets in the winter bouquet contest, another conservation activity for the convention. The clubwomen have been asked to find in weeds and grasses and in their own gardens winter decorations that will save the rare berries and ferns that are now ruthlessly destroyed.

Hold on there you ($)6 to ($)14's!

LITTLE lady, what now? What's going to become of that extra $8 that you find in your envelope these days? Is it going for luxuries entirely? Will it slip through your fingers to the last dollar? Of course not. You're too sensible for that.

You're Going To Put It IN THE BANK, Aren't You?

Build up a pile, little Miss ($)14. DON'T draw it out to buy those new fall clothes. "But, how," say you, "can I have my cake and eat it too?" Like this—you come to our Fashion Floors, select anything your heart desires, get a sales check and then go up and see our Mr. White, that handsome (and not at all fearsome) individual who presides over our accounts. He'll invite you to a chair, ask you where you're employed, and where you are living. NO inquisition, no red tape—just the pleasantest kind of relationship you ever enjoyed. When it comes time for payments, they'll be so small you'll scarcely notice them—a few dollars every week or two. YOU'LL HAVE YOUR CAKE WHILE YOU'RE EATING IT. And you won't be envying your girl friends any longer, they'll be envying YOU.

O, yes, we almost forgot to tell you the best news of all: the privilege of using this swell payment plan costs you NOT ONE SINGLE CENT above our regular cash prices! And furthermore, if you can buy the same grade of merchandise cheaper, we'll refund your money without alibi or hesitation.

AVOID THE DANGER OF CONSTIPATION

Delicious Cereal Overcomes This Condition Safely and Pleasantly

The first signs of constipation may be headaches, tired feelings, sallow complexions, sleeplessness, loss of appetite. If neglected, constipation may seriously impair health.

Today, you can banish constipation by simply eating a delicious cereal. Laboratory tests show that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to further aid regular habits. ALL-BRAN is also a good source of iron for the blood.

This "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is gentle in action similar to leafy vegetables. Within the body, it forms a soft mass, and gently clears out the intestinal wastes.

Two tablespoonfuls daily will overcome most types of common constipation. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Enjoy ALL-BRAN as a cereal, or use in cooking. Appetizing recipes on the red-and-green package. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

CHOOSE YOUR NEW HAT AS KEY TO ACCESSORY ENSEMBLE

YOUR NEXT fall hat is merely the start of an accessory ensemble. Be sure to consider it as such. It may be a velvet, satin, suede, felt, woolen or duvetyne. It may be a taupe brown or a soft, indefinite gray, perhaps with a purplish cast. Green, either with a coppery or rusty look that suggests bronze, will be very good. A fashion highlight will be olive green, and the colour of the ripe olive is a beautiful newcomer. Rusts and the various rich reds are so flattering that they are sure to be in favor. Of course, the bulk of millinery is apt to be black, or those dark berry colours that threaten to replace black. Of course, blackberry bears closest watching.

* * *

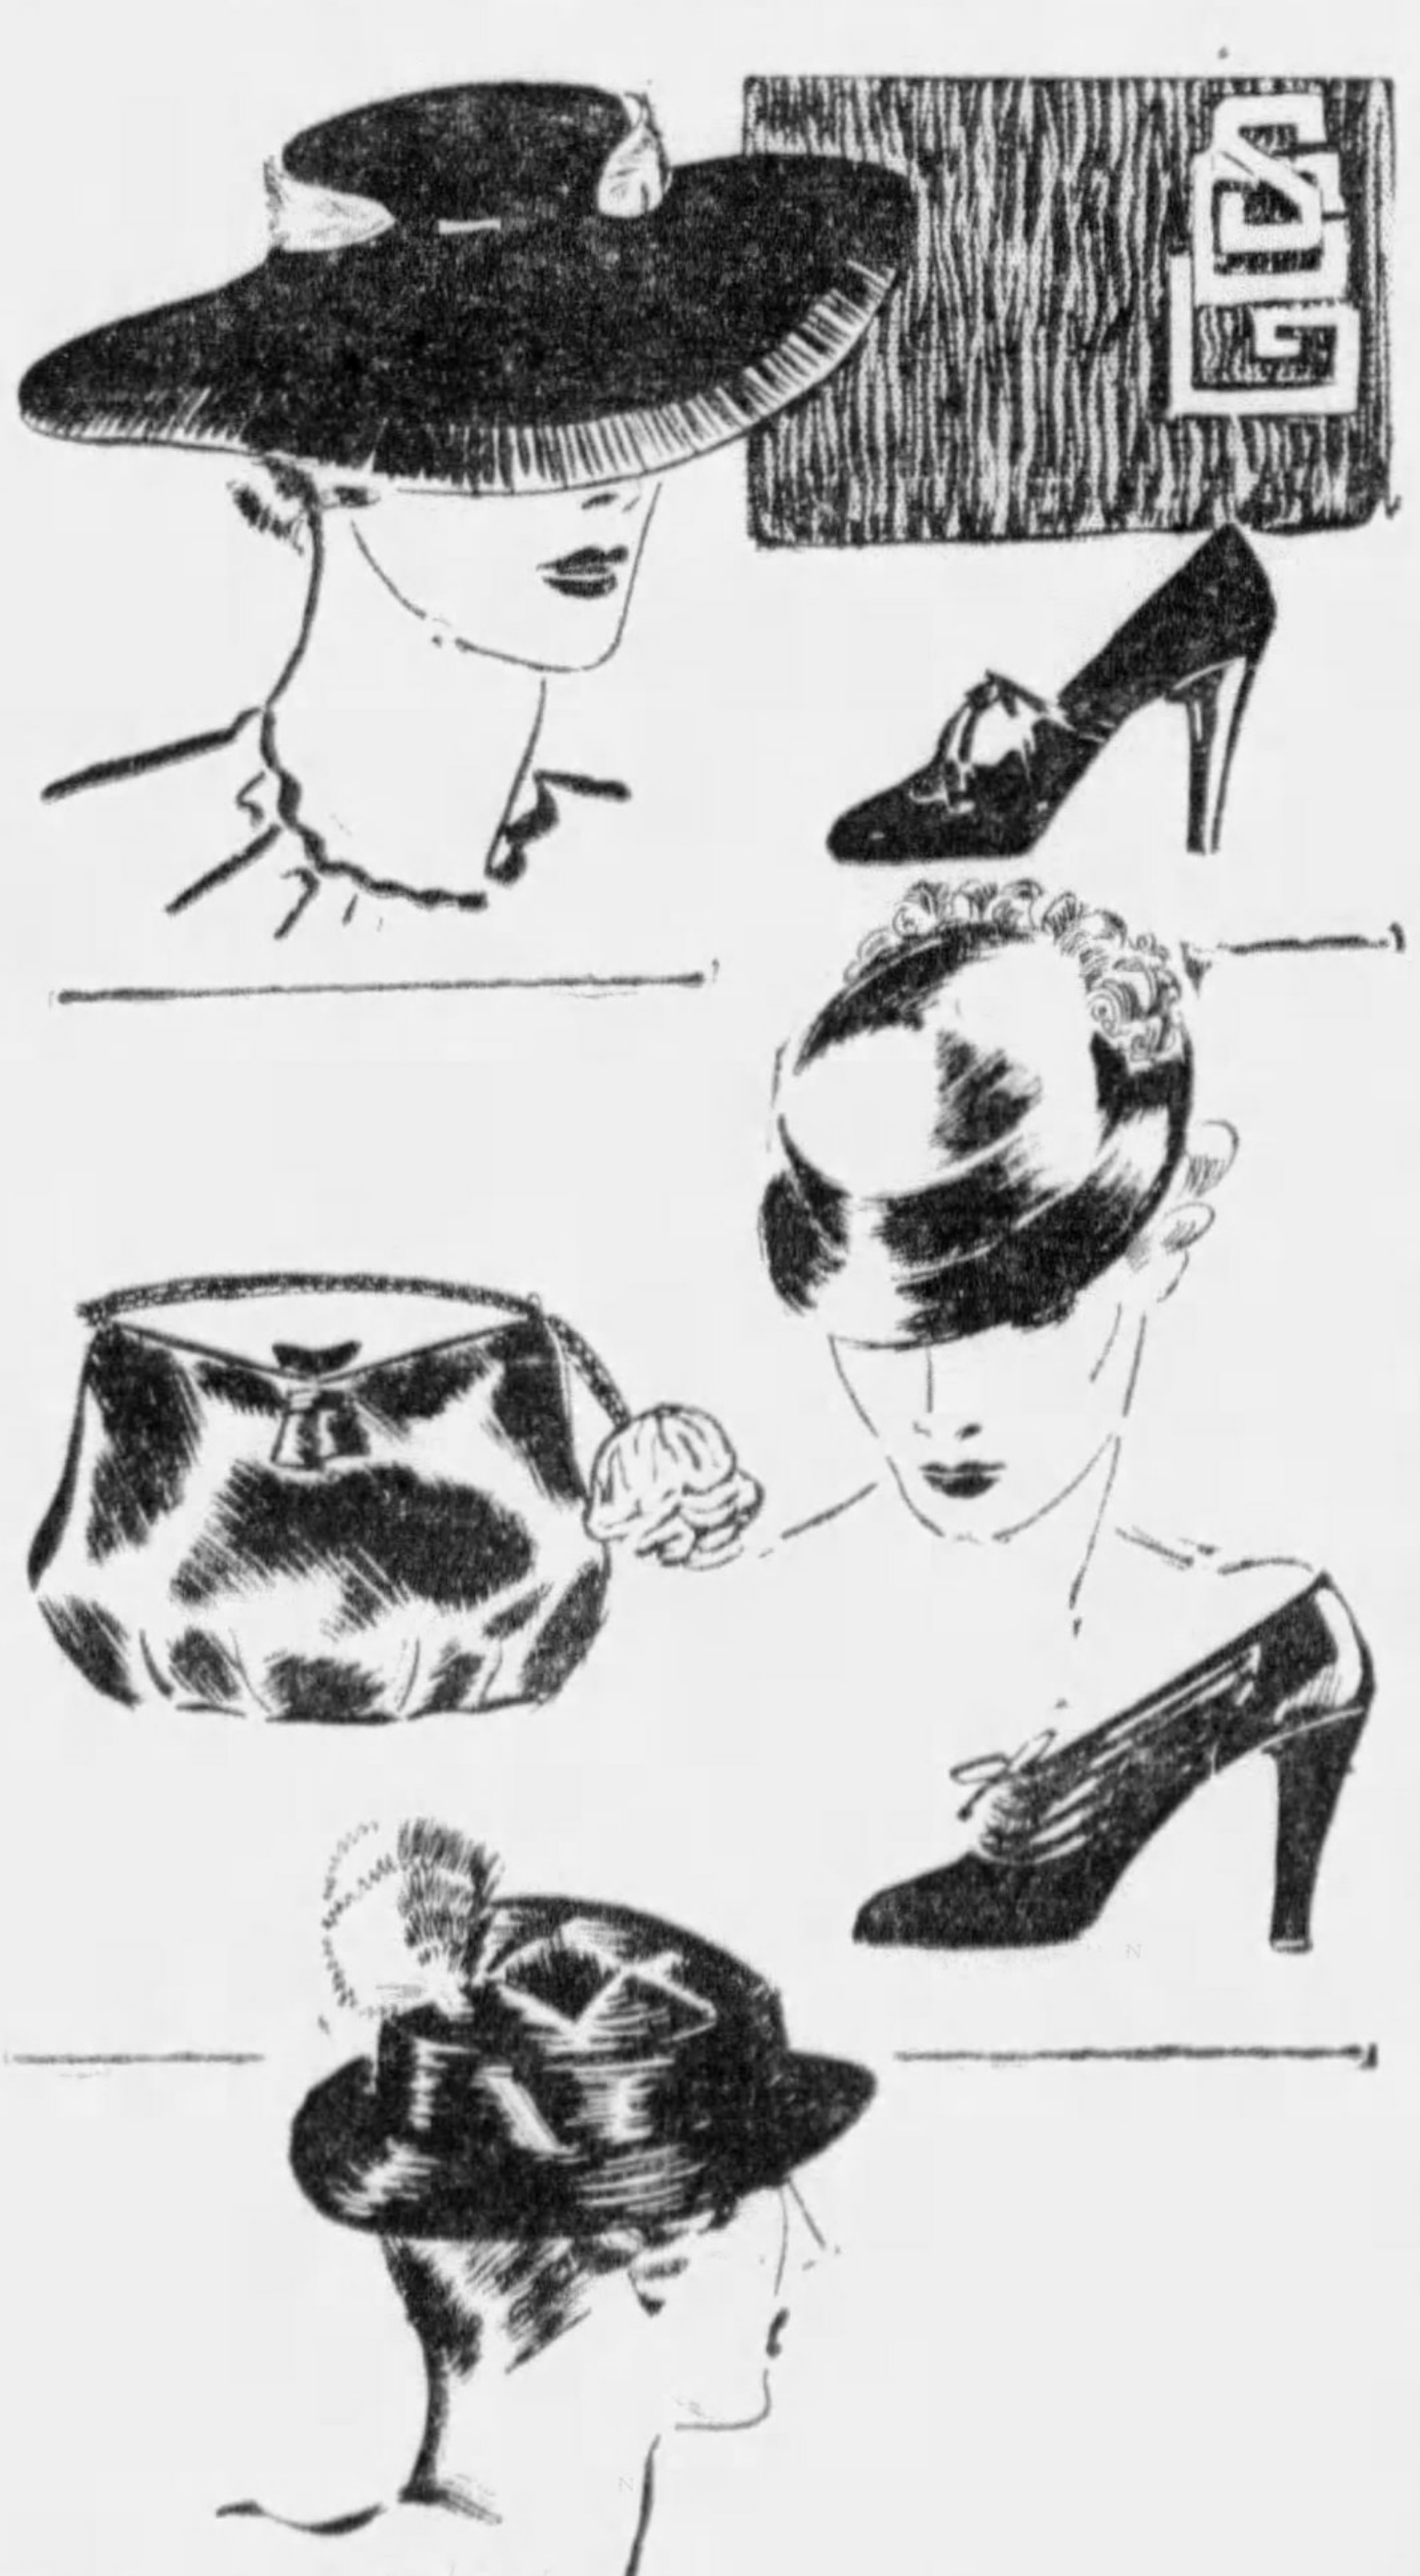
THE HAT will undoubtedly be one of these types—a beret, a sailor (either Spanish in type or one inspired by either a Gainsborough painting or a Breton fisherman) or a cartwheel, to be worn with flat fur capes. In velvet, keep the cartwheel for formal purposes; in felt, wear it on the street.

* * *

SHOES THAT go with these hats may match in color, if possible, in fabric. The "cocktail shoe" is this year's development. It starts out at tea-time, but can go through an informal evening with ease. Often it is of satin, or satin-with-another-shoe-fabric combination. Suede grows more important from year to year. New this season are the high-cut oxfords and high-cut step-in pumps. Reflecting the new high movement of necklines, shoes go higher on the instep, too. Heels are straighter than ever. There is some talk of launching real low heels for walking and for general use. Very fashionable women are already seen following this decree.

* * *

YOUR BAG may match your shoes and hat, too, certainly in color, if not in fabric. Suede, satin, velvet and faille are reserved for dress-up wear, while calf and leather novelties are for the street. Simplicity is a by-word, more important than ever. Even the formal types bag look to the ornaments for elaboration. These are often delicate and expensive. Monograms and initials, broad and modern, are in high style again.



* * *

THE ACCOMPANYING picture tells three complete accessory stories.

* * *

TOP: A FELT cartwheel of taupe-brown, for the street, with pink mother-of-pearl feather ornament. Pump of taupe-brown suede with patent leather trim and heel. This emphasises the two-fabric idea for shoes. Bag of moire-calf with mat silver monogram.

* * *

* * *

BOTTOM: Modified Spanish Sailor, of brown vel-vet, with dark brown and beige feather pompoms. Bag of matching Suede, shiny as velvet, with neat bow ornament frame. Shoe: a high-button oxford, of brown suede with fine gold pipings and buttons.

* * *

AS YOU may see by these descriptions, the fashion for feather ornaments continues. However, when used with restraint, as in these examples, it proves to be a charming idea.

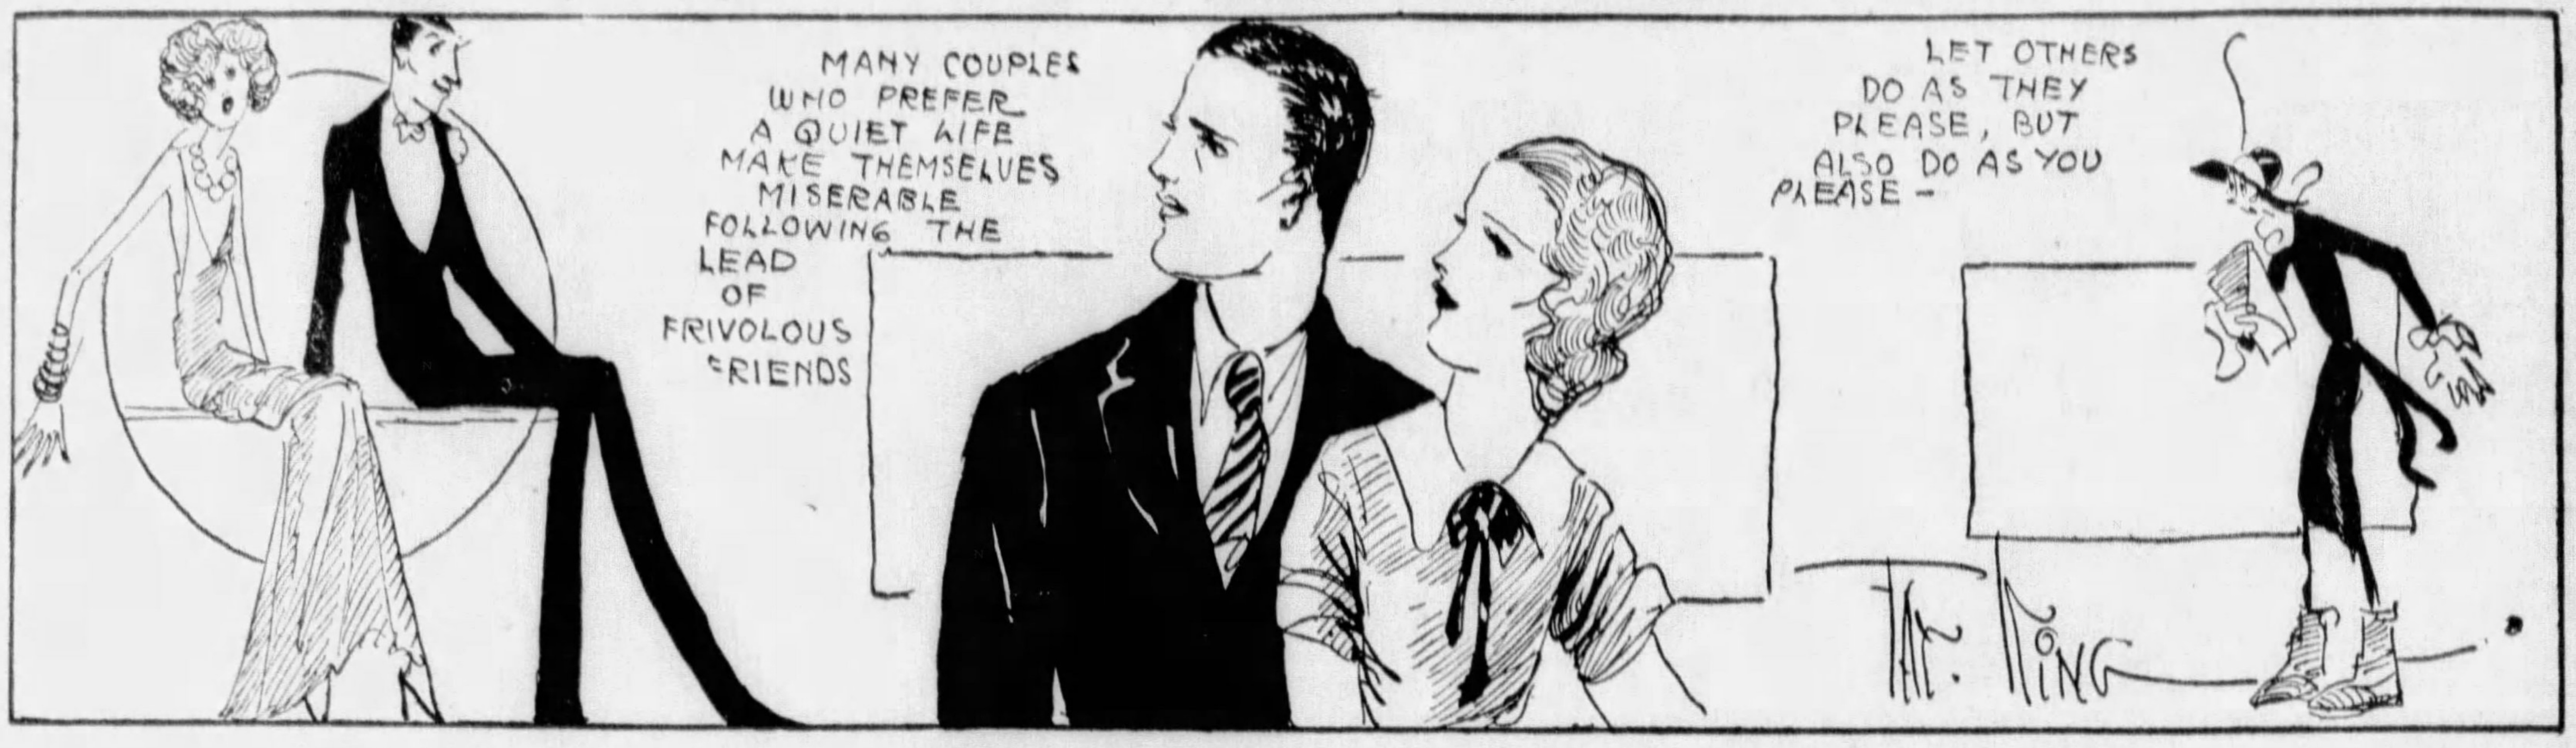
Fay King Notes the Beauty of Variety in Life and Lives



MANY COUPLES WHO PREFER A QUIET LIFE MAKE THEMSELVES MISERABLE FOLLOWING THE LEAD OF FRIVOLOUS FRIENDS
LET OTHERS DO AS THEY PLEASE, BUT ALSO DO AS YOU PLEASE—FAY KING

By FAY KING

If we all had exactly the same viewpoint, taste, enthusiasm, prejudice, appreciation and reaction, this would be a one-way world.

We would all sing the same song, eat the same meal, read the same book, wear the same dress and say the same things.

Only one type and one kind of everything would be preferred.

But fortunately we all differ and so a great variety of things make the world more interesting.

But we should abide by our own inclinations. One will seldom make mistakes if he will rely upon that inner decision which is our true guiding nature.

Too many of us try to see things another's way and make another's choice. What may be suitable for others may not be suitable for you at all.

Being Too Familiar Hastens End of Friendships

Can we see too much of our friends?

If people are friends, is it okay for them to just "run in," whether they're wanted or not?

And if they do, what can we do about it?

Lee would like to know.

"I've always heard," she moans, "that 'a man's home is his castle,' but I'm beginning to doubt it." And then she gives us the sad tale of why she feels like this.

Are you like Jim 'n' Mary?

Dear Elsie Robinson:

You've often heard the expression "A man's home is his castle," I know. I used to believe that it was, but I'm beginning to have my doubts. And I'd like to know what you think of the problem that is making me doubt it.

Al and I are very friendly with another couple, Jim and Mary. We enjoy each other's company a great deal—but isn't there such a thing as seeing too much of people, no matter how much you like them? I'm beginning to think so.

This couple was at our home last Saturday, and Sunday also. But on Wednesd— morning, Jim told Al that they were coming down that night again. Al told him not to come, because he had to be up late Tuesday night, and he was tired and wanted to go to bed early. And what result did that have? Jim told him they would come anyway, and if he was in bed they would whistle, get our dog to barking, and wake him up. And this they did . . . and they stayed about an hour. It made me mad.

RIGHT OR WRONG?

We have been married 15 years, and in all that time we have never let anyone tell us what we should or shouldn't do in our own home.

Well, they came, but they went, too, because we were in bed—and didn't get up.

Of course we feel that we were in the right, but we would like to know what you think, too. You're an outsider, and can see the way things look from that angle. To me, it looked like ignorance for them to barge in that way. If I told someone I was coming over a certain night, and was asked to make it some other time, I wouldn't dream of doing as they did. In fact my way would be to ask the other party if it would be all right to come such and such a time—and pay attention to what I was told.

Please help me. This may not seem much of a problem to you, but it is very important to us. Were we right or wrong, in the stand we took? LEE.

DESERVES COURTESY

Were you right?

Of course you were . . . and you'll get big gobs of sympathy from scores of other folks with barging friends. A man's home is his castle, and so long as he's behaving himself, he has a right to do as he pleases in it . . . and no "friend" with an ounce of sense is going to butt in when the butting isn't good. Real friends owe each other courtesy and consideration.

Of course, these pals of yours may have been only putting over their idea of a joke, but they certainly had no business to come and wake up a tired man who needed his rest . . . and you were perfectly right to tell them so. And if they chose to get huffy about it, it was just their bad luck, and you needn't worry about them.

And now let's talk about the future. Suppose you stop the "dropping in" business and invite people when you want them—for a definite time, and do as you please other times. For there is no quicker way for friends to fall out than seeing too much of each other . . . getting to think they own each other. Friends deserve the same courtesy as strangers.

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Overcoming Obstacles

When a partnership has reached a grand slam contract at a suit and discovers that one of the opposing players holds more trumps than either the declarer or dummy, he may be considered fortunate indeed if he finds a way to make his contract. However, there are ways of playing the hand that will, in some cases, overcome even the factor of an unfavorable balance of trumps.

Mr. Arthur F. Erwin recounts the story of a hand played recently in a rubber of Contract at the Theta Chi Fraternity House in Madison, Wis., in which a Grand Slam had been bid in spades rather than in notrump, in order that the bonus of 100 honors might be cashed. The contract was not doubled by East, who held five trumps, because, although he thought he could defeat the hand, he feared that a double would drive North and South to an unbeatable Grand Slam in notrump.

West, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

North:
♠ K Q J 10
◇ A K Q J 2
♣ A

West:

East:

♣ K 4 2

South:
♠ A 7 4 3
♡ 8 6 2
◇ 10 6
♣ 9 7 6 5

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	2 ◇	Pass	2 N T
Pass	3 ♠	Pass	4 ♠
Pass	6 ♠	Pass	7 ♠
Pass	Pass	Pass

The bidding, opening as it did with an Opening Forcing bid of two in a suit and continuing with a negative response, followed by agreement upon a second suit and an eventual Grand Slam contract, resulted in reaching an entirely proper contract. There was no way to learn about how the adverse trumps were divided, and when North bid six spades, South was not unduly optimistic in bidding seven.

The play was the interesting factor. East elected to open his singleton heart, which was won by the Declarer, who now laid down the King of spades and learned at once that West was void of trumps and hence that East held a "sure" trump trick. North continued with the Ace of clubs and then led five rounds of diamonds in succession. East had to follow on the first four, and on the last one, recognizing the futility of trumping, he discarded a club. In the meantime the Declarer had discarded in Dummy the last two hearts, so, having placed the Dummy in a position to overruff, the Ace and King of hearts were led. East was forced to ruff the last heart, thereby reducing his trump holding to the same number held by the Declarer, who overruffed in the Dummy and then drew the remaining trumps.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Should Dealer, not vulnerable, pass the following hand or open with a bid of one heart?

♠ J 5 3 2 ♡ A J 9 7 4 3 ◇ A J 8 ♣ —

Answer: Dealer should bid one heart, in view of the favorable distribution and the fact that the hand contains 2 plus tricks defensively.

Correct Manners

By CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

An Important Letter

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am contemplating marriage within the next few months, and as I have not met my fiance's mother, due to the fact that she lives in another state, he has asked me to write her a friendly letter. I am of the opinion that it is his mother's place to write to me first, a sort of a "welcome" letter, as he has told her about me. Who is correct, Mrs. Beeckman?

If it is my place to write to her, I would appreciate it if you will enlighten me as to the wording. M.

You are right in your point of view that it would be proper and gracious for your fiance's mother to write you a letter of welcome-into-the-family. But if this letter isn't forthcoming, and since your fiance has suggested that you be the first to write, I wouldn't hesitate about this as to its correctness or incorrectness. Don't stand on ceremony about such a circumstance, for the important thing is to establish the friendly relationship.

In your letter tell your mother-in-law how happy you are about your engagement, how devoted you are to her son, how proud you are to become a member of their family, and how much you are anticipating knowing her and the rest of your fiance's family. She will, naturally, be interested in your life, and in your plans for your new home and your new life. Don't, of course, have your letter formal . . . make it chatty and friendly and informal.

Salt and Celery

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you kindly tell me the proper way to use salt when eating celery. Should the salt be put on a plate and celery dipped in it, or should the celery be sprinkled with salt?

2—When a girl friend comes to spend the evening at your home, and is already seated when you enter the room, should she rise when you go forward to shake hands, or remain seated? (We are both the same age). D.

It is considered better form to put the salt on the side of the plate, preferably the bread and butter plate, and dip the celery in it. Indeed, this way of using salt or pepper is always better, not only for celery but for anything else.

The Return Address

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I would like to know if, when addressing an envelope, you put your name and address in the upper left corner or on the back. A FRIEND.

The postoffice authorities suggest that we write the return address in the upper left corner of the front of the envelope. So evidently this is considered the most convenient for the mail man, and he is the one to be considered. However, this often means crowding, and running the return address into the address itself, so if your handwriting is large, I think the back of the envelope is the better.

Madge Learns a Surprising Fact About Avis Arlen

A perfunctory curiosity was not only permitted but expected of me. I was sure, but my response to her sugary, "Don't you remember me? I am Avis Arlen," masked a real and avid desire to know the reason for her presence in Philip Veritzen's office.

"Avis Arlen!" I exclaimed. "Of course, I remember you. But I am so surprised. I thought you were in Chicago!"

I detested the hypocrisy with which I forced my voice to cordial inflections, matching hers. But I had no scruples where Avis Arlen was concerned. I knew what detestation must be in her heart toward me, for the way in which I had foiled her plan to discomfit Mary at Christmas time and at the summer fete I had give in honor of my husband's young niece. I had realized upon those occasions that she was unsquelchable in the face of rebuffs, and she evidently meant to keep up the pose of affectionate admiration for me, which she had adopted ever since my first meeting with her.

Her reply to my query justified my conviction. Her voice "dripped honey and maple syrup" as she answered me. "I was in Chicago until just a few days ago," she said, "but now I'm here, and to stay. It does seem so good to hear your voice again, dear Mrs. Graham. I suppose you know what has happened to me?"

GIVEN POSITION

Her voice was suddenly hushed, dolorous, as in speaking of death. I drew a short remorseful breath. Was it possible that her mother—

"No, dear," I said quickly. "I have heard nothing. What is it? Tell me!"

"Why, didn't Uncle Phil or No-el tell you?" she asked, giving Noel's name the affected, babyish intonation which had so annoyed me in the summer. Her use of his name brought another perturbed query to my mind. Why had Noel not told his fiancee of the presence in his father's office of this girl, over whom he and Mary had had so serious a disagreement.

"No, they have told me nothing of you," I said, the cordiality of my voice a bit dimmed. If it were her mother's death of which she were speaking, it certainly had not affected her spirits perceptibly.

"It's simply tragic!" she exclaimed, but her tone did not bear out the words. "Mommy's lost nearly all of her money. Our bank failed, and you know what stocks are. So I've had to go to work to help her. Wasn't it wonderful of Uncle Phil to give me this place, as private secretary in his own office?"

I reflected that was more than wonderful, if true. It was incredible. I knew the standard of efficiency which Philip Veritzen compelled all his employes to maintain.

SUPPRESSES LAUGHTER

"Private secretary?" I echoed incredulously. "Where is Miss Brown?"

"Oh, she's here, too," Avis returned, and in her voice was all the condescension which an unduly pompous head of a department would use toward the humblest of her assistants. "Uncle Phil wouldn't ever let anybody out to make room for some one he wanted. But I'm so glad I can help him! He needs somebody around here who knows him intimately, I think. I'm sure I'm going to save him a lot of wear and tear."

I nearly choked in the attempt to avoid laughing aloud. I knew the colossal assurance of the girl, but the assumption that astute Philip Veritzen was giving her a place in his office because of any use she might be to him was most ludicrous, to any one who had ever seen Miriam Brown in action. Miriam Brown, his private secretary for years, the perfect barrier between him and anything or anybody unwelcome—tiny, pretty Miriam Brown who, it frequently had been said, could run the Veritzen organization "with one hand tied behind her"—that she should be supplanted by Avis Arlen! I suppressed another laugh as I stopped parrying and put a direct question.

"Will you kindly tell Mr. Veritzen I am on the wire."

Fashion Flashes

By ALICE ALDEN

Wooden heads are those who won't go for the new hats made of wood veneers. The wood is so treated that it is as flexible and supple as any material. A new model is done in white linen with a brim of the wood in light brown and a crown band of wood in a darker hue.

An addition to the family of wood accessories is the glove with wood cuffs. The glove itself has the hand of knitted linen with elastic threads. It has a gauntlet cuff of thin wood done in three grains and is ever so attractive.

It is allowed to wear black in the country or at outdoor sports events when allied with white. For instance, one smart girl wears a frock of white linen with a three-quarter swagger coat of white and black cross-barred linen with a huge black linen bow, and a black linen hat.

Incomplete without a new bag will be the feeling of the woman who buys a new suit or coat and wears an old bag with it. A charming bag for dressy wear is in all-over shirred black velvet with a frame of cut crystal motifs and a crystal clasp.

Our old friend the beret is back again in the autumn millinery line-up. An attractive model is done in three shades of blue velvet, navy deep royal blue and nattier blue. The trimming is a tiny clump of feathers in the same three shades.

Of course, you are going in for large hats for wear with town things. And in case you are a little tired of your shiny straw cartwheel, we suggest a really large model of very dark green straw, gay with a complete circlet wreath of field flowers with light green leaves.

Be picturesque and wear a soft velvet beret cut on lines that allow for artistic draping. One model in deep soft blue velvet is finished with a tassels of small pearls to give weight to the drape.

Household Hints

Tack one-half of a small cork near each end of the hangers on which you place skirts, gym slips, pinafore dresses and sleeveless blouses, and the garments will not slip.

To free mustard and cress quickly from the seeds, put a little vinegar in the water when washing it; the seeds will soon sink to the bottom of the vessel.

Time can be saved by the use of a broom handle with a cup hook screwed into the end. This can be used for unhooking curtains, hangings and pictures.

Painful Neuralgia Due Usually to an Infection

Dr. Copeland

Neuralgia is a word commonly used to describe various vague and discomforting pains. In reality it is pain in a nerve, due to an inflammation.

The sufferer from neuralgic pain usually describes it as "throbbing" or "shooting" or "burning" in character. It may be a constant pain or one that "comes and "goes."

One of the most severe forms is that spoken of as "facial neuralgia." In this affliction the "facial nerve," or nerve of the face, is involved. The pain is of a serious nature, extremely uncomfortable, causing great distress and suffering.

Another common form is that attacking the shoulders or arms. Here, too, the pain is of a distressing nature and is often confused with rheumatism and arthritis. The sufferer has difficulty in moving his arms. He has intense pain upon the slightest exertion.

When the pain of neuralgia is mild it is apt to be neglected. As I have stated, it is often mistaken for rheumatism, neuritis or arthritis, and is disregarded. Since the disease is extremely difficult to cure when it is chronic, it should be treated upon the first complaint of pain.

No cure can be hoped for until the underlying cause is determined. The irritation or inflammation of the nerve may be due to an infection somewhere in the body. This may come from diseased teeth, nasal sinuses, tonsils, or gallbladder. When the cause is determined and removed, relief is obtained.

Do not be misled by the alleged virtues of patent medicines and other nostrums that are recommended for the relief of neuralgic pain. Relief may be obtained but may I assure you that it is only a temporary nature. Bear in mind that permanent relief can only be obtained by complete removal of all centers of infection.

Sometimes localized infection can be determined only by careful X-ray examination of the teeth, sinuses and other suspected organs of the body. In other instances it may be necessary to have blood tests and other laboratory tests to determine whether infection is the root of the disorder. Regardless of the trouble and expense the relief is well worth the effort.

If you are a sufferer from neuralgia I would advise that you consult with your physician. He will give you a thorough physical examination and endeavor to determine the source of infection. If necessary, he will recommend the X-ray pictures and other tests that will help determine the exact cause and aid in its removal. Do not neglect this disorder.

PARK BAN AIDS HILL PEOPLE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—Handicraft of the Southern Appalachian Mountains will find a greater market when the government takes over the full administration of the projected Shenandoah and Great Smoky Mountain national parks.

Machine-made curios will be eliminated from the stands operated as concessions under government license. In their places will be the products of the back-hills people. The mountain region will benefit by a new policy that opens a market for native talents and solves an economic problem.

Home-made cloth, including towels, hooked rugs and mats and woven rag carpets, are among the products the natives make. Blankets, quilts, bedspreads, as well as furniture, baskets and hearth brooms, will feature the road-stand displays.

Arno B. Cammerer, director of national parks, said the policy will give employment to thousands of families, including the Cherokee Indians in the Great Smokies area.

HOW WOMEN CAN WIN MEN AND MEN WIN

The Favor of Other Men

Unless two pints of bile juice flow daily from your liver into your bowels, your food decays in your bowels. This poisons your whole body. Movements get hard and constipated. You get yellow tongue, yellow skin, pimples, dull eyes, bad breath, bad taste, gas, dizziness, headache. You have become an ugly-looking, foul-smelling, sour-thinking person. You have lost your personal charm. Everybody wants to run from you.

But don't take salts, mineral waters, oils, laxative pills, laxative candies or chewing gums and expect them to get rid of this poison that destroys your personal charm. They can't do it, for they only move out the tail end of your bowels and that doesn't take away enough of the decayed poison. Cosmetics won't help at all.

Only a free flow of your bile juice will stop this decay poison in your bowels. The one mild vegetable medicine which starts a free flow of your bile juice is Carter's Little Liver Pills. No calomel (mercury) in Carter's. Only fine, mild vegetable extracts. If you would bring back your personal charm to win men, start taking Carter's Little Liver Pills according to directions today. 25¢ at drug stores.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

Things I Never Noodle Now

(Ma, here's that funny man, again!)

That you can ride from 72nd to 42nd Street on the subway in less time than it takes to ride the elevator to the Empire State tower.

That Amelia Earhart, Ruth Nichols and other femme air pilots can begin worrying right now. A woman you rarely, if ever, hear about—Jessica Raiche of Santa Ana, Cal.—was the first woman to fly a plane in this country. (In 1910 at Mineola—and forgotten).

That the dock for the Zep at Akron is so large that sudden changes of temperature cause clouds to collect—and that's why it often rains inside the hangar—when it doesn't outside!

That our taxes are steep because in a year the government needs $1,362,880 for pencils and paper. (How've y'been?)

That when a meteorite falls out of the skies to the ground it belongs to the owner of the land on which it lands.

That a will scrawled on a bit of paper and containing three words "All to mother" got by—but a will consuming 100 pages still is legally tangled because of the countless "ands," "ifs" and "whereases."

That of the 2,300 daily newspapers in the United States only two have no comic strips.

That Bethoven composed the Ninth Symphony after he was so deaf he couldn't hear it. (He had it in his mind years before).

That there are twenty million widows in India.

That "Poker Face" Helen Wills Moody cannot play poker.

That because Harriet Beecher Stowe, in her total disregard of the theater, had failed to reserve to herself the dramatic rights of her book, "Uncle Tom's Cabin," she never received a penny royalty.

That "hocus pocus" means "this is my body."

That Irvin Cobb grew tired of "studying the wall paper designs" in the anterooms of New York newspaper offices. So he sent the same letter to 13 editors, asking for work. Five editors responded offering jobs.

That when an author urged Frederick J. Haskins, who does this stuff better than anybody, where he could hear a pure Colonial dialect spoken in the U. S., Mr. Haskins referred him to North Carolina.

That some great writers who were in prison included Thoreau, John Bunyan, Oscar Wilde, Sir Walter Raleigh, O. Henry and John Galsworthy!

That the reason Galsworthy went to prison was that, after attiring himself in old clothes, he threw a brick through a window. He did six months under an assumed name. The play "Justice" was the result.

That the Alice in "Wonderland" was a tot of about 7½—but the movies will hire a grownup to play the role!

That Englishmen are heavier beer drinkers than Germans and Germans are heavier likker-drinkers than anybody. Germany, as a matter of fact, third—Austria rating second place as lager consumers!

That in Russia they blow up old buildings, instead of tearing them down as here. Saves time and money.

That the remains of the old log cabin in "Uncle Tom's Cabin" still may be seen nine miles from Lancaster, Ky.

That there are 32 hands which will beat four aces.

That the refrigerated air in theaters and restaurants is made from, of all things, steam!

That the average size hat sold to men in the United States is six and seven-eighths. (You're probably swell-headed, yourself!)

That the first movie actor to be well known was John Bunny.

That Marie Dressler's real name is Lelia Koerber.

That there are about 17,500 extras listed at Hollywood's largest casting bureau. Only 333 average one day's work per week a year.

That screen tests are hard to get for your girl friend because they cost $300 each and almost a million every year!

That Harold Lloyd is the richest actor in Hollywood with a reputed fortune of 12 million smackers. Mary Pickford is next with 5.

And that the trouble with love and fame—is that nine times out of ten you get a round trip ticket with each.

Robert Montgomery Working on New Film

Sally Eilers To Be Free In a Year

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLWOOD, Sept. 5.—Our match-makers may as well cool down about Sally Eilers and Harry Joe Brown, because Sally intends to divorce Hoot Gibson in California and that means a year's wait before she could remarry. Were there any real romance in the offing, the Nevada courts would offer a convenient release in six weeks. Sally treats the gossip lightly, anyway — calls Harry Joe her "big beau."

Miss Eilers

You can look for the star to file one of those mental cruelty complaints as soon as she returns from a vacation in Yosemite. It's her first trip to the California resort and she is taking Dixie Martin along for company. They'll spend their time doing a lot of resting.

You've heard of children being cradled in theatrical trunks and raised backstage. Dean Markham tells of the 5-year-old boy, of vaudeville parents, who was meeting normal youngsters for the first time in kindergarten. The teacher started to explain a drawing exercise.

"Now you can tell this dot and this dot and this dot and when you get through you have a little mouse."

The kid gave her a straight look and snapped:

"So what, for pete's sake!"

Behind the wheel of a new 16-cylinder robin's egg blue sedan, George Raft is headed eastward, with his trainer and bodyguard, Mack Gray, to spell him on those long stretches of highway. The star's next picture, "Chrysalis," doesn't start until October and he'll give Broadway the once over. Driving cross-country via Las Vegas, Salt Lake, Omaha and Chicago, George expects to be 10 days on the road. He'll stop off in Chicago to pay a visit to the World's Fair.

Here's hot one. Unless they decide to cut it out, a satirical echo of the Winchell-Jolson fisticuffs will be heard in the motion picture, "Broadway Through a Keyhole." One of the characters, Blossom Seeley, says:

"By the way, didn't somebody out in Hollywood take a poke at Winchell?"

And heroine Constance Cummings replies:

"Yeah, I think so, but I can't remember his name."

Hollywood Parade; Clark Gable lost 22 pounds in his recent illness. And there were some who said he was faking . . . Most regular patron of the new Montmartre Cafe is Dean Markham. He spends every evening there waiting to take Bobbe Arnst home. Like former husband, Johnny Weissmuller, Bobbe is not free to confess a romance until October 11. Perhaps she won't even then . . . I didn't see it in writing but Gloria Swanson is said to have turned down $125,000 to make that picture with De Mille . . . proof of public interest in Paramount's "Alice in Wonderland" contest are the requests of various newspapers to notify them straight wire of the choice for Alice . . . They nearly dropped dead at M. G. M. when Ed Wynn asked to have more visitors sent to his set . . . Jack Gilbert and his wife, Virginia Bruce, have christened their little daughter, Susan Ann Gilbert.

Haughty

Fay Wray is the girl Gary Cooper wanted to marry but was glad he didn't in "One Sunday Afternoon," which comes to the Stanley Friday.

'Penthouse' Is Dramatic

"Penthouse," the gripping novel by Arthur Somers Roche, which will begin as a serial in the Sun-Telegraph Thursday and which has been made into a picture by Cosmopolitan Productions, has blended in it the outstanding dramatic factors of life in a high-keyed metropolitan community.

The penthouse high in the clouds atop a skyscraper, provides one of the many varied settings, around which the action of the story revolves. The plot emanates from the clash of four distinct personalities—a brilliant defense lawyer, an underworld chief accused of a murder which he did not commit, the lawyer's fiancee and a beautiful girl allied with the underworld—carrying the dramatic action of "Penthouse" to a thrilling and unanticipated climax.

The leading players in the new film form one of the strongest acting combinations of the year. Warner Baxter has perhaps the most virile and intensely emotional role of his career as the lawyer, while Myrna Loy and Mae Clarke have principal feminine roles, and Phillips Holmes, Nat Lendleton and C. Henry Gordon other outstanding parts.

Sleeping Dog Bites All In Drama

By GEORGE SEIBEL

When the British novelist, J. B. Priestley, wrote "Dangerous Corner," he wanted to illustrate the wisdom of the ancient proverb about letting a sleeping dog lie. The seven people in the drama presented at the Arnold School last night, as the closing bill of the Summer Playhouse, insist upon stirring up the somnolent Fido, and he turns out a ravening Cerberus. Everybody is bitten except the lady novelist who starts for home when the bark begins to get loud.

Mr. Seibel

The drama has a quality of tenseness that is almost uncanny in view of the fact that it is all about a murder or suicide that occurred long before the evening of the action. The three couples gathered in the living room of the Chatfield home are pleasantly chatting when a cigaret box that plays a tune brings them to the "dangerous corner." Because one man insists upon having everything explained, and the truth is dragged out of everyone bit by bit . . . the drama ends with another suicide . . . or does it?

For this drama is like the old-style round, and ends as it began. A shot fired while the lights are out was the beginning of the drama within the framework of the social evening. Are we to assume that all the three acts of tense cross-examination did not really happen . . . that they only show what might have happened?

Whatever we are expected to assume, the three acts are tense, well-built, rising from climax to climax, until everybody is badly bitten by the canine incisors. And this psychological mystery play is also very finely acted by the seven people who have it in hand. While Helen Wayne and Frances Emerson had the most difficult parts and did the most distinguished work, William Koehler and Donald Gallagher also rose to every opportunity and acquitted themselves with convincing sincerity. R. E. Manning and Dorothy Devlin had less to do, but did it with no less verity and force. Mary Alice Yaste was merely an incidental figure, but fitted perfectly into the picture.

The production, directed by B. F. McKee, Jr., had a driving power that is seldom found in first-class professional performances. Splendid teamwork and intelligent individual characterizations make it just about the finest thing the Summer Playhouse has presented—and it will close its season in the proverbial blaze of glory.

Atonement.

JASON CRAIG, as we will call him, had one thing in common with many other people. Jason Craig desired mightily to be wealthy, but his desire was not great enough to force him to do anything about it. He longed to be rich—as who does not?—but he contented himself with nothing more strenuous than day dreams.

That, however, was before he discovered the Wilsons, who occupied the apartment next to his. Jason met Mrs. Wilson several times in the hall. She was not a beautiful woman, nor one to command attention. And Jason gave her scarcely a glance—until he learned that she was worth ten thousand dollars.

It came about this way. Jason had a telephone and the Wilsons had not. Late one night, Mrs. Wilson tapped timidly on his door and asked if she might use his phone to call the doctor.

"You see," she explained, "my husband is very ill. Tonight he took a bad turn, and I hate to leave him long enough to go out to the drug store."

Jason said that she might, indeed, use the telephone—and was extremely happy when she didn't overlook leaving a nickel for the call. By some unexplainable, generous impulse, when the lady started back to her apartment, he offered to help until the doctor arrived.

During that short interval, Jason learned many things. He learned that Robert Wilson was afflicted with an incurable disease. They were going out West, his wife said, when he was strong enough to travel. They would have gone long ago, but they hadn't the money.

A few weeks ago, Mrs. Wilson explained, a relative had died and left her a small fortune; ten thousand dollars to be exact. She was going to spend the money in an effort to regain Robert's health.

When Jason returned to his own apartment, he was very thoughtful. You have probably guessed by this time what he was thinking of. And you are right. He was thinking of the ten thousand dollars.

He thought of little else during the days that followed. He found many opportunities to call upon the Wilsons. The real reason for his visit, however, was never known.

Henrietta Wilson had become extremely attractive in his eyes, by reason of the small fortune she possessed. And, in turn, Jason strove to make himself as attractive to her as possible. When they were alone, he took no pains to conceal the fact that he greatly admired her. Finally, he told her outright that he was very much in love with her.

"But Jason," the lady protested, "we have no right to act this way with Robert so sick and all. No, Jason, you mustn't mention this again. It isn't right."

Jason, however, refused to be put off.

"You do like me, though, don't you?" he persisted.

Henrietta nodded reluctantly.

"Yes," she admitted. "Yes, Jason, I do like you—very much." . . .

Jason was happy over that, but for a short time. So far, so good. Without a doubt, Henrietta would marry him after Robert was gone. But, by that time, most of the money would be gone, too.

Then again, Henrietta was making plans to go out West.

And there was always the chance that Robert would recover sufficiently to last a long, long time. He, Jason, would have to see that that didn't happen.

He had a long talk with Wilson one evening when Henrietta was out. He wasn't too outspoken, but he allowed Robert to see exactly how things were. He hinted that Henrietta and he were very much in love, but that marriage was impossible under the circumstances. He dwelt upon the sacrifice that Henrietta was making.

"That's the tough part of it," Jason said sadly. "It's just unfortunate, I guess, that the little woman's life must be ruined. Oh, well, can't be helped, I suppose."

As he talked, he fingered a bot-tle of sleeping tablets on the table beside the bed.

"Kinda dangerous things to have around, ain't they?" he queried. "I mean, a guy might take a couple of extra ones by mistake some time. Well so long, Wilson. Take care of yourself."

It was only a few days later that they found Robert Wilson dead. He had died from an overdose of sleeping powder. Whether it had been taken by accident or design, no one knew. Jason Craig, for one, didn't care. The only thing that interested him was the fact that the last obstacle in his path to Henrietta and the ten thousand dollars has been removed.

He went to her as soon as he heard of her husband's death.

"Jason," she murmured, "I feel guilty about this, somehow. You don't suppose Robert found out about—about us, do you?"

"Not a chance," he reassured her. "I suppose I should say I'm sorry, but I can't and be honest. You know what this means to us, don't you, darling?"

Henrietta drew back.

"Please," she begged, "we can't talk about that now. Perhaps—perhaps some time later."

Jason nodded.

"Yeh, I guess you're right about that," he agreed. "It wouldn't look right. Listen, dear, I'm going out of town tomorrow. I'll write and let you know where I am. Then, when this is all over, the funeral and everything, you'll come to me, and we'll be married. In a month, say. Will you do that?"

Henrietta said that she would.

During the following four weeks, he was more or less uneasy. He was worried that something would happen to cause Henrietta to change her mind. But nothing happened. She wrote to him at the end of the month, and stated that she was coming and that they would be married as soon as she arrived.

Jason dashed about happily, making arrangements for the happy event. When Henrietta's train pulled in, he was at the station to meet her, and he hustled her immediately to the office of a justice of the peace.

And so, as the saying has it, they were made one . . .

Jason was a very happy man, indeed, as he rode away in the taxi at the side of the lady of his choice. She, too, appeared extremely joyful as she snuggled beside him.

Henrietta nodded, and snuggled close.

"Indeed I am, Jason," she murmured. "I must confess that, for a short time after Robert died, my conscience hurt me. It was almost as though I thought I were to blame in some way for his death.

"But now everything is different, dear. By buying him a beautiful tombstone, I feel that I have atoned for everything."

"You bought him a beautiful tombstone?" he repeated nervously. "What—what did it cost?"

Henrietta smiled happily.

"It cost me the money," she replied grandly, "that I planned to use to get him well. Exactly $10,000."

HEIR DROWNED IN NIGHT SWIM

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—(INS.)—Hugh S. Jarvis, Jr., 23, recent honor graduate of the New York Merchant Marine Academy, and son of Hugh Jarvis, millionaire shipping man, was to be buried today, the victim of the frigid water of Kensico reservoir, in which he took a midnight swim as a lark.

He was accompanied by Mark and Elbert Couch, his neighbors in New Rochelle, and two girls, on an automobile ride when he took the dare to swim in the reservoir near the Connecticut border, whose waters are forbidden to bathers.

Jarvis was the first in. He dove but did not come up. Mark Couch dived after him, but could not locate him. They went for the police, who recovered the body with grappling irons.

LOS ANGELES 152 YEARS OLD

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—With a good chunk of the Midwest in its population and 440 square miles in its area, Los Angeles yesterday looked back on 152 years of existence.

Los Angeles was founded September 4, 1781, and given the staggering name of La Cuidad de Nuestra Senora de Reina de Los Angeles (the City of Our Lady the Queen of the Angels).

Starting with a population of about 50 persons who were recruited by Capt. Don Fernando Rivera Y Moncada to populate the pueblo on regal order of the court of Spain, the valley has given home to some 1,238,048 souls. It also has given up 440 square miles of its "black, loamy soil," as the Spaniards described it, for the area of the city.

After 1876 when the first transcontinental railroad arrived, Los Angeles embarked on its growth toward a major city. It attained its greatest growth between 1920 and 1930, when its population doubled.

YOUTH ADMITS BANK HOLDUPS

OTTAWA, Kan., Sept. 5.—(AP.)—A confession to three Kansas bank robberies was reported today by Sheriff W. A. Wantland to have been made by Cecil (Pete) Thornbrugh, 19, wounded Sunday in a shooting near Prescott, Kan.

Sheriff Wantland said the youth denied he was one of two men who shot and fatally wounded Otto Peterson, an Omaha merchant policeman, the night of July 17.

Nebraska authorities have issued first degree murder warrants for Cecil, and his older brother, Harold, now believed to be in hiding in the rugged mining section near Quenemo, Kan.

The list of crimes which Sheriff Wantland said the youth admitted, including bank robberies at Prescott, Le Coup and Harris; the robbery of a Fort Scott implement store and robbery of the Le Coup Co-operative Store and postoffice.

Cecil was shot in the arm and shoulder when he visited the home of his bride. Officers said the shooting was done by his 13-year-old brother-in-law, Eldon McCormick.

HIGH WHISKY PRICE SEEN

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—Whisky is going to cost a lot more when the Eighteenth Amendment goes into the discard.

That was the prediction today of Maj. Harmon Laughlin, engineer, who has just completed a preliminary survey of plants, distribution costs and prospective prices for a group of distillers.

He said:

"Well-matured, unblended liquor will be very difficult to obtain for some time after the amendment is repealed, and some very poor liquor will be put on the market."

If taxes on liquor are high, he predicted, bootleggers will continue, competing with inferior products with legitimate liquor producers.

He observed:

"Nevertheless, legitimate liquor probably will be preferred. At least it will be safer."

WOMAN'S DEATH DUE TO FALL

Mrs. Grace McAllister, 29, of 10 Pernod street, North Side, who died late yesterday in Allegheny General Hospital from intracranial hemorrhage and laceration of the brain, was a victim of a fall, homicide detectives said today.

A city physician found the woman unconscious in a house in Dounton way after he had been summoned by Charles Morris, 38, a Negro, last Friday.

Morris and his wife were released by police. Detectives who questioned the couple and three other witnesses said they learned Mrs. McAllister struck her head against a bed when she fell in the house. Morgue records showed she was a divorcee and gave her occupation as a telephone operator.

TRI-STATE LEADERS RUSH FLOOD CONTROL DRIVE

POLITICS

250 Juvenile Court Jobs Feature in Contest

—By MARK SHIELDS—

Mr. Shields.

The judgeship for the newly-created Juvenile Court is developing a contest between political organizations which, while they may be considering the welfare of the children who become wards of the court, are certainly not closing their eyes to what control of the 250 jobs within the appointment of the judge can mean to a political group.

The regular organization has as its candidate Charles G. Lane, Jr., who also is receiving considerable assistance from soldier organizations who are actuated only by the fact that Lane is one of their number. So far the forces headed by Senator James J. Coyne and Mayor John S. Herron have made no formal indorsements, but the attitude of their followers leaves not the slightest doubt but what the organization is for Lane.

* * *

Coyne Lieutenants Line Up For Lane

Senator Coyne in Harrisburg when the Juvenile Court bill was passed said he would keep hands off in the fight provided the various social agencies made an indorsement. To the letter of that promise the Senator appears to be adhering. There is no evidence that he is giving "orders" for any Juvenile Court candidate, but in their absence his lieutenants are lining up for Lane, and are not being admonished for it.

The Mackrell mayoralty group, together with Senator William D. Mansfield and Clerk of Courts S. J. Topley, is behind Mrs. Lois D. McBride. Had the Governor been permitted to appoint the first judge of the court it was common gossip in Harrisburg that Senator Mansfield would have urged her selection. There is bitter warfare between the Herron-Coyne and the Mackrell-Mansfield-Topley factions, and neither would relish seeing the other get hold of the patronage, and each wishes it.

Mrs. McBride also is receiving help from some women's organizations.

* * *

Schramm Favored By Social Agencies

Gustav L. Schramm was indorsed by the majority of delegates from social agencies at a meeting which considered the capabilities of various other attorneys who aspired to Juvenile Court. Thereupon he announced his candidacy, and is running without the attachment of the strings of any political faction.

The Citizens League, in indorsing judicial candidates, made no recommendation for Juvenile Court. Some of those who served as a sort of policy committee for the league in suggesting indorsements had been committed to Edward O. Tabor, over whom Schramm was preferred by the social egencies. Tabor thereupon became a candidate for City Council on the Citizens League ticket.

It is reported that some of the Citizens Leaguers favored Schramm and some Mrs. McBride, and the result was a drawn decision not to support any one, despite the verdict of the social agencies, which it was assumed would be accepted by all good government groups, and at least by supporters of men or women whose names were considered.

* * *

Solid Front Suggested To Support Mrs. McBride

From within the Citizens' League now it is reported suggestions are being tentatively floated that there should be a solid front to support Mrs. McBride as the "anti-Coyne" candidate. The suggestion comes from friends of Mrs. McBride, who is a league member. Nothing official has transpired, and it is unknown whether official cognizance has been taken of the subject.

It is hardly likely that the subject will be entertained by the Schramm group, which is headed by Mrs. John M. Phillips, long identified with civic work. An agreement of that nature would make the court a palpable pawn of politics.

Mrs. Phillips was an indefatigable worker in behalf of the Juvenile Court bill. She spent much time in Harrisburg, and was able to harmonize the rivalries existing between Senators Coyne and Mansfield. It is not probable that she would consent to anything which would make the Juvenile Court tontest so patently a matter of politics as it would become with the Herron wing on one side and forces headed by Mr. Mackrell, Senator Mansfield and Mr. Topley on the other.

* * *

Lawrence Explains Schramm Indorsement

The Democrats have indorsed Mr. Schramm. Democratic County Chairman David L. Lawrence, resentful of the intrusion of Republicans into his party primary, explained the indorsement in this fashion, Schramm heretofore having been known as a Republican, insofar as he has any politics:

> "There was an agreement, in which the Democrats were involved, that the Juvenile Court would not become a political patronage scramble, when the Legislature approved the bill finally. The majority of social agency representatives, studying the qualifications of all the candidates, indorsed Mr. Schramm, and we felt bound to abide by that indorsement."

Mr. Lane did not enter the fight until the division occurred between Mrs. McBride and Mr. Schramm, and until it became apparent where the support of Mr. Mackrell, Senator Mansfield and Mr. Topley would be thrown.

SCHOOLS START, PUPILS GLAD, THEY SAY

Census Shows 69 of 74 Happy—Rolls Gain Sharply

There's been a great change since grandpa's day in the attitude of young America toward the old schoolhouse and his teacher—either that or the modern youngster has learned the old adage of "diplomacy pays."

A census taken in several grades at the Horace Mann School, Shadeland avenue, today through the co-operation of R. H. Edgar, principal, resulted in 69 out of 74 pupils voting that they were "happy to be back in school again." Four admitted that they'd rather be outside than inside.

A marked increase in enrollment throughout Pittsburgh and Allegheny County was noted with the resumption of classes today, according to Dr. Ben G. Graham and Dr. Charles E. Dickey, superintendents of Pittsburgh and Allegheny County schools.

Registration of the Catholic high schools will be held from today until Thursday.

HARRISBURG, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—School bells summon 2,100,000 children back to classes in Pennsylvania today, starting off to a record enrollment, but giving educators their most serious problems in years.

In addition to the increase of students, through NRA codes, which bar children from industry, drastically reduced budgets make doubly difficult the task of handling this school army.

U. S. Asked to Help Rate High Schools

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—The office of education today announced regional associations of colleges and secondary schools had urged the government to join in a co-operative study of establishing standards for evaluating the work of high schools.

The recommendations were worked out at a recent conference of representatives of the associations with George F. Zook, Federal Commissioner of education.

Enrollment in Erie County Hits 50,000

ERIE, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—School bells called 50,000 students back to Erie County public and parochial schools today. Officials predicted extra-heavy enrollments because of the NRA child labor ban.

Alaskan Snake Found in Grass of Democrats

—By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER—

How about that exhausted Republican who masqueraded as a delightfully young Democrat in Kansas City?

He claimed to be an Alaskan Jeffersonian. When he objected to canned speeches they put the finger on him.

First, no juvenile Jacksonite objects to tinned monologues. Second, he didn't wear enough badges. Third, how could a minor Democrat afford all that carfare from Nome to Kansas City?

The interloper almost hamburgered the political kindergarten. Until one of Postmaster General Farley's bright-eyed boys placed the heavy hand on his shoulder and denounced him as a former G. O. P. congressional candidate from New York trying to work his way through college.

The man was a spy trying to find out how the majority lives. He was dismissed with a reprimand. We will not print his name because he is repentant and will wait until 1936 to try and make a new start in life.

Chain Gang Ban Here Cheers Jailed 'Tourist'

David Henderson, 19, of Philadelphia, who said he had served in a chain gang in Atlanta, Ga., was pleased when informed in Morals Court today there are no chain gangs in Pittsburgh.

He was sent to jail for 10 days in lieu of a $10 fine by Magistrate T. D. Jones. He was arrested sleeping in a baggage car early today by Baltimore and Ohio Railroad police, after arriving from the Chicago fair. He told Magistrate Jones:

> "I served 30 days in Atlanta for hopping freights. I was shackled with a chain gang and lived on corn pone. We had to work hard in the boiling sun. I would have tried escape by breaking the shackles with a sledge but didn't have the nerve. I am glad there are no chain gangs here."

Sailor's Inflated Diving Suit Lifts Him Out of Water

By LIEUT. JIM HAYS
PART TWO

With an effort, I forced a grin and cracked feeble jokes with the men who helped dress me for that first dive.

The canvas part of a diving suit is all one piece, like a baby's sleeping outfit and, you might say, "cut for a low neck," like a debutante's coming-out gown.

I don't know just how a debutante gets into her gowns, but a diver gets into his feet first. Then a bronze shoulder plate is fitted down over your head and clamped to your suit, and a bronze helmet fitted onto that. Rubber bands around your cuffs make the suit air and water tight.

Your helmet has a four-way view—through a thick glass in front on either side, and at the top. Your air supply comes down from compressed air tanks in the diving boat, through a stout rubber hose. And it was my air supply that got me into my first jam.

When they put the heavy bronze helmet down over my head and twisted it tight onto my shoulder plate, I was terrified, like a small boy who has been trapped inside a dark closet, with no handle on the inside of the door. And I hadn't even got wet yet.

Then they placed a heavy belt around my waist, weighted with a hundred pounds of lead, and finally a pair of immense shoes with thick lead soles was strapped onto my feet, to keep me right-side up.

Because of all that weight, or maybe because I was weak in the knees, a sailor on either arm helped me to the iron ladder

ICKES TARGET FOR MANY PLEAS

Industry Joins Herron In Urging Project on Public Works Chief

Secretary Harold L. Ickes, public works administrator, is receiving numerous telegrams from the tri-state district urging adoption of the Pittsburgh Flood Commission's plans for flood control.

The messages are being sent by mayors, burgesses, presidents of municipal councils, chambers of commerce, trade organizations, mercantile and financial groups and leading industries.

Telegrams urging the adoption of the project have been sent from Pittsburgh by Mayor John S. Herron, former Gov. John S. Fisher, president of the Chamber of Commerce; Capt. J. Frank Tilley, executive secretary of the Coal Exchange, and by the presidents of a number of leading steel companies.

DRIVE EXPANDED

For the purpose of continuing and expanding the drive upon the recovery authorities in Washington, local Tri-State Authority committees are being organized under the direction of the chief executives of the hundreds of municipalities in the district. This is being done at the suggestion of the executive Board of the Authority, of which George S. Davison, president of the Pittsburgh Flood Commission, is chairman.

The Tri-State Authority was recently created expressly for this effort in a conference of more than 100 mayors and burgesses in Pittsburgh.

The plans for flood control call for a system of flood control reservoirs to protect cities and towns in the valleys of the Upper Ohio, Monongahela and Allegheny rivers. The project is to cost approximately $50,000,000 and employ 30,000 men for a period of one year.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Sept. 5.
To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Every holiday ought to be named "Labor Day." If we could ever get vacations down to where you wasn't any more tired after one than on our regular work day, it would be wonderful.

Will Rogers

The President caught Vincent Astor not watching him close, and sneaked off his yacht and went on a whaler. From what I can hear about yachting, the tough part is getting somebody to ride with you. One rough day and you lose half your crew, and all your guests.

By the way, a good stiff sales tax on "hamburgers" today would have paid our national debt. Give an American a one-piece bathing suit, a hamburger and five gallons of gas, and they are just as tickled as a movie star with a new divorce.

Beat Machine in Both Parties, Henry Urges

An appeal to citizens to defeat the political machine in both parties by registering Democratic Thursday was issued today by John M. Henry, candidate for Democratic mayoralty nomination. He said:

"Remember that the main issues of this campaign will be fought out in the primary election. It is a fight between the machine and the people."

Asserting Mayor John S. Herron was sure to win the Republican nomination, Henry declared his opponent in the Democratic race, William N. McNair, had the support of the Guffey-Lawrence machine. It was, he declared, "no more than a spare wheel on the Republican organization," and continued:

"You can't do your part in the fight for independent government if you don't register Democratic so you can cast your ballot in the primary against machine rule in both parties.

"For instance, if the Democratic machine should win at the primary and general election, it would rule the police force with the same iron hand as the Republican today."

Repeating his promise to take the police out of politics, Henry launched into a bitter attack on police control.

The police force must co-operate with racketeers because they "kick in to the campaign kitty," Henry said. Thus, he stated:

"The very institution created to bring about law and order is made an instrument of evil, and a trail of crime is sure to follow."

Henry will speak tonight at the King School of Oratory, Grimes avenue, Knoxville, at 8:30. Among other speakers are Attorney Charles A. Fagan, Jr., and Leo Guthrie, candidate for Jury Com[illegible]

TRAGEDY MARKS AIR RACE CLOSE

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—Tragedy marked the close of the international air races. Florence Klingensmith, 26, possessor of the woman's loop-the-loop airplane record, was the victim.

She was killed while flying at 200 miles an hour in yesterday's Phillips $10,000 trophy race.

The airplane, owned by Arthur Knapp, of Jackson, Mich., plunged to earth a half mile from the flying field after the ship's tail was seen to tip as it passed the grand stand.

Miss Klingensmith had completed seven laps for a total distance of about 60 miles of the 100-mile track when the mishap occurred.

She established her woman's loop-the-loop record in Chicago in 1931, completing 1,078 loops in four and a half hours of flying.

She was the second victim of the four-day events. The other was Roy Liggett, 22-year-old Omaha flier, killed Saturday when his plane fell during a test flight.

Kane Denies McNair Alliance With Coyne

Council Candidate Accuses Henry of 'Falsifications'

A "warning" to voters against "untruths and malicious innuendo," which he charged to John M. Henry, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Mayor, was issued today by Representative John J. Kane, candidate for Council.

As chairman of the Democratic committee sponsoring the mayoralty candidacy of William N. McNair, Kane credited the following "falsifications" to Henry:

"Henry's assertion that McNair has a hook-up with Republican Boss Coyne. This is a lie. Evidently even Henry's friends resent it, for now he says McNair is sincere but doesn't know who his backers are.

"His claim to have supported Franklin D. Roosevelt. Henry did not support Roosevelt in the primary elections last year. Neither did he support Al Smith. If he made any Roosevelt speeches after the nomination, he was simply doing what many others were—getting on the band wagon.

"He claims to be 'wet.' Yet he was for 'dry' McAdoo against Al Smith. He bolted 'wet' Hemphill to support 'dry' Pinchot in the governorship fight.

"He makes continual slighting reference to M. L. Benedum, Joseph F. Guffey and David L. Lawrence for their support of McNair, seeking to link their names with Mellon and Coyne.

"Benedum last week was appointed by the President to an important post under the NRA. Guffey was the first man in the state to tender support to Gov. Roosevelt and is his accredited political representative in Pennsylvania. Guffey, with Lawrence and Benedum, did more to bring about the election of Roosevelt delegates in Pennsylvania than all others.

"It would not surprise me if Henry's next attempt would be to link the names of Roosevelt and Coyne."

Hough Cites Record In Support of Candidacy

Representative Edward M. Hough presented his public service record in support of his candidacy for Council on the Progressive Republican ticket, in an address last night.

Having served in the select Council of old Allegheny, Hough said, he was carried over in 1907 as a member of the first Council of Greater Pittsburgh.

He praised George W. Guthrie, then Mayor, for removing police and firemen from politics.

Going to the Legislature in 1911, Hough said, he was a member of sessions acting on the small Council for Pittsburgh, the school code, child labor legislation, mother's pension and the full crew bill.

Becoming a police magistrate in 1921, Hough said he was returned to the Legislature in 1933, where he supported old age pensions and legislation favorable to veterans.

Tieup of Candidates Opposed by Patterson

A plea for the election of Council members unaffiliated with any mayoralty candidate, was made by John W. Patterson, Council candidate, in an address last night. He said:

"A group of candidates slated with any mayor, should they be elected, would be obligated to that mayor and defeat the very purpose for which Council was created. The Councilmanic body of Pittsburgh was created to check the mayor."

Patterson said he had heard that some councilmanic candidates on the tickets of Joseph N. Mackrell and P. J. McArdle had paid as high as $5,000 for the association.

Patterson attacked the record of the present administration as one of vice, corruption and rackets. Largely to blame, he said, was a mayor's majority in Council, consistently defeating the honest efforts of the Independents.

LINDSAY TAKES RAP AT JUDGE

Attorney Alexander P. Lindsay, speaking at a noonday meeting in Citizens' League headquarters, today said that the imperative need in Allegheny County was a bench free of political entanglements or obligations. Lindsay is a candidate for Common Pleas Court.

He said there was more politics in the present judiciary campaign than had occurred in previous campaigns in the county. He pointed to the fact that judges could appoint election officers to fill vacancies, and that judges with political tags might thus exercise a great influence on elections.

He said:

"Last week we had before our courts the effort to put the names of 10,000 persons, hundreds of them 'phantoms,' on the assessment books. By a vote of two to one the court prevented it. It was a clash between independent thought and a man who was favoring the gang, and who is reported to have said from the bench that he might be prejudiced."

Lindsay was praised by Mrs. Mary Flinn Lawrence as an active worker for strengthened election laws.

McArdle Links Mackrell With Machine of Vare

Cites Past Support Of Organization By Rival

Councilman P. J. McArdle today charged that Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell, one of his opponents for the Republican mayoralty nomination, was trying to transplant the Vare system of machine politics from Philadelphia to Pittsburgh.

In a noon meeting at his headquarters McArdle concentrated all of his attack on Mackrell, and practically ignored Mayor John S. Herron, against whose political organization both McArdle and Mackrell are fighting. Noting Mackrell's charge that the Citizens League, backing McArdle, feared to attack W. L. Mellon because of danger of having its campaign funds shut off, McArdle declared that if there was such fear, the Citizens League would be supporting Herron, the Mellon-Coyne candidate.

MACKRELL ASSAILED

County Controller Robert G. Woodside, manager of the Mackrell campaign, and J. Boyd Euwer, its chairman, are close to Mellon, McArdle asserted, adding that in past campaigns Mackrell had been found on the side of the organization candidates, while he had backed independents. Woodside, he said, jumped the party in 1930 rather than support Gov. Pinchot, and Mackrell in 1931 backed District Attorney Andrew T. Park while McArdle favored Ralph H. Smith.

The Citizens League and its candidate have no concern about what Mellon or former Senator Joseph R. Grundy are thinking about, McArdle declared. He said:

"eW want Pittsburgh to be free of Mellon-Grundy,Coyne domination now in force, but we do not want the city to be transferred to the control of the Vare political organization in Philadelphia under the corporate title of Vare, Mackrell, Woodside and Senator William D? Mansfield."

MANSFIELD LINKED

Mansfield's support of Mackrell was thus drawn into the campaign for the first time. McArdle called Mansfield a "professed" independent when he was a candidate for County Commissioner, and said he had supported him, along with Commissioner Charles C. McGovern, while Mackrell backed Mansfield and the late Joseph G. Armstrong.

Mackrell and James M. Clark, then safety director in the Kline administration, were backed as delegates to the last Republican national convention, McArdle said, while he ran as an independent. He charged that Mackrell had backed judicial slates when McArdle was for independents.

The fundamental issue of the mayoralty campaign is decency and economy of administration, and not state and national politics, McArdle said.

Mrs. Mary Flinn Lawrence was chairman of the meeting, and urged independent votes for McArdle.

Nowicki, who received notice of his dismissal the first of the month, denied he was opposed to Mayor John S. Herron's re-election. He said:

"I still have the 'Herron for Mayor' sticker in the window of my car and the Herron button on the lapel of my coat. I've never said anything against the administration, and I'm no double-crosser."

400,000 VISIT COUNTY FAIR

Allegheny County today looked back on its first fair—a drawing ace for nearly 400,000 persons within five days.

The jinx that failed to mar the show with inclement weather three days out of five continued unsuccessful to the end as 100,000 filed into the South Park fair grounds on the closing day yesterday.

GIRL HURT, AUTO CRASHES HOUSE

A girl was slightly injured early today as two automobiles collided in Saw Mill Run boulevard and crashed into a house at 1308 Edgebrook avenue.

Miss Stella Misgalla, 19, of Castle Shannon, a passenger of John Layman, 26, of 419 Parson street, was treated at the scene and sent home. The other machine was driven by John Sitar, 42, of 1600 Bingham street. Sitar attempted to pass Layman, police reported.

The damaged house was occupied by John Beeler. None of the occupants was injured.

Struck by an automobile at Madison avenue and South Canal street, Alexander Swiderski, 8, of 801 South Canal street, was injured internally last night. The boy was taken to Allegheny General Hospital where his condition is said to be serious.

'BIKE' STEALING SUSPECTS HELD

Nine boys, from 6 to 12 years of age, mimicking "big time" automobile thieves with a "wholesale" robbery of bicycles, today face hearings before Justice of the Peace Elmer Greiner in Bellevue.

The boys, most of them from the Woods Run district, were arrested yesterday by Bellevue police, after an investigation of the theft of bicycles in their district. About a dozen stolen "bikes" were found in their possession, they said.

According to police the boys dismantled the allegedly stolen bicycles, painted and reassembled them with parts interchanged. Some were then sold.

The boys who will be arraigned Friday have been released in the custody of their parents.

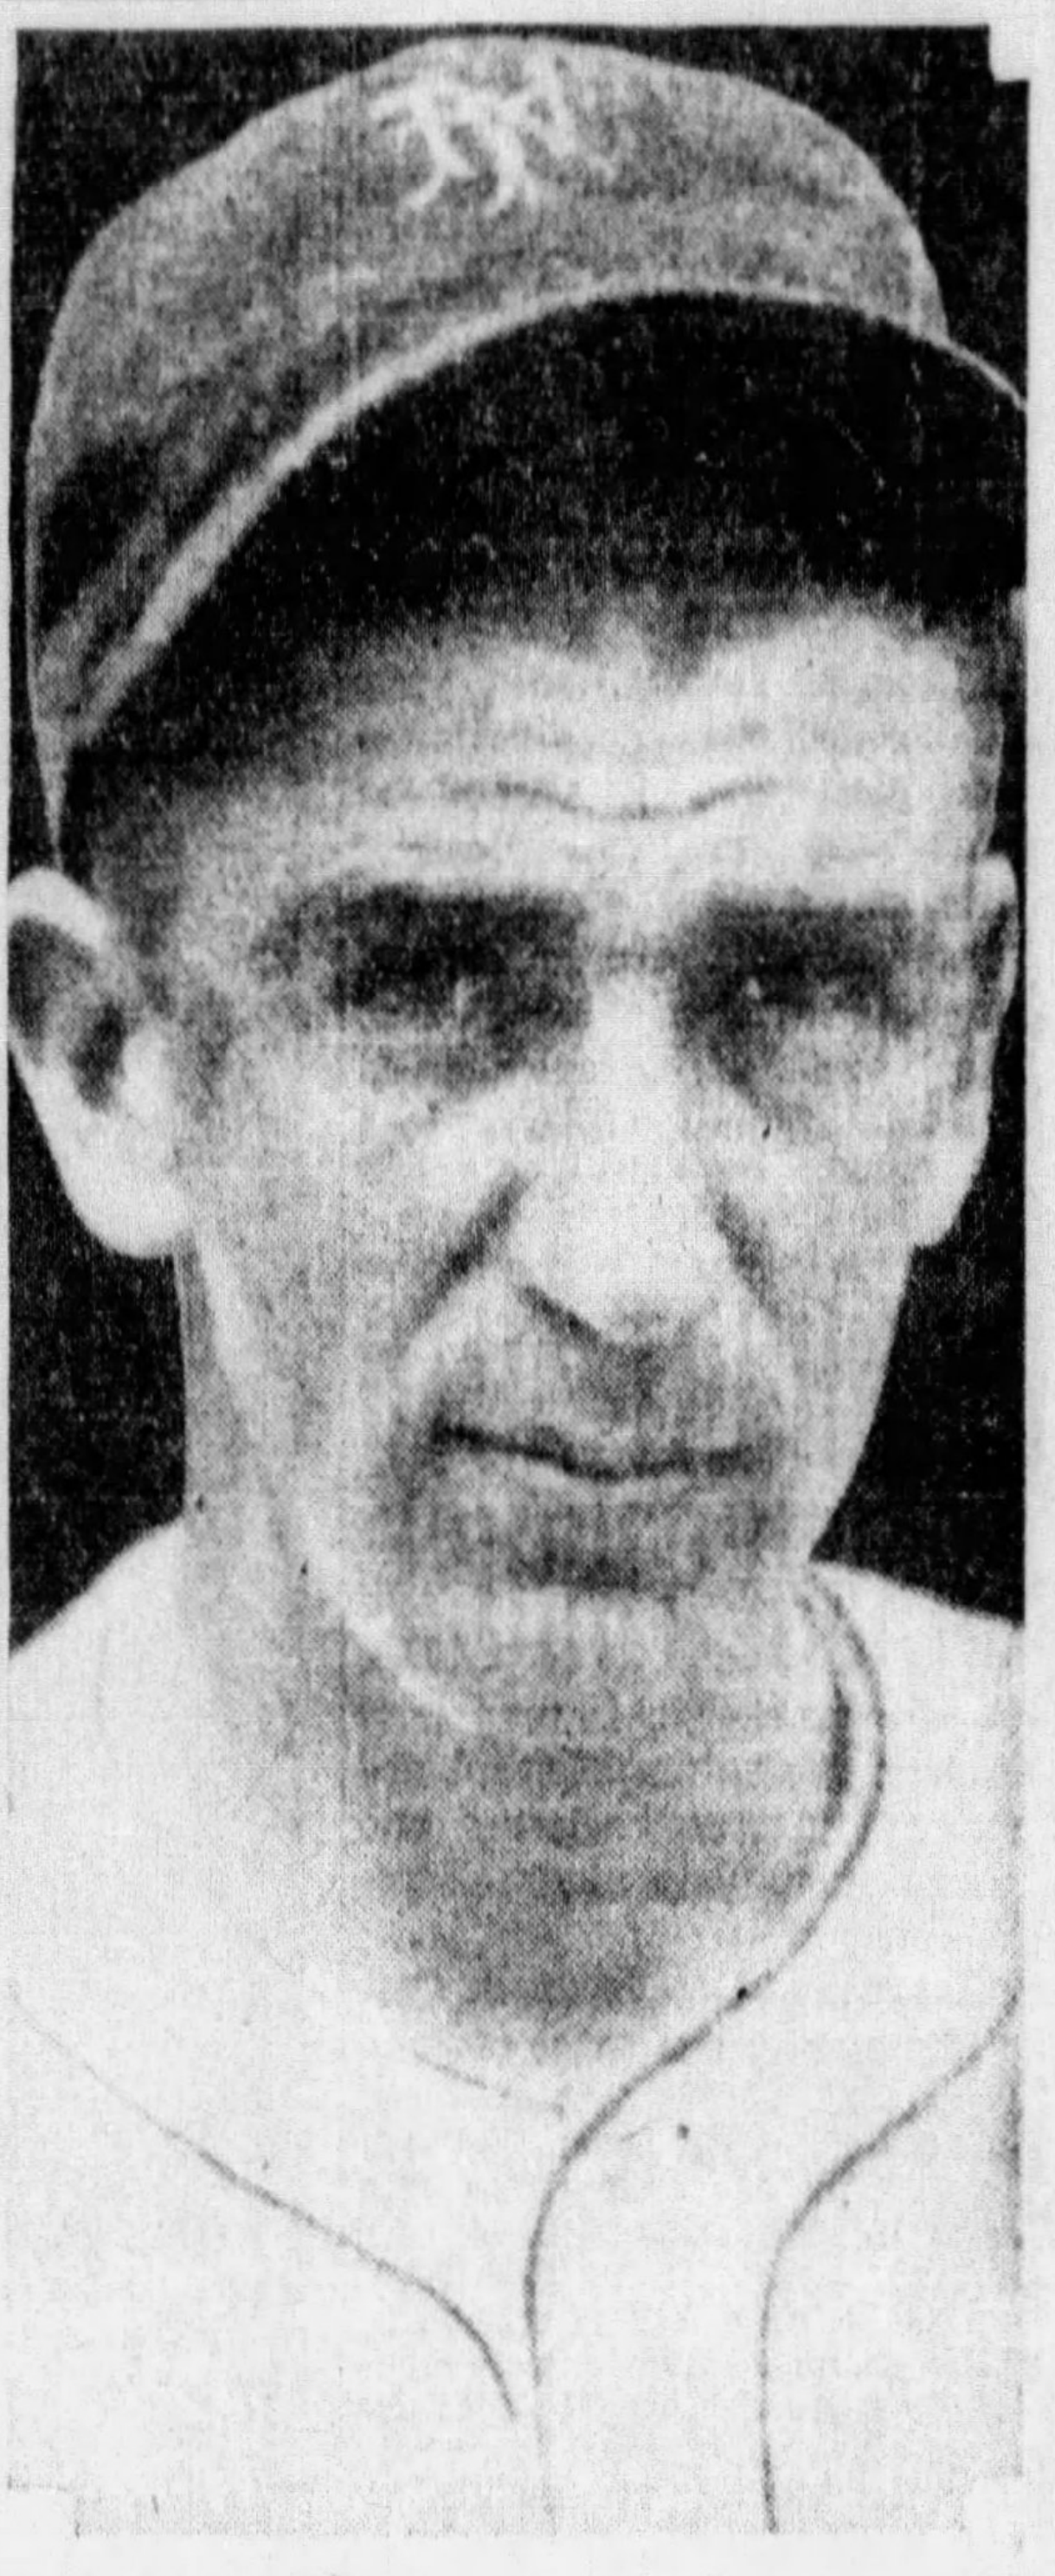
MEL OTT BIG STAR FOR GIANTS IN PENNANT RACE

SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS



MANAGER BILL TERRY, PITCHER CARL HUBBELL AND FELLOW GIANTS HERE FOR FIVE-GAME SERIES WITH PIRATES AT FORBES FIELD

The high spot of the 1933 baseball season is at hand for the Pirate fans with the arrival of the league-leading New York Giants in town for a five-game series with the Pirates beginning today and including a doubleheader tomorrow. The most-talked-about pitched in the game, Carl Hubbell, will be seen in action in at least one of the battles. He has won 20 games, 10 of them shutouts, and has a record for the season of 46 consecutive scoreless innings. Last week he pitched shutouts against the Cardinals and Braves, with only two days' rest between the games. Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph pictures shows Manager Terry, who is headed pennantward in his first full season as John McGraw's successor, at the left; Hubbell at the right and a closeup of Carl's high-salaried southpaw whip above. The Giants also have been getting real pitching from Parmalee, Fitzsimmons, Schumacher.

FADING PIRATE CHANCE NOW AT STAKE

Just as it puts at stake the last trace of anything that might be figured as a pennant chance for the Pirates, the big five-game series with the league leaders opening at Forbes Field today also comes close to representing the last hurdle between the Giants and the flag. The only tough spot later will be that six-game tangle with the Cubs in four days at Chicago next week, and if the Terrys get out of Pittsburgh without having their lead seriously diminished they will have a pretty safe working margin when they invade the Windy City, particularly as the schedule provides a strain-easing string of five games against the Cincinnati tail-enders in the meantime. So if the Pirates don't pull something very close to a clean-up in the present series the race will be as good as over.

Travis Jackson

The washout of the Giants' scheduled pair of games with the Phils yesterday, while the Bucs were gaining half a game through Hal Smith's 1-to-0 victory, didnt' help Pittsburgh's chances. It enabled the leaders to rest up their pitchers after the strain of the Boston series and put Manager Bill Terry in a position to go into the local engagement with his great staff all set for a fresh start, and no member of it required to face the Bucs with less than three days of recuperation.

JACKSON REPEATS RESCUE ACT OF 1923

The steadiness of the Giants over the remainder of the route will depend largely on Travis Jackson's knees holding out and making it possible for him to continue keeping the infield together by plugging the hole at third base caused by the loss of Johnny Vergez.

That's the only doubt about Jackson—his physical durability. There's no question as to his spirit or his ability to play the third sack up to requirements. This is the second time Jackson has performed a rescue act at the same position to save a pennant for the Giants. He played 31 games at third base in 1923, and when Heine Groh was out from August 12 to September 2, Jax covered the bag the greater part of the time in a style that had not a little to do with keeping the club in first place.

WATCH OUT, BUCS! TERRY HAS BEEN IN SLUMP

If you didn't know already that pitching, spirit and infield smoothness, with Mancuso's excellent catching and Terry's fine leadership, are the factors that have kept the Giants in first place since June 10, you could discern it in the batting averages. The New Yorkers rank only fifth in the league on attack, with just one .300 hitter in Manager Terry, and Davis, Jackson, Mancuso, Critz, James, Peel, Ryan and Richards hitting from .254 down to .180. In three of the four very important victories in Boston it was the pitcher who knocked in the winning run.

Terry himself has been in one of his worst slumps. In the last 14 games up to today, the Giant manager made only seven hits in 56 times at bat, an average of only .125. In no game during that stretch did he make more than one hit, and in seven of the 14 contests he failed to get a safety. Without wishing him any hard luck, the Pirates and their followers will have no regrets if Memphis Bill postpones his recovery until after the local series, but it's not at all comforting to realize that he's due to break loose any minute.

DODGERS ONE SHORT OF DUAL-BILL RECORD

Max Carey expresses the belief that his Brooklyn club established a new major league record for consecutive double-headers when it played eight straight bargain bills in as many playing days before the string was interrupted by the staging of a single game with the Phillies last Saturday, but as a matter of fact the Dodgers fell short of the mark by one step.

Max Carey

The record for dual bills in succession is nine, and it was set by the Boston National League clubs within a span of 11 days in 1928. From September 4 to 14, inclusive, the Braves played in a row two double-headers with the Dodgers, two with the Phillies, four with the Giants, and one with the Cubs. And while they were about it, the Bostonese hung up another mark that still stands by losing both games in five

BRITISH RACER TO TRY AGAIN NEXT YEAR

International News Service.

ALGONAC, Mich., Sept. 5.—Another Harmsworth trophy race has passed into history, and the famous bronze placque that means world water speed supremacy remains securely in the possession of the United States.

The story of the nineteenth Harmsworth is the same story that has been told for 13 years, and its hero is the same hero—the white-haired master strategist, Gar Wood, of Grayhaven.

Game to the end, Hubert Scott-Paine, red-haired British challenger, went down to defeat on the River St. Clair yesterday, his little all-metal Miss Britain III outclassed by Wood's mighty Miss America X.

With more than a quarter of a mile to spare, the Fox of Grayhaven coasted across the finish line in the second heat of the race to add one more victory to a string of triumphs unbroken since 1920. Saturday he won the first heat, leading the Miss Britain III by almost three miles.

BACK NEXT YEAR

Defeated but undaunted, the challenger announced immediately after the race that he planned to return in 1934 with a new boat to make a second assault on the trophy. He said:

"It will be a heavier boat next time. I made a mistake in trying to beat the Miss America X with a light craft."

The courage and dauntless purpose of the Briton made the race the finest Harmsworth has seen since Wood took the placque from England.

The Briton literally looked death in the face every yard of the two 35-mile heats. Wedged tightly in the cockpit of his little bullet-shaped craft, he pushed the Miss Britain III to speeds as high as 106 miles an hour, while bouncing like a cork ball in the tremendous wash of the Miss America X.

RISKS HIS LIFE

Every time she struck the back stretch of the course and caught the full rush of the American boat's wake, the Miss Britain III leaped clear out of the water. Twice she came within a breath of capsizing. On each lap, Scott-Paine was forced to check her speed to avoid disaster.

But never did he hesitate for more than an instant. The moment the height of the danger was past the flame and smoke thundered again from Miss Britain III's single motor and the little silver boat shot down the course in vain pursuit of the great defender.

Although he was defeated by the Miss America X's superior power and speed, Scott-Paine succeeded in licking the "jinx" that has pursued every Harmsworth challenger who has tried to take the trophy from Wood. Matching Wood's famous twin Teddy bears with a good luck token of his own—a rubber doll representing a British sailor—Scott-Paine became the first challenger since 1920 to complete a Harmsworth race.

Local Pro Stars Hold Kicking Drill

NEWELL'S GROVE, Pa., Sept. 5.—The Pittsburgh Pirates will not suffer from lack of kickers in the National Football League this year, if the workouts yesterday afternoon can be taken as a criterion. Coach Jap Douds had his backs kicking, and Pete Brovelli, Tony Holm, Jim Tanguay, Stuart Wilson and Tesser, the big end, gave a mid-season exhibition.

Coach Douds has invented a few shifts of his own, and he spent considerable time in the morning working on them. Oehler, the all-America center from Purdue, was over the ball, and the squad of backs took their turn at working.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: THE STRANGE ORIGIN OF LABOR DAY—Labor Day in the United States was originated by the Knights of Labor, an organization which started among the garment cutters of Philadelphia, in 1869. They held their first labor parade Monday, September 4, 1882, and repeated it two years later. Owing to universal agitation, Colorado made the day a state holiday, an example that was followed by most of the States. The emblem of the Knights of Labor bears a motto adopted from the works of Solon. One of the strangest coincidences in History is the fact that Solon, first social reformer, more than 25 centuries ago, set aside the second day (Monday) of the first decade (week) of Boedromion, a month corresponding to our September, as a feast day to be celebrated by festal remission of labor for the benefit of the two lowest classes of Greek society, the Hektemors and the Slaves, thus foreshadowing in a most curious manner the American Labor Day. EASTMAN BROKE A 32-YEAR-OLD RECORD—On October 4, 1900, Maxie Long set the remarkable record of 47 seconds for the 440-yard dash. In all amateur, collegiates or professional track sports, Long's record never was beaten officially until Ben Eastman, at Palo Alto, Cal., on March 26, 1932, cut the time down to 46.4 seconds.

Hickock, president of the manufacturing company which bears his name, died last night at the age of 59, after an illness of two years. The end came at the summer home of his mother-in-law, near Williamsport.

OUTFIELD ACE LEADS DRIVE OF TERRYS

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

An unsung hero of the New York Giants' drive for the National League flag is the modest young man who covers his position as well as or better than his rivals and whose bat is one of the most feared in baseball. The reference is to Melvin (Mel) Ott, Bill Terry's right fielder.

Mell missed getting into the four straight world series staged by Producer John McGraw for the very good reason that he was just a boy discarding his short breeches. The young Louisiana athlete was born in 1909 and therefore is only 24, despite a colorful eight-year record with the Giants.

BIG LEAGUER AT 17

Ott came direct to the Giants from his high school. He played 35 games in 1926, when he was 17, and batted .383. Then and there he convinced McGraw that he was a potential star and Ott proceeded to vindicate his sponsor's judgment. He has a collective batting average of approximately .320 to show for his eight years, and he seems only to be starting.

Mel is not a big fellow, but he has powerful arms and shoulders which are put into play when he does his home-run trick. On defense he bows to nobody in the National League. He, Chuck Klein and Paul Waner are the class of the rightfielders of the league and in the case of the Giant star, the vast centerfield range holds no terrors. Blessed with a powerful arm, Ott cuts down many a daring baserunner. Manager Terry has an extremely high regard for the southern boy.

TOMMY WINS ANOTHER

The Pirates won a 1-to-0 decision over the Reds yesterday in the only Labor Day game played at Forbes Field. Wet weather in the morning caused the home management to order a dual bill for the afternoon, but only one contest could be played owing to additional showers.

Tommy Thevenow and Pie Traynor were the offensive heroes of a great slab duel featuring Hal Smith and Si Johnson. Smith allowed eight hits and Johnson yielded nine as the game went scoreless through eight frames.

The Bucs had a bit of luck to win in the ninth. The rain was pelting Johnson furiously as Traynor opened the ninth with a single. Vaughan sacrificed. The Reds hoped the umpires would halt the fight as they passed Suhr intentionally. But the umps were eager to get the game completed and after Suhr had walked Tommy Thevenow completed it for them with a clean single to left scoring Pie. Sensational fielding enlivened the tilt.

Thanks, Tommy!

TARTAN FOOTBALLERS OPEN TRAINING GRIND

32 GRIDDERS REPORT TO HARPSTER

By JESS CARVER

Howdy Harpster and his man Friday, Don Lovewell, who'll be his man Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday and Saturday as well, returned to their alma mater at Carnegie Tech today in the role of football mentors, Howdy as the chief and Don the first assistant.

Red Stewart

They returned to face a tough setup, too, one hardly calculated to make the lads' introduction to major league football anything resembling a picnic.

Harpster and Lovewell looked over a varsity squad numbering 32, led by Capt. Red Stewart, this morning in the Tartan Bowl, where morning and afternoon sessions will be held daily for the next two weeks. The Tartans have a honey of an opener in prospect, being called upon to square off against the formidable Temple University Owls, now under the canny and experienced direction of the one and only Pop Warner. This game goes in the Pitt Stadium October 7.

STEFFEN TO AID

For a short period after September 20, Judge Walter Steffen, who retired to the school's football committee after 20 years as head man at Tech, will return to lend a hand with the squad.

With the exception of the center position, where no experienced man is available to replace Rudy Jones, Toledo's favorite son, the Skibos are fairly well off as far as line material is concerned. The backfield situation, however, is not so good, there being no outstanding performer around whom to construct an offensive quartet.

Tech is exceptionally well off for terminals. In Capt. Colin (Small Steak) Stewart, the Skibos have a whizz of a player, one of those lads who always is there in the old pinch and who can put the pinch on as well. The return to action after a year's layoff due to a broken leg of Libbus Lewis, of Washington, Pa., fixed up the other end of the line. Lewis had his prop shattered in the Notre Dame game two years ago.

W. & J. BEGINS GRIND

Yesterday, the lads at Wash-Jeff and Westminster took the plunge, going through double workouts at Washington and New Wilmington. Labor Day was anything but a holiday for the collegians elsewhere, too, Elmer Layden giving his Dukes two strenuous drills; Frank Wolf cracking the whip at Waynesburg and Jimmy Robertson driving the Covenanters at Geneva.

Butler Auto Race Recarded Saturday

BUTLER, Pa., Sept. 5.—The 100-mile auto race, scheduled for the local fair grounds race track yesterday, was postponed until Saturday due to rain and a muddy and slippery track.

Two racers, Buck Johnson, of Tarentum, and Jim Nicholson, of Pittsburgh, cracked up as they were warming up yesterday. Both were slightly injured and their cars badly damaged.

Tom Berry Scores Three Circuit Wins

Berry drove to victory in the two feature events, the Fox Pacing Stake and the Horseman Futurity, 2-year-old pacing division, besides taking the classified trot, opening event.

BASEBALL COMEDY

By NICK ALTROCK

BOSTON, Sept. 5.—Well, dear palsy-walsies of the newspaper audience, all that old Uncle Nicolai Altrockovitch has to say for today's sermon is that I'm glad us guys are engaged in playing baseball instead of lawn tennis these days.

Nick Altrock

If we were fighting for the world championship of the 30-love pastime with some of these dames and it got along in the sixth inning and we'd put over a couple of homeruns—or whatever you call a four-ply blast in the racquet sport—why, we'd expect the champions to come out and yell:

"On account of a pain in the neck which we just acquired, we are now retiring to the shower baths, so you guys can have your mean old world series and we wish we'd paid attention to our family doctor last spring and kept on our red flannels."

And that would be the end of the world series and they'd be refunding tickets for the remaining games for the next 90 days. Ain't 40-love grand?

GRAPHIC GOLF

TAKE CLUB WELL BACK EVEN ON SHORT PITCH SHOTS.
AIDS SMOOTHER ACCELERATION

GAUGING THE SWING AND POSITION OF BALL

One of the faults the average golfer is heir to in playing mashie and short pitch shots to the green is the matter of a too abrupt backswing. This results in a lunge at the ball, the backswing often being cut short by the downswing. On the other hand, there are golfers whose mistakes lie in taking the club back too far and then attempting to ease the downstroke with disastrous results. Somewhere between these two extremes there is a happy medium which the golfer should search for. Many such shots also are dubbed because the golfer stands too far away from the ball. Most star players, and Gene Sarazen above affords a good example, stand close to the sphere. There then is no tendency to bend the body forward to reach it, and, as oftentimes happens, shank it. Stand close to such a shot for best results in both distance and direction.

C. KAUFFMANN PACES CITY GOLF FIELD

By TOM BIRKS

Shattering par by two strokes when he turned in a brilliant 64, Carl F. Kauffmann, former city golf champion, led the early finishers at the end of the first 18 holes of the 36-hole qualifying round of the annual city championship at Schenley Park today.

Kauffmann toured the first nine in 32 strokes and returned on the homeward trip with another 32 for his 64.

Mike Galido, the defending champion, appeared to be out of the running for a place in the championship 16 as a result of taking a 73.

Andy Szwedko and J. Calhoun were deadlocked for second place with 68s. Thec ards:

VINES EMPHATIC IN DENIAL OF PRO PLANS

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 5.—(AP.)—A rainy afternoon and consequent postponement of second round matches in the national singles tennis championships have given Ellsworth Vines still another chance to deny emphatically any immediate intention of turning professional.

Informed that Martin Plaa, veteran professional, had said in Paris that he and Henri Cochet would meet Vines and Big Bill Tilden in New York next winter, Vines declared there was no basis whatever for the report and that he was too busy defending his American amateur crown to give any thought to professional offers at this time. He said:

"I have never talked with Plaa about any professional proposal and I have made no arrangements whatever with him or anybody else for anything of that kind."

OFF DAY BENEFITS GIANTS

LEADERS' TIRED HURLING STAFF GETS REST

Associated Press.

The National League drama moved into Forbes Field in Pittsburgh today as Bill Terry's Giants swung West for the last time this year with at least two of the first division trailers hanging doggedly to what little chance remains of catching the leaders.

Unfortunately for the hind chasers, the Giants' lead is made up largely of games on the losing side. With the Giants playing only 28 more games, there remains nothing else for the contenders to do but sweep away that margin in hand to hand conflict if it's to be done at all.

GIANTS GET BREAK

Rains that swept the East gave the Giants a day of rest yesterday, wiping out a doubleheader with the Phillies that would have added further strain to a pitching staff already wearied by a multitude of doubleheaders. One of yesterday's two games is lost entirely from the schedule, as there is no possible open date on which the Giants can work in another match with the Phillies, another small boon for the New Yorkers.

The Cubs disposed of St. Louis' twin aces, Dizzy Dean and Tex Carleton, to win both halves of a doubleheader, 6 to 4 and 5 to 2, and edged the idle Braves from third place by half a game. A six-run blast off Dean, who set his league strike-out record of 17 against the Cubs a few weeks ago, settled the issue in the second inning of the first game as Guy Bush pitched shutout ball for seven frames.

BUSH BEATS CARDS

A line drive from Pepper Martin's bat almost tore one of Bush's stanchions away in the seventh and probably weakened him in the eighth when five Cardinal singles counted for four runs before the Mississippi Mudcat recovered and squelched the uprising.

Charley Root had all the better of the second game, allowing but four hits.

The only activities in the American League that escaped the holiday downpour were doubleheaders in Detroit and Cleveland. The Tigers took two from the White Sox, 8 to 0, and 5 to 4, while Walter Johnson's Indians twice beat the St. Louis Browns, 3 to 2 and 2 to 0, behind steady pitching by Oral Hildebrand and Clint Brown.

Arkle to Oppose Ed Alcorn Here

B. F. Arkle, of Wheeling, and Ed Alcorn, former Pitt star, will clash here Saturday in a semifinal round match of the first annual Allegheny Mountain tennis tournament. The match scheduled for the Westmont Tennis Club, in Johnstown, yesterday, was called off because of rain. Finals will be played at Westmont Sunday.

Jack Schroeder and Betty Keeney won the mixed doubles title in the round robin junior tennis tournament at the Allegheny County Club yesterday with a score of 18.

LOU GEHRIG AILING

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 5.—(INS.)—Lou Gehrig, New York Yankee first baseman, was suffering from a cold today, but insisted he would play against the Athletics to continue his consecutive-game record.

Alexander Gives Dope On Southern Elevens

By W. A. ALEXANDER,

Member, All America Board of Football (Reg. U. S. Pat. Office.)

Labor Day found all members of the Southern and Southeastern Conferences starting practice. Two workouts a day have been the routine on most of the fields as the first games for 1933 come on September 23.

Bill Alexander

Before any attempt can be made to rank the teams, it is necessary to explain the two major athletic groups in the South recently divided.

Prior to this fall, all major colleges in the 11 Southern states, east of the Mississippi River, belonged to the Southern Conference. This conference covered such a large territory and had so many members that it was found impracticable to administer it properly. Last winter, the territory was split and a new conference known as the Southeastern Conference was formed.

CONFERENCE SPLIT

Institutions located in Maryland, Virginia, North and South Carolina are in one group and are known as the Southern Conference. Colleges in Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana are in another group and are known as the Southeastern Conference. Both conferences are practically identical as to rules and regulations.

Strange as it may seem, the college professors who made the split named the eastern group "The Southern Conference" and the southern group "The Southeastern Conference." This system of naming, of course, is complicated except to the highly trained collegiate mind. And the writer is only a coach!

Duke University and V. P. I., seem to be the prospective leaders in the Southern Conference for the coming season. Both have the players and the coaching to insure victory over their neighbors. V. P. I., under Coach Younger, had a smooth-running team last fall, losing only one game and that by a close score. It returns to the wars with practically the entire '32 outfit and is likely to go undefeated this fall. Duke lost several of its top-flight players of a year ago, but the organization work that Coach Wallace Wade has been doing for the past two years should commence to have its effect this fall. If Wade can replace Mason, his quarterback, with even a fair man, Duke will be hard to lick.

SOUTH CAROLINA STRONG

The University of South Carolina may step into the championship picture. Last fall, its team was a match for any in size and physical strength. By November it had developed timing and fine spirit. If it can start in where it left off, South Carolina may fly its first pennant.

In the new Southeastern Conference, the University of Tennessee rates above any other eleven. A veteran line, two super-excellent backs in Feathers and Brackett and the versatile Maj. Bob Neyland as head coach are a combination that none of the other schools can match.

Alabama and Louisiana State University have high hopes based on very excellent and very numerous material. Frank Thomas at Alabama and Biff Jones at L. S. U. can be counted on to get the most out of the material on hand. Thomas, using the Notre Dame system, is worried over the loss of Hurry Cain, his All America fullback, and Jones hopes to develop a couple of shifty halfbacks. A man to replace Cain at Alabama and a real halfback at L. S. U. would boost these two teams up into the upper brackets along with Tennessee.

AUBURN "DARK HORSE"

The dark horse in the Southeastern race is Auburn. From last year's champions are lost only one end, one guard and Hitchcock, All-America halfback. But Hitchcock meant as much to Auburn as Hitchcock means to polo! In Phipp, Auburn has a back with the apparent ability to replace Hitchcock and its freshman team should furnish a guard and an end to fill a bad gap.

Auburn will have one eleven that will be the equal of any in the country. The dopsters are saying its reserves will be weak. Coach Chet Wynne, former Notre Dame star, is really the only one who knows about this point, and he is not talking, always evidence that a coach has something hidden out.

Tulane, University of Georgia, Vanderbilt, Kentucky, University of Mississippi and Georgia Tech should have acceptable teams, but cannot hope to escape defeat. All are depending on sophomore material and have schedules that indicate rough sledding.

TEXAS HIGHLY TOUTED

Mississippi State, Florida and Sewanee should improve over last year, but are not of championship caliber. Clemson College and North Carolina State had good elevens last season and should cause some trouble this year in the Southern Conference race.

University of North Carolina, Virginia, Maryland, Washington and Lee and Virginia Military Institute all were weak last season and have too much ground to cover to worry about championships for a while.

A strong mind from the West whispers that the Longhorns, of the University of Texas, are due for a grand stampede this fall.

Among the smaller southern colleges, Centenary, Centre, Mercer and Furman look good. They will be better than some of the new conference teams.

If I'm wrong on any of this, tell me in November!

(Tomorrow—Eddie Casey, Harvard coach.)

straight bargains, one to the Phils and then four to the Giants.

YANKS HOLD MARK FOR DOUBLE WINS IN ROW

The Yankees hold the record for consecutive doubleheaders won, and it has stood for 27 years. Under the management of Clark Griffith back in 1906, when they were known as the Highlanders, the New York Americans cleaned up in five straight tandem cards in six days, from August 30 to September 4, inclusive, taking three from the Browns, one from the A's and one from the Red Sox. One of the victories over the Macks was gained by forfeit, with the score tied in nine innings.

The record for winning two games in one day most times during a season belongs to the Athletics, who did it on 12 occasions in 1911, holiday bills being included.

SOLLY SMITH'S LAST BATTLE FOUGHT HERE

The recent death of Solly Smith, who won the featherweight championship from George Dixon in 1897 and lost it to Dave Sullivan a year later, recalled to veteran local boxing fans that the final battle of Smith's ring career was fought here.

On October 2, 1897, Solly met Jack McClelland, Pittsburgh's great featherweight of those days, in a bout at Esplen. McClelland came out the winner when Smith, finding himself hopelessly beaten, deliberately quit in the sixth round on the plea that he had been fouled. Solly retired immediately afterward.

DUKES HAVE WON 38 GAMES UNDER LAYDEN

Elmer Layden can look back with a feeling of satisfaction on a very creditable record while he whips the Duquesne University football squad into shape for his seventh season as head coach at the Bluff school. In the six years that have elapsed since the former Notre Dame star and fullback of the immortal Four Horsemen began the task of bringing Duquesne up to the front ranks in college football, the Dukes won 38 games and tied six games against 15 defeats.

Elme Layden

The Red and Blue gridders have been particularly successful in night football, which they introduced in Pittsburgh on November 1, 1929, by defeating Geneva, 27 to 7, before a crowd of 30,000 at Forbes Field. Of 22 night games they have won 14 and tied three, w[illegible] losing only five. In a total of 59 ga[illegible] in six seasons under Layden's coaching, the Dukes have rolled up a grand tota[illegible] of 675 points against 372 for their opponents. In their 38 winning games they scored 627 points and held their foemen to 152.

HAUSER SETS HOMER MARK

ST. PAUL, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—Joe Hauser, home run champion of organized baseball, elevated his standing yesterday as three drives from his slugging bat whistled over the distant barriers of St. Paul and Minneapolis baseball parks for his sixty-third, sixty-fourth and sixty-fifth circuit clouts of the season.

The Minneapolis first baseman, reigning since 1930 when he smashed out 63 such blows while with Baltimore, broke that mark here with two drives over Lexington Park's right field fence—365 feet from home plate.

Scott Eleven Meets Uniontown Friday

Scott High, of North Braddock, and Uniontown will have the honor of ushering in the district scholastic football season Friday night when they clash under the lights at Scott Field, North Braddock.

Curry Booters Win Over Riehls, 4 to 1

Forbes

'Don't Kill the Goose Laying
Golden Eggs'

—By B. C. FORBES—

SEVERAL READERS write that they are "against NRA."

Mr. Forbes

Therefore, every citizen should co-operate to the very limit of his ability.

NRA BEING a very real fact, a very real actuality, it is unpatriotic to adopt towards it an attitude of hostility, an obstructive attitude.

BUT PATRIOTISM demands also that every responsible citizen should do everything within his power to influence NRA to tread right rather than wrong paths, to adopt sound rather than unsound policies, to keep vigilantly in mind the interests of all rather than the interests of any one group or clique or "ism."

Patriotism does not call for frenziedly applauding every step NRA proposes to take. Patriotism calls, rather, for intelligent comment, for outspoken citicism when a false step is contemplated.

THIS COLUMN has excited vituperation (as well as some commendation) for emphasizing that, unless business and industry can make ends meet under NRA, then NRA must inevitably end disastrously. Some readers characterize such a sentiment as treason.

But the fundamental, inescapable fact is that if it be not made possible for employers to pay prescribed wages, then the wages will not and cannot be paid beyond a temporary period and after that, what?

ONE BUSINESS man sends the following, in the expressed hope that it will be helpful, but like almost every other business man, he is mortally afraid to have one word of even the mildest criticism appear under his own name:

"Can industry deliver what politics has promised?

"There is a growing conviction among many leading industrialists that the burdens that are being placed upon industry may be so heavy that they may defeat the purpose behind the new national recovery program.

"Manufacturing concerns vary just as much as individuals do. Some have been chiseling. By curbing their selfish activities, NRA is doing a great public service.

"On the other hand, there are very many concerns which have been fighting, honestly and legitimately, a terrific battle for several years for their very existence. They have been straining every effort to keep faithful and loyal workmen employed at living wages. They have had to contend with unprincipled and unfair competition from makers of shoddy merchandise sold on the basis of price alone.

"Time after time, they have drawn on their resources to keep their plants operating but, while writing up their record month after month and year after year in red ink, they have kept going and have furnished a means of livelihood to thousands upon thousands of men and women.

"Much of this has been lost sight of in the popular mind today. . .

"With general popular assent, a screw has been tightened here and another burden on industry has been added there. 'Thou shalt not' after 'thou shalt not' has been laid down as the law by which industry, if it is to be regarded as patriotic, must be guided.

" 'That is your problem and you must work out the answer in your own way' has too often been the official reply to protests by puzzled industry unable to see how it can meet prescribed sets of regulations.

"In too few of the high places has there been recognition and appreciation of the fact that, after all, prosperity is dependent very largely upon the prosperity and profitable operation of industry."

IMPRACTICAL decrees will destroy, not fatten, pay envelopes. Therefore, it should not be accounted lese majeste when employers or others strive to induce officials to avoid issuing decrees destined to precipitate demoralization, bankruptcy, empty pay envelopes.

Plymouth Sales Outstrip Year Ago

DETROIT, Sept. 5.—Plymouth deliveries at retail for the week ended August 26 totaled 7,059 cars, an increase of 54 units over the previous week, according to H. G. Moock, Plymouth general sales manager.

Moock stated that sales during this period were three and one-half times greater than during the same week of a year ago.

ORDERS KEEP CHICAGO BUSY

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—Back orders on hand at present are sufficient to keep Chicago manufacturers and staple goods wholesalers busy at top speed until January 1, a survey by the Association of Commerce had announced today.

With factories, public utilities and department stores adding to their forces under the NRA codes, employment continued its upward surge in the last week, official figures showed.

August freight traffic on the Chicago and Northwestern, the Illinois Central and the Chesapeake and Ohio recorded appreciable gains. Loadings of freight on the Northwestern road were 116,610 cars last month, an increase of 21,395 over August, 1932.

MISSOURI LIFE SALE URGED

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—R. Emmett O'Malley, superintendent of the Missouri Insurance Department, today will ask Circuit Judge H. A. Hamilton's approval of a transaction by which the assets and business of the Missouri State Life Insurance Company will be sold to the General American Life Insurance Company.

O'Malley announced his intention of bringing the matter into court today after a lengthy conference with Walter W. Head, president of the new company and a corps of legal advisors. General American is backed financially by David M. Milton, son-in-law of John D. Rockefellef, Jr.

The contract provides that the General American will place on deposit an amount adequate to meet death and annuity benefits.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 5.—(INS.)—Total credit extended by the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco increased from $157,500,000 to $158,300,000 between August 23 and 30, while reserve bank credit employed with the Twelfth Federal Reserve District declined $1,100,000, it was announced here today.

Startling
Facts About
Disastrous Accident that Spread
Death and Destruction!

IT is not a secret to science that meteors or comets in bygone ages have struck the earth, spreading terror and havoc. But nobody knew until just recently that such a collision took place within an area now comprising several states of our country.

Two American professors discovered the disastrous accident after piecing together airplane photographs taken while flying over some of the Southern States. They found signs of a collision with a huge comet which undoubtedly would kill most of the population of the United States if it ever happened today.

Do you want to know what may be cleared up by facts the scientists now know and also find out exactly how they were discovered?

STOCK LEADERS INCLINED TO RECEDE

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—A three-day recess apparently failed to renew the vitality of financial markets, and both stocks and staples today presented a rather wan appearance.

Share traders generally clung to the side lines and prices of leading issues were inclined to sag. At the same time, however, there was no pronounced liquidating pressure. The activity was only slightly greater than that of last Friday's dull session. Grains started out with moderate gains, but quickly retraced their steps and recorded losses of a cent or more a bushel. Cotton was a bit heavy. Bonds were fairly steady. The dollar was somewhat erratic in foreign exchange dealings, moving up against the French franc, but easing in terms of sterling.

Stocks off around 1 to 2 points included American Can, United States Steel, Allied Chemical, Western Union, Johns-Manville, Case, International Harvester, Deere, Chrysler, Union Carbide, Columbian Carbon, du Pont, United Aircraft, Sears, Roebuck, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Texas Gulf, Standard Oil of California, Union Pacific, New York Central, U. S. Smelting, National Distillers, Baltimore and Ohio and Pennsylvania.

While the failure of the stock market to show some signs of the expected fall buoyancy was disappointing in some quarters, in others it was pointed out that September has seldom lived up to anticipations. Analysts recalled that last year the upturn was checked abruptly in that month by the critical banking situation; that September, 1931, did not start hopefully because of European storm clouds; that the break in grains in September, 1930, halted efforts to promote an advance, and that the 1929 September preceded the collapse.

At the moment various trade authorities say that business sentiment, while not pessimistic, is hesitant because of uncertainties surrounding the National Recovery program. That it will require several weeks at least to remove these uncertainties is the concensus of the financial district. In the meantime, it is felt, there may be intermediate periods of irregularity and weakness in equities with speculative interest remaining at a minimum until the skies begin to clear.

The opening of the banking convention at Chicago today was of prime interest to financiers. It was hoped generally that this meeting might inaugurate measures which will revive the presently lagging banking business. The immediate work before the convention will be the formation of a code under the NRA to supplant the temporary one drawn up last month. In addition, the program will include the discussion of amendments to the new banking law which can be presented to Congress early next year.

WHEAT STARTS UP, REACTS

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—Higher prices for grains prevailed early today. An unexpected sharp upturn in wheat quotations at Liverpool was an outstanding feature, and was attributed largely to Argentine reports of critical crop conditions because of drought. Opening ⅛ to 1 cent higher, wheat afterward reacted somewhat. Corn started unchanged to ½ up, and subsequently sagged.

Selling pressure increased on advances, and at times wheat was about 2 cents a bushel below the early top.

Corn and oats receded with wheat. Provisions were responsive to upturns in the value of hogs.

Wall Street Expects Further Dip in Steel Output

When steel operations tapered off, several weeks ago, after attaining a level close to 60 per cent of capacity, it was predicted in conservative quarters that the subsequent recession in production would not cut operations below 45 per cent before the usual fall upturn again turned the trend upward. Operations are now at the previously estimated minimum of 45 per cent, and there is no evidence of sufficient buying to maintain production at this level. In fact, the trade reviews suggest that buying over the next two weeks will be limited largely to urgent requirements. Automobile production has receded sharply, curtailing the consuming demand from that important quarter. It is too early to expect heavy construction projects to take up the slack, and railroad buying, while definitely pending, will not be a factor for several weeks. In some usually well-informed circles, the thought is expressed that steel operations may, accordingly, dip to close to 30 per cent of capacity before a reversal of the trend is witnessed.

A great deal of talk has been heard in oil circles about the difficulty of preventing evasion of the gasoline tax. One oil man, visiting in New York, suggests that NRA can solve the problem by placing inspectors in every crude oil refinery in the United States to check shipments as to volume and destination. This would call for about 200 inspectors, but, in the opinion of more than one man in the industry, would go far to stop one of the vicious practices the industry has experienced. Such inspection and reports to a central agency would make the business of gasoline taxing holeproof, in the minds of many.

Sponsorship in some of the oil shares has been getting quite active and it is heard in the street that several Standard Oil issues are likely to get a lot of bullish attention in the next few weeks. Among those mentioned are Standard Oil of New Jersey and Atlantic Refining. Public interest in Amerada, Plymouth Oil and Continental Oil has increased considerably with the first named selling around the highest in its history and the latter two around the highs of 1933.

In discussing the copper situation, C. F. Kelley, president of Anaconda Copper Mining Company, stated that within a year the copper industryy would be restored to relatively normal condition if the progress made in the last six months is sustained. He points out that consumption is considerably above production and that during recent months surplus stocks of copper have been reduced 100,000 short tons.

The Blue Eagle should be on the vault doors as well as in the bank windows, said Jesse H. Jones, chairman of R. F. C., in urging more liberal bank credit policies before the American Bankers' Association convention today. He said that those bankers who think they are "going to get rid of deposit insurance at the next session of Congress simply don't know their Congress." Jones urged support of the preferered stock program.

The Trader in Barron's Weekly says, in part: "Irrespective of the constant threat of inflation, direct or indirect, gradual or sudden, the extreme ease of money is a constant deterrent to liquidation. Even with present low yields there is a broad spread between the return from stocks and the cost of money, a disparity that becomes the more important in the light of high taxes upon market gains that would have to be paid by capitalists seeking a liquid position. On present earning power stocks are probably selling for liberal figures. In the event of a fresh business surge or of inflation, both of which might go hand in hand, there is ample basis for a further rise. Stocks are not in weak hands, and credit is not tight, so that while speculative funds are easy to obtain stocks are difficult to buy. Every few days some issue or other pushes forward into new high ground. In short, the odds are still in favor of the equity yowner."

COTTON BARELY STEADY, OFF

BONDS NARROW, TRADE QUIET

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—Bonds moved on a fairly even keel today, but the market displayed no vigor and price changes, for the most part, were confined to meaningless fractions.

In the domestic list, some of the utilities were in moderate demand, with loans of the American Telegraph and Telephone Company singled out fo rspecial attention.

High grade issues in the railway group were generally firm. Obligations of the Santa Fe were either unchanged or fractionally higher while Union Pacific showed little deviation.

The industrial department displayed no trend of unusual significance. Armour 4½s declined a bit, as did Dodge brothers 6s, Goodrich 6½s, United Drug 5s and National Dairy 5½s.

Price swings were wider in the foreign list on the whole, although here also there was little cause for excitement. United States government issues were irregular.

TIRE PAYROLL BOOSTED

The Fisk Rubber Corporation, of Chicopee Falls, Mass., announced that its employment record showed an increase of 2,736 workers from April to August 19. The total on the latter date was 3,428 persons.

STOCKS FIRM ON MARKET HERE

Stocks were firm on the Pittsburgh Exchange today. During the morning stout resistance was shown to the influence of markets in New York, where stocks had a weak opening.

Volume on the local exchange was light during the morning. Traders showed little interest on their return from the three-day market holiday.

Most of the Pittsburgh stocks opened unchanged from their closing levels of Friday. Lone Star Gas was among the local issues which were unchanged at the opening.

OIL PRODUCTION UP FOR WEEK

TULSA, Okla., Sept. 5.—Daily average prduction of crude oil in the United States during the week ended September 21 totaled 2,774,714 barrels, an increase of 2,849 barrels daily over the preceding week, according to the Oil and Gas Journal.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—Oklahoma today had become the first oil-producing state to accept allocations for production as suggested by Secretary Ickes, of the Interior Department and the NRA code-planning and co-ordinating committee.

Chairman Paul Walker, of the State Corporation Commission, messaged Ickes the Oklahoma oil allowable would be fixed at 540,000 barrels daily, effective September 8. This is a reduction of 61,569 barrels daily under the allowable for September.

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—Phillips Petroleum Company has employed 3,000 additional men to compensate for reductions in hours of men previously employed. The increased employment will mean a rise of about $3,000,000 in annual payrolls, according to Frank Phillips, president of the company.

UNIFORM PLAN HARD TO ADAPT TO ALL TRADE

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University.

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—Having just returned from a short vacation among the New Hampshire hills, I will give some impressions which came to me as I reflected upon business conditions.

First I sensed a growing realization at Washington of the difficulties of dealing in a uniform way with millions of different individuals and thousands of different and complicated business situations.

This appears in the twistings and turnings of policy, and also in the strenuous efforts to sell the NRA scheme to the people.

METHODS VAGUE

Every time I turned my radio on, I was deluged by speeches telling what the thing will do, but vague as to how it is going to do it. The purposes were stated, but the means were not so clear.

They want to cure, so they think that we ought to take their medicine. But it seems to me that it takes more than a broad general purpose, and that we want to know more about what is in the medicine and how it is going to work.

In the little village near my camp, the general idea is that "it is all right if it works." It indicates an underlying feeling of skepticism as to methods.

And, speaking of purposes, I am impressed with the confusion of purposes as stated by the leaders. Sometimes they say it is to redistribute income for the benefit of the poor, and sometimes that it is to increase the total income of all.

But these are different things. In my opinion, unfair competition in business has very little to do with existing unemployment. It is a big question how far you can go in redistributing the income of the nation without reducing the total amount to be distributed.

COMPULSION SEEN

Let's be honest with ourselves. We should know that with so much skepticism or doubt, and with so much confusion of purpose and lack of understanding of the details of method, a great deal of compulsion is going to be required to make everyone fly like a blue eagle.

One form of compulsion is going to be a great deal of price fixing if we keep on. You cannot direct and control business without controlling prices.

And I for one do not believe that government price-fixing can ever work, at least in a free nation.

But however long it may last, and whatever changes may be made in it, the NRA is bound to leave its mark upon us. A critical point in the movement is near. But if wise counsels prevail now, we may yet look back at the blue eagle with little regret.

We are going to have a better banking system. Stock speculation is being reformed. Above all, we are going to have a better understanding of the things we call "society" and "economic life."

No one denies that there has long been room for plenty of improvement. Let us all settle down to the job of carefully making sound reforms where these are needed, so that we may never have another war, or a new era boom, or a severe depression such as inevitably follows.

New President

ROBERT E. CHRISTIE, JR.

CHRISTIE HEADS BANK GROUP

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—Robert E. Christie, Jr., of Dillon, Read & Co., New York, has been chosen by the board of governors of the Investment Bankers' Association of America as president of the association for the year 1933-34, it was announced at the association's office here today. Christie will succeed Frank M. Gordon, of the First National Bank of Chicago.

Among governors nominated for a three-year term expiring in 1936 was Joseph M. Scribner, of Singer, Deane & Scribner, Pittsburgh.

POST-HOLIDAY CURB DULL

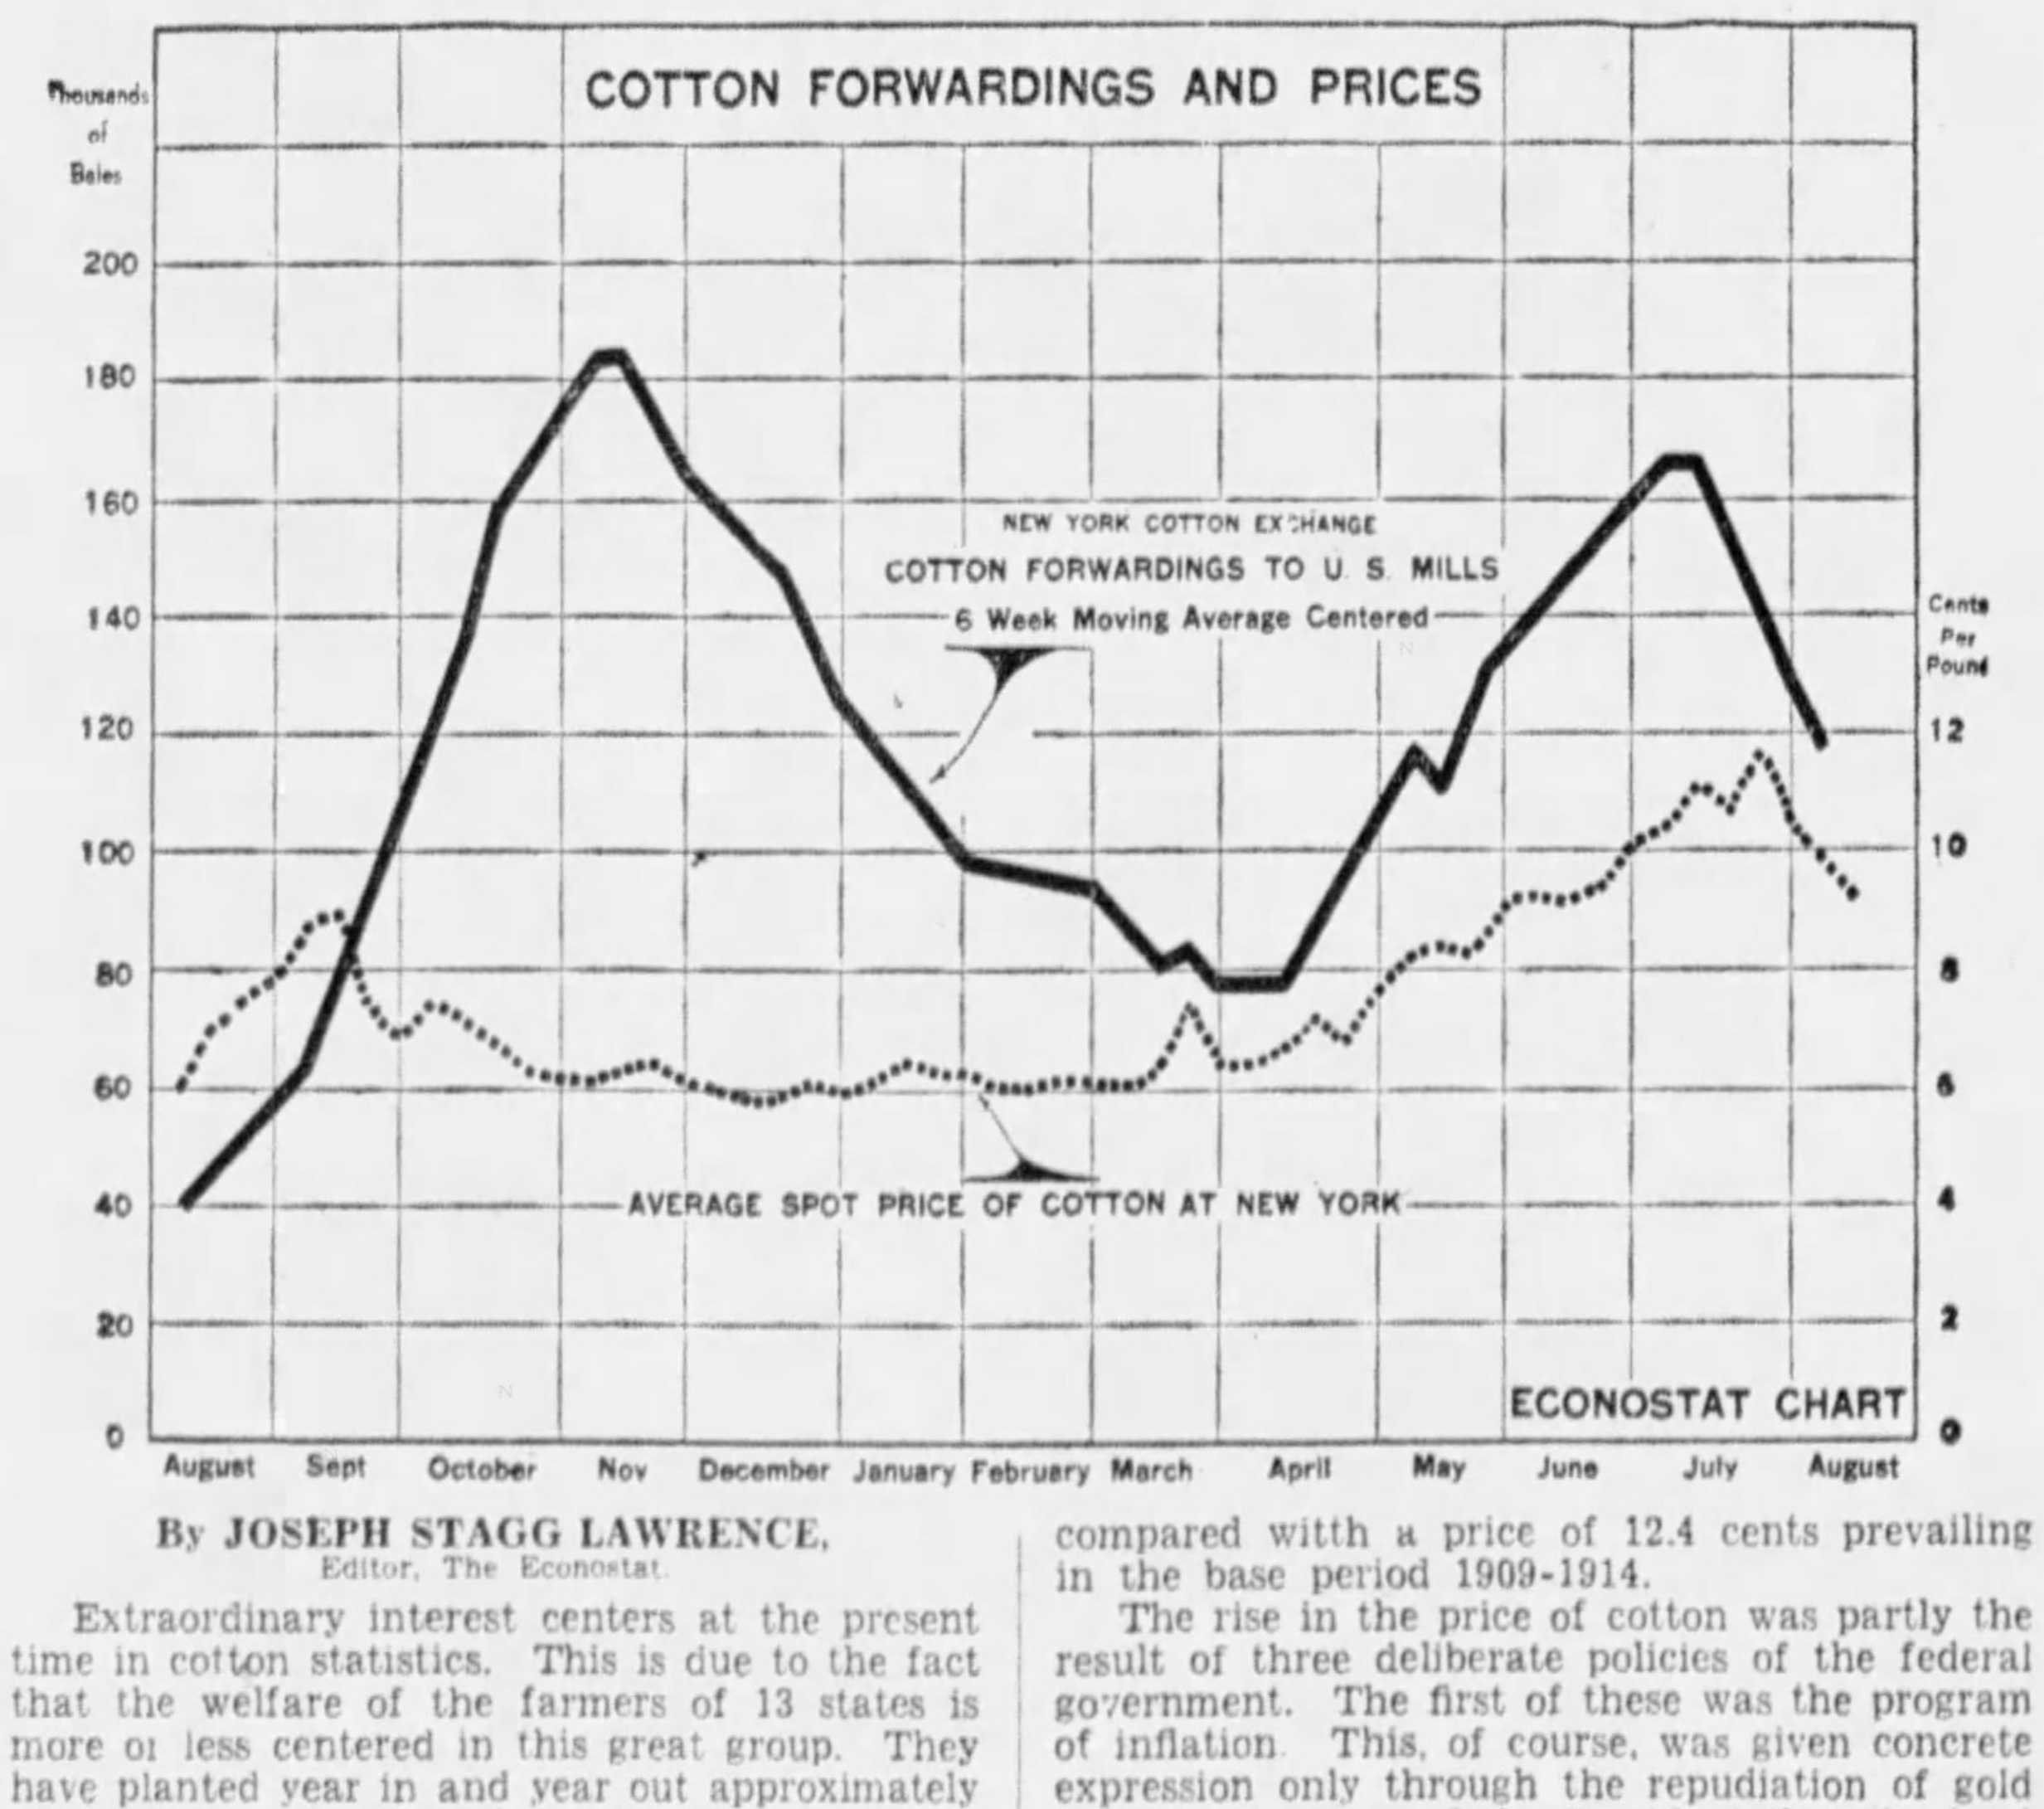
NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—The first market after Labor Day found the Curb dull and irregular today.

Traders who had hoped for a revival of activity and a broadening of the price range were promptly disappointed, for transactions were of a routine character and the market showed little deviation from the course it had followed most of last week.

Oil stocks reflected realizing from their recent advances; both Gulf and Humble were down more than a point at one time and Indiana lost fractionally. Eureka Pipe, an inactive, moved counter to the trend, rising more than 3 on an early transfer.

Alcohol shares eased, resuming the direction they had been taking in the last few markets. Little interest was shown in the utility department. Electric Bond and Share figured in a light turnover at not much change from Friday's close.

Cotton Price Rise Reflects Government Farm Policies



By JOSEPH STAGG LAWRENCE,
Editor, The Econostat.

Extraordinary interest centers at the present time in cotton statistics. This is due to the fact that the welfare of the farmers of 13 states is more or less centered in this great group. They have planted year in and year out approximately 40,000,000 acres of the finest land in the South to king cotton.

Prior to the depression it was estimated by the Department of Agriculture that it cost the average cotton grower from 14c to 16c a pound to raise cotton. This figure, of course, has all the defects of any average. It means that there are many farmers who must spend more than 16c to raise a pound and, on the other hand, many growers who can receive as little as 10c a pound and still show a nice profit. The estimate, however, does indicate the plight of cotton growers.

As may be noted from the chart, the average spot price of cotton at New York from November, 1932, to March, 1933, was approximately 6c a pound. Now it does not take much acumen to realize that a price of 6c a pound at New York means a great deal less than that for the grower down in Alabama. Consequently the gap between his costs and his receipts was profoundly discouraging.

Uncle Sam had previously made an effort to help him out. In June 1929, a special session of Congress passed the Farm Marketing Act under whose provisions $500,000,000 was used to support the price of agricultural commodities. The chart shows how completely this experiment failed in providing remunerative prices for the cotton farmer.

With the advent of the New Deal prices proceeded to improve, and in a period of a little less than four months almost doubled. The high point during the fourth week of July may be compared with a price of 12.4 cents prevailing in the base period 1909-1914.

The rise in the price of cotton was partly the result of three deliberate policies of the federal government. The first of these was the program of inflation. This, of course, was given concrete expression only through the repudiation of gold and the assertion of the President that the level of prices must be restored to a point where the farmer will receive a fair income and an equitable relation be again established between the debtor and the creditor.

The second phase of state aid consisted of a processing tax amounting to 4.2 cents a pound levied on cotton which would be passed back to the producer. The prospect of this tax caused a pronounced and unseasonal movement of cotton to United States mills designed to avoid the imposition of the tax.

The final phase of government cotton policy is to be found in the acreage reduction program. At the time the Agricultural Adjustment Act was passed cotton had already been planted. Effective curtailment of the supply, therefore, meant that cotton land must be plowed under again.

To this end Uncle Sam offered the farmers from $6 to $12 an acre for every acre which they would plow under. The farmer could secure this rental payment from the government on 25 to 40 per cent of his crop. The last report showed that a little more than one-fourth of total cotton acreage had been plowed under, although this was partially offset by very high average acre yields amounting to a little less than 200 pounds per acre.

It is still too early to say whether the efforts of Uncle Sam will succeed in restoring prosperity to the Southern farmer. It is undeniable that he is making a heroic effort to improve the condition of the cotton grower.

WORLD MONEY URGED BY BANKER

BERLIN, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—The flotation of an international currency independent of national monetary values, to be used in international commerce, is advocated by Carl Greulich, retired official of the Disconto Gesellschaft, a large German bank.

Herr Greulich's plan envisages inauguration of so-called gold bonds or gold notes, stable in all countries, leaving the individual governments a free hand to inflate their own currencies for domestic purposes of price influencing. He said:

"The Bank for International Settlements could be empowered to float this new type of currency against gold deposits or government notes to be liquidated in 10 years and be non-interest bearing."

BARS EXCHANGE

The bonds would not be tied to any money system, they would have no domestic value in any land save for travelers or in business dealings.

Through this feature, Herr Greulich believes, the international money exchange transactions could be done away with and a disturbing influence in world economic life eliminated.

The person desiring the international money could apply to the central bank of his country, paying coin of the realm in exchange.

CREDIT AGENCY

Commercial dealings would be based on the international price values. Exporters receiving the money in payment would turn it in to the central bank of their country and receive the national currency equivalent.

For those countries having no gold with which to enter the scheme, Herr Greulich would have the Bank for International Settlements provide sufficient credit.

Repayment of the bank's credit extensions could be arranged in part through metal payments such as silver, on which a set price would be fixed for all such payments.

DUTCH REVOKE TARIFF TRUCE

THE HAGUE, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—The Dutch government has denounced the world-wide truce on tariff increases on the grounds that the agreement, an offspring of the World Economic Conference, has not achieved its aims.

Foreign Minister Jonkheer de Graeff, in a letter to the president of the conference, Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, said efforts so far have not helped stabilize monetary relations or lessen restrictions to international trade.

Nearly 50 governments promised not to raise tariff barriers pending results of the conference, in order to give the nations time to revive international trade.

Eight governments, including the United States, represented on the conference organizing committee, drew up and approved the truce on May 8.

LONDON TO GET JAP GOLD

TOKIO, Sept. 5.—The Japanese government is planning to ship about 30,000,000 yen of government gold to London for settlement of accounts. Formerly such gold was sent to the United States.

News that the shipment was contemplated gave rise to rumors that Japan is planning a free gold market, but there was no foundation for the reports.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—It is understood in well-informed city circles that the Japanese government proposes to authorize within the course of the next few days the free export of gold produced in Japanese territory.

BUSINESS

Industry Seeking New Means of Selling Securities

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

MANY BUSINESS and industrial activities have been hampered by the late depression. But finance has been brought nearer to a complete halt than most other types of endeavor.

The name of investment banker has become almost a term of condemnation. The depression resulted in a sparsity of investment funds. This was to be expected. But the record of investment bankers was responsible for a lack of public trust, some of which was deserved and some not deserved.

The new securities act, designed to protect investors from abuses of the past, has made the business of underwriting new investment securities increasingly difficult. Many phases of the law have not been properly interpreted and the manner of enforcement still is uncertain. Under such conditions, investment bankers have been extremely cautious in their operations. Some of this caution may be relaxed after the law has been in effect for a year or two and the significance of its doubtful provisions is better understood. For the present, however, only issues of outstanding merit can be offered to the public by responsible underwriters.

* * *

New Financing Almost Impossible

AS MATTERS STAND today, it is extremely difficult for even a substantial corporation which has a legitimate claim to the confidence of investors to secure new capital. No single factor has been responsible. The security act has contributed; the past errors of investment bankers have contributed; the depression has contributed.

This situation presents a problem of major importance to nearly every one in the United States regardless of whether or not he has surplus money invested.

Each month, bond issues of solid corporations mature. Under normal conditions these would be refunded through the sale of new securities. The holders of the old securities are affected since they cannot get their money. The holders of the common stocks and other junior securities of these organizations are affected since the companies may be thrown into receivership and their equities may be destroyed. The individuals who hold jobs may be affected since their companies may be forced to go out of business or to retrench drastically. Under such conditions there will be a tendency to accentuate rather than to ameliorate the unemployment problem. Up to the present time there has been little demand for new capital other than to meet maturities, but, as the recovery progresses, there will be a crying demand for new money to modernize and improve industrial plants.

* * *

Direct Appeal Offers Solution

IT IS QUITE probable that investment bankers will provide the principal outlet for new securities in the future as they have done in the past, but for the next year or two many corporations may find it advisable to go directly to the investing public for new capital.

With the regular machinery of investment banking thrown out of gear, they will have to market new securities themselves. This will make necessary financial advertising of an entirely new type and sales methods of a revolutionary character.

Most financial advertising of the past was meaningless to small investors. It gave little intelligible information about the underlying properties. Financial advertising of the future will have to conform to good merchandising practice. It will have to tell a clear, concise and complete story.

BANKERS SEEK TO LEARN NEW STATUS

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

Universal Service.

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—Bankers assembled here in large numbers for the fifty-ninth annual convention of the American Bankers' Association sought to find out at the preliminary session precisely what a bank is, in the light of the drastic new federal legislation.

Mr. Rukeyser

Obviously, a bank is no longer a department store of finance. The Glass-Steagall act divorces security affiliates from banks, and puts a ban on mortgage financing.

Likewise, it provides that a private banking firm must choose between remaining an institution of deposits or an agency for underwriting securities. Gossips in the lobby of the Hotel Stevens wondered whether the house on the corner would remain a deposit institution and handle underwritings through its London affiliate.

ACTION RESTRICTED

In the interchange of opinion as to the new status of banks, it was emphasized that the freedom of action of the banker had been greatly restricted. He can, for example, no longer pay interest on demand deposits, and may not pay more than 3 per cent on time or savings deposits.

Thus, banks are restricted from cutting one another's throats. The effect of these restrictions is to reduce the cost of production of bank credit, and to make it feasible for the bank of the future to show earnings without resorting to wildcat loans or to high yielding bonds and mortgages.

PUBLIC OFFICIALS RULE

Under the new law, bankers are technically mere satellites of public officials. Referring to this, Marvin E. Holderness, vice president, First National Bank of St. Louis, said:

"It is left to the judgment of the Federal Reserve Board to decide whether any member is making undue use of bank credit, with the penalty of suspension in the use of credit facilities afforded by the federal reserve system.

"It is most unlikely that the Federal Reserve Board would often exercise its authority under this section without valid reasons, so that legitimate loaning and investment operations of member banks are not likely to be arranged under this provision."

Mr. Holderness also indicated that the new setup would in time drive commercial borrowers back to the banks. He pointed out that before the depression such concerns turned away from the banks, and got working capital from the capital market by selling stocks and bonds.

THEORY REVERSED

Accordingly, the banker concluded:

"Business will in time have to turn again to banks as primary credit sources, and this will be pleasing to bankers, particularly, if, under the promptings of the the new banking law and the bitter school of experience, we shall reverse to old-fashioned banking."

In summary, the effect of the new legal setup is to convert banks into old-fashioned commercial banks, with fewer sidelines and fewer back doors. The aim is to make such banks more liquid, and to induce them to put most of their depositors' funds into rediscountable assets. This policy entails vast readjustments in Wall street technique.

Apparently, banks outside of New York are not quite as critical of the new legislation as are the Wall street institutions, whose views were articulated yesterday by Francis H. Sisson, vice president of the Guaranty Trust Company and president of the American Bankers' Association. By the way, Mr Sisson will be succeeded as head of the association by Francis Marion Law, president, First National Bank of Houston, Tex.

that went down over the side of the boat.

I let myself down into the water, step by slow step, until my helmet was level with the gunwale of the boat. Crilley and the others stooped down and grinned into the glass in front of my helmet and nodded their heads as if to say:

"Go ahead! . . . Don't be scared!"

A few more steps down, my feet reached the last rung of the ladder, and from there on, there was nothing but deep water and . . . a flock of hungry sharks for all I knew.

I let myself down the last few rungs, hand-under-hand. Green water came up over the glass in front of my helmet.

With one hand, I hung desperately to the last rung of the ladder, trying to work up courage enough to let go. I was too heavily weighted to haul myself up, and too scared to let go.

Finally I thought, "Well, here goes nothing!" and let go. Down I went like a plummet, and it seemed all of 35 miles, instead of 35 feet, to the bottom.

On the swift way down I felt my suit plastered tighter and tighter to my waist, as if a form-fitting vise were squeezing me. The pressure of the water hurt my ears.

Crilley had told me that swallowing would relieve the pressure, and I had started swallowing before I ever let go the ladder.

I hit the bottom, feet first, in a billowing cloud of black mud. I couldn't see my hand in front of my helmet. Groping about in the blackness that surrounded me, my hands touched slimy eel grass everywhere I reached.

The black cloud of mud, the slimly eel grass, the pressure on my ear drums, scattered my wits. And besides, I was suffocating.

I tried to collect my wits and remember how to adjust the air valves. I found the intake valve first, on my right side just above my belt, and gave it a quick twist, and I got air all right!

Helping A Tenderfoot

Almost instantly the canvas suit bellied out like a balloon. The air pressure forced the arms of my suit straight out from my shoulders, and my arms were in them.

There I was, practically crucified. I couldn't bend my elbows to shut off the intake valve, nor open the exhaust valve, and every second the pressure inside the suit was increasing. Something was bound to let go!

And something did!

It was lucky I wasn't directly under the diving boat when the next thing happened. Before I know what had happened, I was clear out of the water. The air in my suit had burst my lead-weighted belt and raised me out of the mud. I went not only to the surface, but I bounced clear out of it, and then floated flat on my back in the water, evenly weighted at head and feet. If I had hit the bottom of the boat on the way up, I'd have been jammed up into my helmet like jelly.

The minute they saw me pop out of the water, the men on the diving boat knew what was wrong, and shut off the air pressure at the tank. With the air shut off at its source, the suit relaxed and I was able to use my arms again.

The first thing I did was to open the exhaust valve on the helmet, behind my left ear, to hasten decompression.

With the exhaust valve wide open, air remaining in my suit went out like a blowout, and down I went to the bottom again, like a sounding lead . . . this time landing in the mud stern first, mud up to my neck.

I felt a swift stream of cold water hitting me in the side of the neck, and I figured I was just as good as drowned.. Then I realized I had left the exhaust valve wide open, and with my air supply shut off at the diving boat tanks there was no pressure to offset the incoming water. I reached to the exhaust valve and shut it off, and the flood immediately stopped.

I sat there in mud up to my neck, considering my plight. I couldn't imagine why Crilley and the gang hadn't pulled me up. Certainly they knew I was in a jam.

Then I remembered that Crilley had once said never to pull a new man up from the bottom unless you knew he was in serious trouble. Evidently he didn't think I had much to worry about.

There was plenty of slack in my life line. He was leaving me down there in the mud to figure out my own salvation. I called him several good seagoing names but he didn't hear me. There was no telephone in the suit.

I repeated to myself the simple signal code we used. One jerk on the life line meant "more air," . . . two jerks, "less air," . . . three, "give me more rope," . . . and four jerks, "pull me up."

He Takes the Air

I made sure that both valves were shut, then reached up over my helmet and pulled the lifeline once, asking for air. Presently I opened the intake valve with one hand . . . very slowly and very gingerly . . . and the outlet valve with the other, until they were about equalized.

I could breathe freely now, with the air circulating through my suit, and I found I could stand up without much effort, but walking was an exertion.

I had to lean forward and push hard at every step to make any headway through the mud and water. It's hard enough to walk through water up to your waist in your birthday suit. It's a strenuous job to walk on the bottom of the sea in a bulky diving suit.

I made the mistake of following the path of least resistance. I walked with the flow of the tide, and kept myself in a cloud of mud as black as a hearse, until I realized that if I turned around and walked against the tide, I'd leave the cloud of mud behind me.

I had expected to be able to see the bright metal of the sunken torpedo without any trouble. In clear water I could see a considerable distance through the queer twilight on the bottom, and I could see the red bottom of the diving boat overhead very plainly . . . and her rope, leading down to her anchor, half buried in the mud.

But as far as I could see, the bottom of the bay was a smooth, unbroken plane of slime, with a clump of tall eel grass here and there, streaming with the tide.

As I walked along I noticed two parallel mounds of mud, about the length of a torpedo, and guessed that the torpedo lay between them, buried of its own weight.

With my immense feet I could feel its rounded shape, and then, sticking my arms down into the mud, I groped along its length with my hands until I found the towing ring in its nose.

Fun Beneath the Waves

I walked back under the diving boat and jerked my life line five times to say, "Send me down a line." A weighted rope was lowered from above, and soon I had it made fast to the torpedo.

Then . . . remembering the way Crilley and the gang had treated me a moment before . . . letting me sink or float when I was in a panic . . . I carried the slack of the salvage line over to the diving boat's anchor, stuck fast in the mud, made a couple of half-hitches around one of its flukes and yanked my life line four times to be hauled up.

On deck, they twisted my helmet and lifted it off. Fresh air and sunshine on my face never felt so good!

"Sho-o-o!" I told them casually. "Nothin' to it! . . . Heave it up!"

Several fathoms of slack line came in lightly, and Crilley turned on me angrily.

"If there's nothing on this line, you'll go over the side for keeps!" he threatened.

"Keep on heavin'!" I told him, "there's plenty on it, don't worry!"

The line tautened and all hands bent their backs and pulled as in a tug-of-war. Presently someone looked over the rail and cursed.

"The dirty swab! He's brought up the anchor!"

"Keep heavin'!" I said with a grin, "and look out you don't pull the bottom next!"

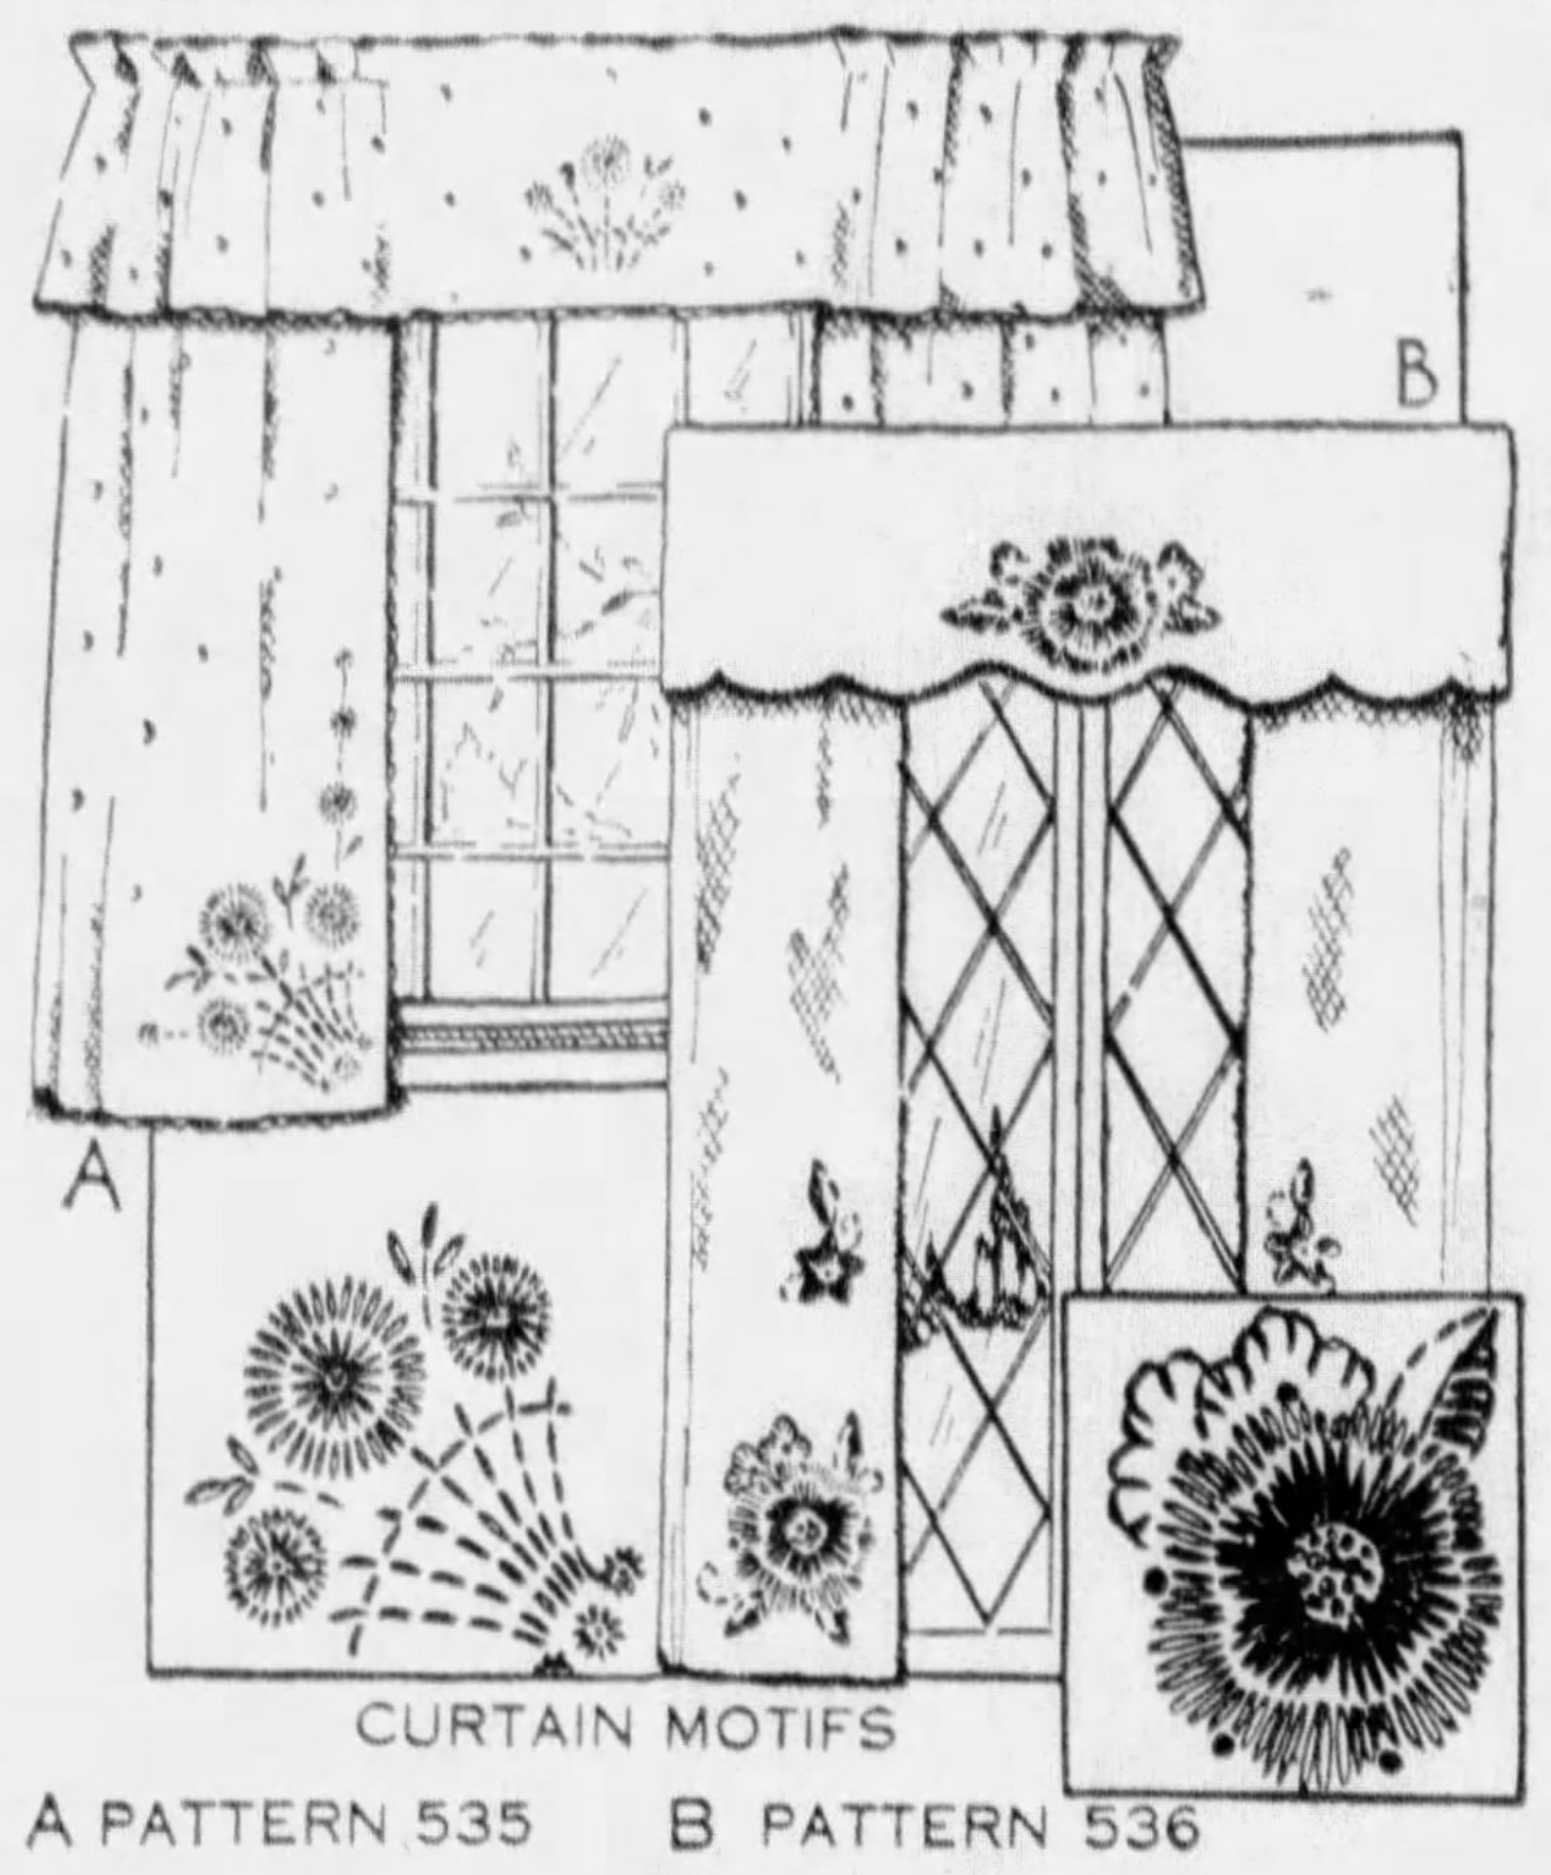
ADDS CHARM TO ROOM



CURTAIN MOTIFS

A PATTERN 535 B PATTERN 536

By LAURA WHEELER

We know today that a room can be no better artistically than the treatment of its windows. Color is in vogue now and embroidery on curtains offers the opportunity of repeating predominating colors of the room or introducing a contrasting note. Of all rooms, the kitchen has blossomed out in the most striking colors. Though we may like white or light curtains in this room, a touch of embroidery on them is most effective. A. Pattern 535, is a single aster motif done in single stitches and running stitch. It makes possible the use of striking color as it lends itself well to either the bright colors or delicate shades depending on the character of the kitchen. The corner motifs measure 7x9 inches, while that on the valance is 4½ inches high.

B. Pattern 536, is suitable to use on living room or dining room curtains. The flower motifs are very handsome embroidered in colored wool in the simple stitches popular for this work. The drapes can be made of linen, a heavy silk, or rayon, or even unbleached muslin which is lovely when dyed. The motifs can be used separately on pillows or scarfs. The larger flower measures 5 inches in diameter, the smaller about 3 inches. As shaped valances are the thing now in curtains, a pattern for the valance is given.

Each pattern consists of motifs for two pairs of curtains with valance as well as directions for making the curtains.

Send 10c for each pattern (20c for both) to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Dept., 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

The Junior Patrol Mail Box

Schools begins today, fellows!

If you live in Allegheny County, you will be one out of a half million boys and girls who will hear the school bells ring! Well, fellows, the way we feel about it there's no reason why almost every single one of those half million can't be members of the Junior Patrol. Right now is a very good time to organize a new patrol and also a very good time to get new members in your patrol if you have one already organized.

No doubt, fellows, you noticed that every fellow in Junior's patrol is going to school—even Snuggins. And it begins to look as though they are all glad to go. Well, we hope every fellow, and especially every member of the Junior Patrol, feels the same way about it. Study your best this fall and winter, fellows—don't worry about getting good grades—just do your lessons as if it was fun to do them. Make sure you know what your lesson is all about every day—and good grades will be yours, too!

An envelope the other day enclosed 10 pledges, but no letter. Some of the pledges were from Marian and Vera Shabencis, of 5169 Bevlin way, Pittsburgh; Stella Babel, 5225 Bevlin way and Edward Collins, 514 Ruby street, Pittsburgh. Have any of the members in this Patrol been elected captain?

Sylvia Zeis, of 1613 Wickline lane, North Side, sends in nine more pledges. That's dandy, Sylvia—it is the duty of every captain to get as many new members as he possibly can.

Miss White and Commander-in-Chief Quin Hall received a letter from Daniel J. Hellman.

Calvert Clements, of 427 N. Maple avenue, Greensburg, writes: "I would like to know if my dog, Lee, can join the Junior Patrol, and if he can I will send his membership with the others.

"I would like to know if you send so many members in do you get a prize? I'm sending two for my cousins who live in Charcroi, Pa. They have bronchitis and I have a cold. I am obeying the Junior Patrol laws."

Dogs can be honorary members, Calvert, but not real registered members of a patrol. No, there is no prize offered for getting lots of members, Calvert, but when you have 10 members in your patrol, a member can be elected captain and then we send him a captain's arm-band.

Now here's a letter from Dorothy Gibbons, of 258 Atwood street, Oakland. She sends a cartoon and a note:

"I am sending in a pledge slip and a cartoon. I listen to your radio program every Wednesday and read your comic strip and Mail Box every day. I read your sign wanting more members to perform on the radio a long time ago but was so busy about the picnic I couldn't write. So I want to tell you now that I play the piano and would be glad to play on the program."

Thanks a lot for letting us know, Dorothy. Your cartoon is okay, too. We will let you know about the radio program. Don't forget, fellows, we want members to perform on the Wednesday program. Be sure to listen in this fall—it's going to be a dandy program every week.

SENSATIONAL NEW EVIDENCE SPICES DIVORCE CHARGES

WASHINGTON.—Lifted eyebrows, sly winks and titters behind fans are slowly, but surely, cutting the ground from under the feet of Mrs. Horace Frisby in her contemplated divorce action against the resourceful Congressman. Capital society has suddenly come out unashamed in sympathy for Mr. Frisby, following his whirlwind campaign to show up his wife's never-to-be-forgotten past. Mr. Frisby, a master of propaganda, accomplished his purpose by circulating postcards of Mrs. Frisby taken in the days before he led her to the altar. "Study the photo," is Frisby's frank appeal. "It speaks for itself, and in no uncertain terms reveals Mrs. Frisby when she posed unashamed, like a rat in a trap, as a Greenwich Village artist's model. Who can blame me for refusing to pay alimony to a Greenwich Village dreg? Let him who dares speak up or forever hold his tongue."

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Mister al fresco invites you. He yodels out a joyous "Come on" to the golf links, the tennis court, the long smooth roads where motor cars speed in endless streams. There's many a home gal who doesn't get enough fresh air to keep eyes bright, spirits full of ginger, skin clear and glowing. Outdoor life is vitalizing, drags one out of the rut of duty, freshens the mental outlook. It's more important than keeping the window sills free of dust or mopping up the fluff that has settled under the beds. Women who keep young, never lose youthful enthusiasm, are those who love blue skies, trees and a long walk. Muscles stay flexed and strong, worry bugs fly away. So out you go each day even if the sink is full of dishes.

If her skin is pale, black and white form a becoming combination. If skin is a deep ivory, she will look well in French blue or navy; brunettes fear the lighter shades of blue for no reason at all. Green is favorable to her type of loveliness, brown isn't unless it is a dark rich seal. She can wear beige, orchid and lavender. Purple won't do. In fact, it won't do for anybody except the white-crowned sister.

Keep handy a special small narrow sink brush for washing combs and brushes. Use a powdered soap, such as you use for dish washing. Dip the brush in warm water, then in the soap, pass the bristles between the teeth of the comb and the bristles of the hair brush. Best to have two sets of combs and brushes, then there isn't the need to clean them when the shampoo is on the day's schedule. Dry them in the sunlight.

Dinky little hats look prettiest when the hair is short, though the flying bob hasn't perished, by any means. Hair is cut so that it is just long enough for a single upturn along the nape line. No buns any more. They don't mean anything, they aren't decorative; they're duddy.

Bugs Baer

Porcupine is Gentle But Prepared

The pacifists are jolly lads who are for peace, plenty and capable substitutes. We agree with them up to the edge of the roof, but we cannot take that last step off the brink.

The government also has some rough, manly ideas on the subject. It is building boats as fast as the boys can cook the rivets. Those boats are battleships with guns, powder and turrets.

The idea behind a battleship is its ability to blast, torpedo, pound, dynamite and otherwise bring an enemy craft to a high, silky gloss.

For after all, the United States has some historic prestige on the water. It was the famous old clam digger Philadelphia that helped to ferret out the Tripoli pirates and teach 'em a lesson no boy ever learned off a blackboard.

We have some far and wide hook-ups around the world which require protection. And a bevy of Marines can accomplish much more than a string of threatening notes. If the Marines are needed in Asia how are they going to get there? In a bottle?

WAIT 'TILL I GET TH' GUY WHO SAID WE NAVY MEN WAS LIKE PORCUPINES!

We have soldiers in Hawaii, the Philippines, West Indies and the Island of Guam. They're a long sleeper jump away from home. Are those boys going to float home on seaweed?

Our merchant marine wound up in a heap with the whiskers on the barber shop floor. It bloomed and withered in a day. We set out to grab our share of the world trade and all we got of the lollipop was the stick.

Europe was too smart for us on the business angle. We were horsed around like a bareback rider in the middle ring of the circus. We had about as much chance as a watch crystal in a hailstorm. The story of that finessing would make Ely Culbertson pull in his horns. And there is a boy who can manipulate cards.

Now, they are after the Navy, hollering about imperialism and screaming that we should give up our pet islands. Why not give up the Louisiana Purchase, the Alaskan Peninsula, the statues in front of Carnegie Library and everything else we hold dear?

Nobody wants war, nobody wants trouble. And as for a Navy and an Army, they're just like a porcupine's quills. A porky never bothers anybody and nobody jostles him.

He just waddles around tending to his business, which is a little of this and a little of that. His quills lay back nice and smooth. But if anybody gets tough Mr. Porky opens up like a wire-haired sunflower. And you have your choice of smelling that bouquet or letting it alone.

The Proposed Constitutional Amendments Should Be Studied Before Going to the Polls

Richard J. Beamish, Secretary of the Commonwealth, announces that instead of having the 12 proposed amendments to the State Constitution printed in full on the ballot at the election next November, he will have a short but comprehensive synopsis of each prepared. The Attorney General has been asked to help in the preparation of the condensations.

This is a welcome announcement, and Secretary Beamish is to be commended for his initiative in ordering the change.

While the shortening of the amendments will reduce the size of the ballot, which will be an improvement, an even more important gain, as Secretary Beamish recognizes, will be that the amendments will be more readily understood by the voters.

In their cumbersome, complicated legal verbiage, it is doubtful if they would be carefully read, much less understood, by all who go to the polls. And inasmuch as the proposals contain tremendous possibilities for benefit or harm, it is of vital consequence that the people should understand them and not pass on them blindly.

As showing how important it is that the amendments shall be carefully studied, it has just dawned upon some of our civic-minded citizens that the amendment which will appear as No. 6 on the ballot will, if approved, increase the borrowing capacity of Allegheny and all other counties except Philadelphia from 7 to 10 per cent of the assessed value of the real estate. Owing to the manner in which the proposal was indexed it was the common but erroneous impression that the amendment applied only to Philadelphia, which is authorized under its provisions to increase its debt limit from 10 to 15 per cent.

To increase Allegheny County's borrowing capacity to 10 per cent may or may not be desirable. The citizens should have some advice on the subject from the County Commissioners and the civic and commercial organizations.

And it is not to be forgotten that this proposal, with its potentialities for benefit or detriment, is but one of 12 on which the people of Pennsylvania are to be called upon to pass judgment.

Obviously, even in the simplified form which Secretary Beamish is preparing, these questions cannot be answered intelligently unless some study has been given to them before the voters enter the polls.

As soon as the primary is out of the way, if not sooner, a campaign of education should be commenced.

Are Girls Smarter?

An Affirmative Answer Is Indicated by Pennsylvania Public School Statistics

There are ordinarily almost 10,000 more boys than girls in the first grade of the public schools of Pennsylvania.

But when the eighth grade is reached—that is, the graduation class of elementary schools in places where junior high schools have not been established — the girls normally outnumber the boys by several hundred.

More girls than boys quit school after completing the eighth grade; and so, in the ninth grade — the first year of high school—the boys again take the lead, with a 3,000 majority.

But in the twelfth grade—the last year of high school—the girls again forge ahead, numbering 30,673, as against 29,445 boys, according to the latest statistics.

The records of the State Department of Public Instruction also show that more boys than girls are over age for the grades in which they are enrolled.

Cost No Fair Standard

Not the Price But the Quantity of the Food Should Be the Guide in Fixing a Ration

The Welfare Fund reports that the minimum cost of feeding a family of five for a week has increased from $4.67 to $5.77. But since no provision was made for the increase in prices much suffering has resulted from it. Some people dependent on charity are not getting enough to eat, and the Public Health Nursing Association reports an alarming increase in malnutrition.

The Department of Welfare at Harrisburg has just announced the adoption of basic food rations as a dietary standard for the inmates of the State's mental hospitals and schools for mental defectives. Not the cost but the nutritional adequacy of the food is the standard used in computing the ration.

That is, of course, the only sensible way of dealing with the problem, and it is to be hoped that the people of Allegheny County, by their generosity in the forthcoming welfare drive, will make it possible to take care of our own unfortunates in the same manner.

Paper Suits

Cool, Comfortable, Cheap.

American men seem to be blindly groping toward comfortable clothes for the summer.

Our more prosperous or courageous fellows boldly appear in whites, even though the city grime soon makes a duck or linen suit look like something the cat dragged in.

The wearers deserve credit, nevertheless.

They are the pioneers in a new movement to make men as comfortable as women in the hot months.

Eventually, perhaps, they will convert the rest of their sweltering brethren. If they do it will be a blessing not only to half of our population, but even more so to the cotton business and the laundry business.

And speaking of summer clothes, we wonder why none of our stores or clothing factories go in for paper suits.

They are cool, they weigh only a pound and they are so cheap that even the poorest of us could afford them.

It is true that they present a problem when it rains.

But they might be accompanied by a cellophane mackintosh or something on that order.

The idea is offered free of charge to any enterprising firm up here that wants to experiment with it.

That anglers may in patience wait

Of fish will soon be your reward.

Lovers and Others

A man seldom stops to ask himself whether he has charm or not. When it comes to doing the charming, most men leave all the heavy work to the women.

* * *

For some reason, it's usually the easy-going, lovable husband who needs the most watching when there are other attractive women around. And the sort whom you can wind around your finger is likely to be pliant enough to be easily unwound—by the next woman.

* * *

The more a man sees of suntanned backs, sunburned thighs and half-portion bathing suits, the more heartily he approves of Mother Eve's sagacity when she invented clothes, and the more he admires the Eskimo maiden's sartorial effects.

MY HUSBAND IS EASY-GOING!
WELL KEEP AN EYE ON HIM!

Since love is the most exciting and absorbing game of a woman's life, it's amazing how little she ever learns about when to play her winning cards and when to keep a poker face and sit tight.

* * *

Intuition is the cold chill that runs up and down a man's back when he decides that it is time to "cut bait" and ask the girl to marry him, or to reel in and run.

* * *

Nowadays a man appears to judge a girl's character by her back. If her shoulder-blades and vertebrae are sweet and innocent-looking, he seldom stops to glance into her eyes.

OH ARE YOU A WIDOWER?

In the matrimonial market, an old bachelor is a shop-worn remnant; a divorced man is a second-hand article; but a widower is a treasured heirloom, inherited only through death.

* * *

A matron usually has more poise than a young girl—probably because she realizes that, when she tips the scales at 160 pounds and has a 36-inch waistline, there's no adventure ahead to get excited about and nothing worse to worry about.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—I was piloted through the children's ward of a large hospital today. Suddenly to quit the hubub of a city street for this silent room of endless cots is the most depressing of metropolitan contrasts. We came to see a little girl who at the moment was building blocks on her chest.

She was fair with spun-gold hair and large inquisitive brown eyes. Her arms shot eagerly around the nurse's neck and inquired: "When may I try to walk?" The nurse replied: "Soon, dear, I hope!" But as we walked away she said in faint finality: "She will never walk!"

On many pillows, with picture books flung aside, heads were buried in sleep. Tiny fists clutched as though dreamily resentful of unfair conflict. Zig-zaggy charts hung to every bedpost. Others sat up with dolls, indicating recovery by trying to cover themselves as we approached.

Screened off from the rest was a flash of wizened faces and scrawny arms. Dull eyes seemed cognizant of nothing. None made sounds, but they twisted in slow snake-like torsions, a sort of boneless writhing. They call it "wasting disease." The sins of fathers and mothers!

* * *

In running through a pictorial film magazine just now it struck me that Edna May Oliver needs only a mannish style of dress and hair cut, plus a monocle, to become the uncanny likeness of George Arliss.

* * *

George Arliss was the vanguard leader of the invasion of British actors to the American stage. He essayed a foppish silly-ass dido with Mrs. Fiske in a play, if memory serves, called "The New York Idea." I remember interviewing him at breakfast at a hotel in Dayton, O. I had never seen a monocle before and Arliss to me was the replica of Punch's notion of a Piccadilly toff. It was noon-time and he asked me if I wouldn't have a bite. When I shook my head, he inquired: "You never take tiffin?" Not until I romped back to the office dictionary had I the vaguest idea what he meant. But I was so flustered I replied "No mam."

* * *

In Dayton, too, I interviewed Olga Nethersole who perspired the hill-billies panting through "Sappho" at $2 top. With two other reporters—only their first names, Bert and Chester, cling to memory—I waited in the salon of her suite. She came out a fresh-water shower in lacy negligee and wearing ostrich plumed mules. As natural as breathing she reached for a cigaret, paused, and I was conscious she awaited a light. So I scratched one of those big buck matches on the seat of my trousers, and so long as I live I'll never forget the way my hand pitched in extending it to her. I often thought that the beginning of a nervous breakdown 10 years later.

* * *

Incidentally, how trite is the opening sentence on the application an actor must sign in an effort to join Equity. It reads: "I hereby solemnly affirm that I am at present obtaining or endeavoring to obtain a living from the Theatrical Profession."

* * *

Modern parents' close-knit confidence with children is amazing to those of us reared in the clinch of stern discipline. I remember when Arthur Somers Roche's two boys were in short pants and their governess forbade candy except on state occasions. Yet Roche was chuckling about how the lads confessed they were outwitting her daily by having candy charged to him at the corner drug store. He maneuvered every way possible to keep them from being caught. But when they were, he offered no interference with punishment. They were on their own!

* * *

There is something wincing about the sudden tumble in mid-town cut-rate drug store windows of some best-selling novels of a few months before. It is as though the books had been having a race down the hill of reduction and collapsed together in a heap. To me nothing is so forlorn as an abandoned best seller.

* * *

I remember stumbling across a tattered tome of mine in a lower Madison avenue second-hand shop. It was at lowest scale—marked 10 cents. Further to accent its ignominy, some donor had inscribed on a flyleaf to a friend: "You may not like this, but it will make dandy shaving papers."

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

"Jerusalem Slim"—that's what the convicts in San Quentin call Jesus of Nazareth.

Now, wait a minute, Sanctimonious Citizen! Wipe that horrified frown from your brow. You're not listening to sacrilege. Never, in all your righteous career, have you rendered your Master greater homage than those poor, barred souls offer Him when they call Him "Jerusalem Slim." And there are tears in my heart when I remember what Tip O'Neil answered when I asked him why.

"Why do we call Him that?" said Tip, with his fighting Irish eyes hard on me, wondering if I'd understand. "That's easy—because He did time, too."

He did time, too! Not as a criminal, though in the end, they condemned Him to die as one. No; Jesus of Nazareth "did time" because HE DARED TO LIVE. And it was a desperate gamble for any poor man to demand life, or urge his brothers to demand it, in those dark days of Roman tyranny and High Priest conspiracy.

Yet "Jerusalem Slim"—born in a manger, trained at a carpenter's bench—dared to demand life; all the great adventures of life. He dared to think—doubt—ask questions—reject the old, dead answers—make experiments—rebel—claim freedom, and teach others how to claim it.

Noble? Yes; by the reckoning of God. BUT UTTERLY UPSETTING BY THE RECKONING OF HUMAN BEINGS!

Jesus challenged men to face danger by facing it Himself. He knew the dreams which lay within their hearts; the longing for freedom; the hunger for truth. They were the same dreams which lay within His own heart. But He dared to follow His dreams. They didn't. His courage called their bluff.

Like all leaders, He made a nuisance of Himself and the mob, which had followed Him, turned on Him in hate. He died between two thieves, after He had "done time, too"—after He had gone hungry, hunted and despised for three homeless years.

"He saved others; himself he could not save!" jeered the mob, as He hung dying. But He might have saved himself at any time. With such shameful ease He might have saved Himself from it all—made of His life a "success story."

Nor would He have needed to commit any violent or dishonest act. He needed only to do what so many Successes do—play safe and sit tight. "Mind his own business," and let the other fellow go to the dogs in his own way. In short, He only needed to live the life of many a Model Citizen.

BUT THAT WASN'T A LARGE ENOUGH LIFE FOR "JERUSALEM SLIM."

He couldn't, as He saw it, pass up the big chances, the tall obligations. So He chose the harder way, served His time and took His rap. And today, in the dark places of the earth, broken men call Him "Jerusalem Slim" in grateful comradeship—because He, too, understood darkness, and faced it for all men.

And often and often when I'm against it—when I'm wondering if I can stand my particular rap any longer—I remember that. Sometimes it seems so useless, even so wrong, to try to do the decent, unusual thing. Not that I've ever, in all my selfish life, come even within shouting distance of Jerusalem Slim's performance. But—you know how it is—we all have those reckless yens to Go Noble. And when we do, what a panning we get!

Then when that panning starts, I wonder if it was worth while. It's so easy to live safe and soft, and duck the hard places—there are a thousand ways of saving one's face. Does it pay to throw it all aside and take the big chances, knowing they'll laugh and spit at you, knowing all you'll have to pay?

He thought it was!

THEN IF HE COULD TAKE IT—SO CAN I!

By EDWIN C. HILL

THE White Trains are winding southward in France, through the lofty passes of the Pyrenees, bearing pilgrims from every part of the Christian world to the miraculous Grotto of Lourdes, one of the greatest of all Christian shrines. Every year these White Trains, burdened with the lame, the halt and the blind, converge on the little mountain town in the southwest of France. But this year, we are told, a million pilgrims, buoyed by faith and hope, will make the journey to lave themselves with the miraculous waters that gush from a rock. For Lourdes, this year, celebrates the diamond jubilee of the apparition.

The pilgrimage is founded on the tradition of the appearance of the Blessed Virgin to a sick girl. In the fourteenth year of her life, Bernadette Soubirous beheld, in the hollow of a rock at Lourdes, the vision of a young and most beautiful lady . . . "lovelier than I have ever seen," she cried out. There were 18 such apparitions in all, and one day a voice told her to drink and wash in the fountain.

Now, the strange thing was that others who were listening and looking on could perceive no sign of a fountain in the bare rock, any more than they could perceive the beautiful lady or hear the voice. But Bernadette bent down and began to scratch the earth, and the little cavity her hands hollowed out suddenly filled with water, and presently a fountain was gushing. And that took place, according to the sacred tradition, on the eleventh day of February in the year 1858. And the spring thus miraculously discovered has been flowing ever since.

* * *

The Church Itself Counsels Caution

IT was only after exhaustive inquiry, which lasted four years, that the story was accepted and the miraculous character of the spring confirmed by the church.

"We judge," wrote the Bishop of Tarbes, "that Mary, the Immaculate Mother of God, did really appear to Bernadette on February 11, 1858, and on certain subsequent days, 18 times in all, in the Grotto of Masabielle; that this appearance bears every mark of truth, and that the belief of the faithful is well grounded."

But the church itself counsels against excessive credulity. Every patient who claims to have been healed is subjected to a medical examination to ascertain whether the cure has been complete or whether relief has been only partial and temporary. Doctors from many lands carry on the work, and all are welcome to take part, no matter what their nationality or their religion may be. All are welcomed at the medical bureau and invited to participate in the examination of cases reputed to represent miraculous cures.

That medical bureau, established 40 years ago, has served to put Lourdes on a different footing from any other spot where reputed faith healing occurs. The case sheets on record reveal the scientific conclusions reached by the examining physicians. Protestant doctors and doctors without any religion, as well as Catholic physicians, have certified to cures that could scarcely have resulted from natural causes. On the average, 8 or 10 cases are officially recognized every year as cures of a supernatural character for which there is no accounting in material medicine.

* * *

Pilgrims From All Parts of the World

THIS year, as in the past, cripples will be carried to the shrine in beds and in wheel chairs, or in the arms of their friends. Thousands of these unfortunates, for whom science has been able to do nothing, will seek relief through faith. A constant throng, a steady stream of afflicted pilgrims, praying in every language of the civilized world, move down the mountain to the sacred spot. Down the mountain they come, assisted by friends, relatives or the able-bodied faithful. Their goal is the sacred grotto whose walls, blackened by the candlesmoke of three quarters of a century, are hung with crutches and the patches of the blind—mute symbols of the miraculous cures of former years.

An air of deep religious devotion permeates the scene, one of the most affecting this writer has ever witnessed. There is excitement indescribable as the multitude intones a chant, interrupted from time to time by the exhortation of the priest to kneel and kiss the earth. As the chant wells up, the suffering pilgrims are brought to bathe in the healing waters, while the prayers sound ever louder and louder, and bathers cry out in tones that wring the heart: "I am cured!" . . . "I can walk!" . . . "I can see!"

There is something wonderfully sacred about Lourdes, and something mightily convincing. It is a place for the poor, for the unfortunate, for the victims of life. It is the least commercial of places. Dollars, pounds sterling and francs are brought down to dimes, shillings and centimes. There is nothing for sale, but everything to be given.

And there is probably in all the world no greater emotional thrill to be experienced than to hear 20,000 pilgrims in solemn procession intoning a triumphant Magnificat, marching with shining eyes as they chant "Ave Maria! Ave Maria!"

What, draft them to go to Europe and fight another war! Not so you'd notice it, thank you.

Not the Zuni Indians, down there in New Mexico. They know their own business, do the Zunis.

They build nice little flat roofed villages and they plant their corn in the dark of the moon and do interesting tribal dances at the right time, and they grind the corn with a heavy club just as their great-great-grandfathers ground it, they sing love songs to the moon, and marry, and die—that's quite enough for them.

They don't want anything more—they've had all the war dancing and the fighting and the wounding and the wounded that they care about, thank you, and that's that.

When the people at the reservation sent word for the young braves to come to the council, and prepare to enlist in the forest reservation army—they just stayed at home or ran away. The Indian agent had to send runners out far and wide to explain to them that this enlistment was not for war—but for peace and the preservation of the great forests.

When the Zunis heard that and believed it, they came back from the gullies and the hidden places and enlisted to a man, with glad grunts of glee.

They knew all about the war with Germany and they didn't like what they knew. They've heard about a good many things that happened to the soldiers after the war and they didn't like what they'd heard. So they just made up their minds that they would just stay calmly at home and attend to their own business, no matter what the great White Father thought about it.

Do you suppose the young men of the white race here in America have a good deal the same sort of idea—pardon me, I mean "reaction"?

Quite a few white Americans sometimes seem to be of the opinion that it is up to us to sail the seas over and fight anybody on earth if somebody, somewhere in the far-flung reaches, happens to think it would be handy to have us.

I'd like to send a greeting or so either in the Chautauqua fashion or otherwise.

Honestly, now, wouldn't you?

Isn't It So?
